atures used. He vowed it would be helpful to all concerned.

PRESSURE BRINGING CIVIL RIGHTS

Taylor credited the national and international pressure now being brought to bear in behalf of minority-group citizens with having done more than anything else to get more "rights" for Americans of a darker hue. This pressure will soon force the issue, he said.

The lawyer who caused the lives of at least five men condemned to die to be spared a total of several years while he exhausted every legal means known in their behalf, including repeated trips to the U.S. Supreme Court, plead for a greater display of interest in civil liberties, not only by Elks, but by all colored men.

Saying that "Everyone else is more interested in the plight of the Negro than he is himself," Taylor said of politics, "It is no more wrong for us to 'single-shot' in voting to get what we want than for other groups to do so." We should get out a vote of 250,000 in the congressional race this year so we can plan to send a man to the legislature and work for the repeal of segregation laws from within, the speaker suggested.

Taylor deplored the fact that after years of fighting to obtain the right to attend the State University so few are availing themselves of the opportunity.

making. Experts in the field of Home Economics and authorities on home life, time-saving devices, economical appliances and beauty associated with comfort, will be on hand to exhibit their wares.

The demonstrations in cooking and the latest culinary methods will be led by representatives of the Carolina Power and Light Company. This year's show will feature electrical cooking with the many new features that have been added.

The Royal Baking Company will have its representatives on hand and will not only be able to tell you why Holman is the new discovery in bread, but will be glad to tell you of the many vitamins found therein and the economic values to be derived from the use of the bread.

The Brooks Appliance Company will bring the latest in appliances and will have demonstrators who can tell you of the many savings that will come your way while using their brand products.

The Carolina Cough Company decided that the public should know more about the comforts that their luxury coaches offer. They want you to know how cheaply you can travel from one point to another. They will be on hand to tell you everything you would like to know about coach travel.

The Southern Furniture Company will have an exquisite booth that will show the latest in furniture and the many advantages in buying to suit your home and budget.

Minnam's Dress Shop, the House of Fashions, will display the latest in ladies styles and will also be on hand to tell you the types and fashions that best suit your figure. Miss Virginia Gray will feature a fashion show with many lovely models on Wednesday night.

Pepsi Cola, the drink that refreshes without filling will have samples of the delicious beverage for you to taste and compare. Pine State Creamery will not only tell of the fine qualities found in their milk and ice cream, but will tell you of the other products which they have for the people of Raleigh and vicinity.

Foods of taste and value of qualities will be shown by the A. & P. Super Market Company. Another new feature will be the demonstrations of the Nechi Sewing Machine, by Steve's Sewing Center. The many extra attachments found on the new machine will be demonstrated and you can see the beautiful work which the machine will do.

The Kool-Vent Company will display the latest in awnings and window designs that will make your home more attractive and more imposing. The Pet Milk Company is scheduled to be on hand to tell you why babies can thrive on their product better than any other of its kind and nature.

The North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company will tell you what great values they offer for security for yourself and family in their many policies. The Baptist Book Store will exhibit the latest books on better living and will have the Holy Bible in all its forms on display.

It is also expected that a miniature home, with all modern conveniences will be on display. Jones Sausage is expected to be used extensively and will, in all probability, be sampled by persons attending.

The best aspect of the entire affair is the fact that the CAROLINIAN is staging the show in an effort to further its public service to Raleigh. This is another of its public features that has made it the largest newspaper in the state. There will be many wonderful prizes given away which will include a washing machine, furniture, kitchen ware and many other useful articles. There will be many door prizes and practically everyone who attends will get something free.

All persons who want to get the fine points on better living and more home comforts will do well to attend. Admission is absolutely free. The doors for the afternoon sessions will open at 1:00 P. M. and for the evening sessions at 6 P. M. In order to win one of the many prizes to be offered, get your copy of the CAROLINIAN and clip the coupon which will be found therein. Instructions as to what to do with the coupon will be found in next week's paper. Mark these dates on your calendar, May 18, 19 and 20.

and have made outstanding contributions.

Her two sons, Herman Benjamin and Horace have both taught at the Master's School of New York University and taught in the schools of New York and Cleveland. He is currently employed as a clerk in the post office at Cleveland, Ohio.

Horace graduated from Western Reserve and received a degree in Chemical Engineering. He taught in the School of Technology there and is now a dental student at Howard University.

One daughter, Mrs. Luez F. Easley, is a member of the faculty of E. E. Smith High School here. She is a graduate of Livingstone College. She made quite a record as a Red Cross worker in World War II having served overseas. She also attended the University of Michigan, Atlanta University and North Carolina College.

The other daughter, Mrs. Vera Lefoye Oden, is a graduate of Fisk and also attended the University of Minnesota. She taught in the high schools of Minnesota and was known to have been the first Negro woman to hold such a post. She is now employed by the Honeywell Enterprises and is making an enviable record with the company.

Aside from having reared her family, Mrs. Ferguson has been very active in the civic life of the city. She is Vice President of District number three NAACP, comprising N.C., S.C., Ga. and Fla. She is Vice President of the United Way Mothers. She is reported to be the first race woman to be appointed to the Board of the Soldier's Memorial Home, Raleigh. Her interest in the work of the Parent-Teachers Association caused her to be made chairman of the Founders Day activities of the Congress of Parent-Teachers.

She serves as Matron of the Queen Esther Chapter of the Eastern Star and also serves as District Deputy of Hoke, Harnett and Cumberland counties. She is treasurer of Kindness Court, Daughters of Isis. She is the first of her race to serve on the United Service Fund. She prizes over all of this that she is the grandmother of three promising children. She holds a certificate in beauty culture.

DENIED BOND

Hedepeth, told the CAROLINIAN that this is the second time this year that tragedy has struck her family. It was only about three months ago that she was notified that another brother had been reported dead or missing, with the United States Army, overseas.

