

CALVERT "SUCCESSFUL MEN" FORM THEIR OWN CLUB

Golf, fish, swim and hold meetings in swank Miami areas

The men who posed in Lord Calvert "Successful Men" advertising over the past year, writers, lawyers, engineers and businessmen, gathered in the flesh at the Lord Calvert Hotel in Miami, Florida for a long Friday-to-Tuesday week-end of fun and serious chatter.

They came at the invitation of W. W. Wachtel, president of Calvert Distillers Corporation, and once there, on their own, they formed a "Successful Men Club" to promote interracial unity.

Elected as president of the club was Albert Lindsey, production engineer, of East Orange, New Jersey. W. Beverly Carter, well-known public relations expert of Philadelphia, Pa. was chosen as secretary of the group.

Members of the group include Georg Olden, CBS art director of New York; Hillyard Robinson architect of Washington, D. C.; Joel Rogers, historian of New York City; Reginald Matthews, lawyer of New York; Archie Alexander, engineer of Washington, D. C.; William Wingate, own-

Mr. Wachtel led this group which consisted of top Calvert executives and the distinguished coterie of successful citizens through a round of fishing, golf, swimming and parties.

Saturday night the group attended Ciro's, the swank nightie of Miami Beach, where Steve Gibson's Red Cape, Danita Jo and Joel Gray entertained.

Sunday was time for deep sea fishing in three slick crafts captained by veteran fishermen, resulting in handsome catches of King fish registered by most.

Golf at the exclusive Crestview Country Club was on the program for Monday, ending with a steak banquet at the Lord Calvert Hotel.

Swimming in the blue, warm Lord Calvert pool, socializing on the patio under the palms, discussion and some sleep, padded out the rest of the spare hours for these men to whom being busy normally is no novelty.

At the banquet which ended the week-end, Mr. Wachtel hid the men adieu. In a talk, he observed that these Calvert "Successful Men" were "symbols of the opportunity America afforded, increasingly, to all its citizens."

He said: "You are the America of the future where men of merit and ability achieve the best fruits of our free enterprise system."

Mr. Robinson, speaking at the dinner, said that a good time could be had by all whenever men of good-will of any race or religion gather.

Ciro's received the interracial party with open arms as did the fishing captains and golf pro who serviced the group.

Agreed by all was the fact that this Calvert junket established a milestone in race relations and fond memories not soon to be erased.

Those "Successful Men" unable to attend the Miami week-end will be invited by president Lindsey to join the club. The absentees were: James Edwards, movie star of Hollywood; Robert Landrum, realty broker of Chicago; Charles W. Jones, trial attorney of Deroit; Jack L. Cooper, radio director of Chicago; and Fred Jones, inventor scientist of Minneapolis, Minn.
