

Greenville, NC News

GREENVILLE — SCHOOL NEWS: C. M. Eppes High School presented its annual Band Recital on Friday night, April 16. It was the best one we've had.

The experience of those in the band combined with the most excellent training given them by the instructor, Miss Parker, brought gratifying and pleasing results. Everyone present enjoyed it.

Miss Parker has begun an elementary Band in Eppes High. They, too, gave several numbers.

This is her first year with us, but the community at large hopes to keep her in our school.

She is commended for her untiring efforts in giving our children this superlative training in this field of music.

The Fleming Street School will give its dance revue for this year on Tuesday night, April 14. It promises to be very good. The group is directed by Mrs. W. B. Davis.

The Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College will present "Romance of the Merry Outlaws of Sherwood Forest" at Eppes High School next Thursday April 17. It is sponsored by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Our children are very fortunate to have the privilege each year of seeing a play given by this group. They come to us with joy and anticipation as we look forward to their coming.

There is a community Art Festival being held throughout the city this week, and the program of the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College is a part of it.

Eppes High School chimed in with its art program on last Monday night at 8 o'clock.

There was chalk sketching by several art students, directed by Mrs. M. B. Allen, who began the program. Those sketching things or people in reality were Herbert Harper, Warren Outerbridge, Donovan Phillips, Barbara Morris, and Edna Teel. Each gave a different sketching.

The next part of the program consisted of aprons. Each of four students had a yard of material and draped lips models in original designs. They were Charles Williams, Raymond Brownstein, Milton Cobb and Rovens Hardy. This was directed by Mrs. M. B. Allen and Miss E. C. Staufeloff, the Home Economics instructor of Eppes High. The accompanist was Mrs. W. H. Davenport.

Several girls did creative dancing, directed by Mrs. L. J. Mitchell and Miss Eunice Forbes. All of the above were High School happenings.

Miss S. A. Jones and Mrs. J. Bell directed a group of Elementary children in a folk song "Down Bay".

There was a stage construction by the Industrial Arts class members and an original marionette show given, directed by Miss L. S. Foreman and Miss L. L. Graye.

A large model made by James Batts, Lavon Duncan and Floyd Dickens hung from the center of the auditorium. This was a miniature of color.

All students of Art in all schools of the city are featuring all phases of art in the Army downtown and we are proud to say that our children of art measure up with any in all of their work. There is work from grade one through twelve.

Every effort is being put forth in all fields of our school work to help some child or every child find himself to develop into a good and useful citizen.

CHURCH NEWS

There was an interracial interdenominational alliance held at Synagogue Hill Baptist Church on last Monday, April 13. It consisted of the Old Eastern Neuse Rivers and the Tar River Associations of Eastern North Carolina in joint session with the Roanoke Baptist Baptist and Eastern Associations.

The Moderators of our associations are Rev. J. A. Nimmo, Rev. T. V. Foster and Rev. C. R. Edwards.

The opening session was at eleven a.m. after the devotions, remarks were given by the President, Dr. R. W. Underwood, D. D. of Rocky Mount. A hearty welcome was given by the pastor of the host church, Rev. J. A. Nimmo, then each moderator gave one introductory remarks.

The theme of the meeting was "A Solution for Our Problems as Ministers of Jesus Christ". This was given a beginning by the Rev. A. D. Moseley of Washington, N. C. Rev. Moseley is pastor of the Union Baptist Church of Farmington, N. C.

The evening session began at 2 p.m. and after the devotions, the theme "What shall be the objectives of our preaching as ministers of Jesus Christ?" This was ably discussed by the ministers led by Rev. Nimmo.

R. W. Underwood, D.D. is president of this alliance, Rev. T. H. Brad, secretary and Rev. F. N. Spivey, corresponding secretary.

This was the first time we have had this alliance and the members of Synagogue Hill shared in serving their dinner. Many members took dinner made up of everything the appetites might call for.

The youth of Synagogue Hill Baptist Church will have charge of the services on the third Sunday and if you are in the city, they will welcome you to the services. The directresses are Mrs. L. D. Taylor, Mrs. M. B. Godette and Miss Christine Clark.