Mrs. Robertson told a graphic story of how her brother had worked as a cadet since returning from the army and how he left a few days ago to visit a sister in Portsmouth, Va. She told of receiving a letter from Vernon, the early part of the week, in which he requested the address of a girl friend, Mrs. Robertson did not know that her brother was in or near Raleigh until she was notified that he had been killed.

Vernon leaves, besides Mrs. Robertson, a father, Atlas, three brothers, J. V., Marshall and Charles, all of Raleigh. There are three other surviving sisters, Mrs. Mazie Keith, Mrs. Nellie Mae Footes, Portsmouth, Va. and Mrs. Pamzie Oakley, Rt. 5, Raleigh.

not field a football team because of a lack of personnel and funds. During his eight years at Shaw, Wilson has accumulated a wealth of respect among both the athletes and the student body as a whole. Several of the athletes at Shaw University are known to have protested his release.

Joe Wilder, one of Shaw's top athletes and a senior, related to the CAROLINIAN Wednesday that many of Coach Wilson's colleagues, students and athletes have had conferences with President Strassner and other top administrative officials. Many of the veterans who attend Shaw and who participate in sports have expressed themselves as to what they believe is happening and have said that they would not participate in any varsity competition as far as Shaw University is concerned for the coming year.

The following statement was made to a CAROLINIAN reporter by members of the Varsity Club of Shaw University in regard to Coach Wilson.

"After eight years of faithful service to Shaw University you have been asked to leave. Although the administration has made certain remarks concerning you, we know these to be untrue, we have tried in some small way to atone for the injustice that is being done. The Varsity Club, the Physical Education Department and the students will miss your 255-5-4 pounds and your bald-head on Shaw U's campus. We sincerely hope that wherever you venture you will be appreciated by the students as you have been here at Shaw. This is truly a sad commentary for such a great coach. We are sure that we speak for the entire student body in saying good luck in the future. We realize that this is grossly inadequate, but this is our tribute to a great coach."

THE VARSITY CLUB SHAW UNIVERSITY RALEIGH, N. C.

Coach Wilson attended Morgan College, Baltimore, where he received his B.S. degree; Columbia University, B.S. and a Professional diploma. He has held coaching posts at the following schools: Johnston County Training School, Smithfield, N. C., for seven years; and Winston-Salem Teachers College, Winston-Salem.

President William R. Strassner could not be reached for comment at press time.

much confusion, adverse publicity, racial unrest and general bad rumor for a number of years. His activities have become so grave until it has become necessary for the FBI and the SBI to conduct investigations. The investigations have brought out many important reports that are not available to lay readers.

The most startling revelations have come from Bagwell's alleged love affairs with Negro women. Corroborated information has been given that he is known to have bragged of his prowess with race women and it is rumored that he has on one occasion beat up a man whose wife complained to him about her husband. The husband was not tried for the alleged family trouble and Bagwell was never called in question about beating the man in his own home.

Another incident that is getting much attention is the method in which the officer handled a case where the suspect was believed to have misappropriated some money. The suspect is known to have suffered many bruises on and around the neck.

The latest development in the Scott case is that there are two unnamed white men who are ready and willing to take the stand and relate that they saw Bagwell strike Scott three blows after he had been beaten into unconsciousness and while the two arresting officers, (Bagwell and Holmes), were turning around to take Scott to jail.

Apex citizens of both races are much concerned over the reports that have been received on the officer and there are quite a few who feel that Apex will do well to get rid of the controversial figure even before the cases are heard.

There are many citizens who feel that Bagwell's actions will have political implications and it is felt that any candidate who is known to have his support will not get the Negro vote in the forthcoming primary and will lose a large number of white votes. This is definitely true as it applies to law enforcement. There are those who feel that Bagwell's rampages have been blessed by the suspension of race laws in the market of the law enforcement program of Wake County.

The case of William Joyner, Apex youth, who reported that Bagwell gave him a severe "going over" while arresting him, sometime ago, was continued in Wake Superior Court Tuesday, by request of counsel for the defense. The Alford Scott case, which recently broke the silence in Bagwell's turbulent administration, is scheduled to come up in the Wake court Thursday. The solicitor's office informed the CAROLINIAN that it would in all probability be heard.

BODY FOUND

veteran Mitchell, an Air Force pilot and a student at High Point, a Baptist Commercial College on or about March 20.

The young student had been shot four times by bullets from a .45 calibre pistol. His badly decomposed body was only partly clad, his trousers underneath the body, and his shoes missing. Officers theorized that two shots were fired after Mitchell was placed in the trunk since two shells from the pistol entered the floor of the trunk.

STATE IN BRIEF

been continued to a later term of criminal court. Joyner is one of two men who has charged that Chief Bagwell assaulted him during his arrest and threatened his life.

Local Man In Fair Shape After Fight

RALEIGH—The Smith of 27 Fayetteville Street is listed as being in "fair condition" at Shaw Agnes Hospital following a gunshot wound inflicted by Chuck Chavis of 16 Ross Street last Sunday.

According to police reports, the bullet entered Smith's right shoulder and chest.

James Lewis, alias of 227 Fayetteville said that he and Smith were sitting on the front porch of the residence Sunday when they saw Chavis coming down the street with a shotgun in his hand.

Lewis said that Smith ran through the door and was shot by Chuck Chavis as he attempted to go through the back door.

Other witnesses reported that Smith Chavis and a number of other men had been drinking together earlier in the afternoon when the two men became involved in an argument, police reported.

Chavis is charged with assault with a deadly weapon, with intent to kill.

He was tried in City Court Wednesday and was found guilty. Superior Court after probable cause was found. His bond was set at $1,000.
