The Westinghouse Electric Company was accused of discrimination in the hiring of white collar workers at its recently constructed plant. which is slated to soon begin operation here. The personnel department of the electric company is reported to con-Veniently bypass Negroes who apply for jobs in any capacity

There were persons present who were told that there were no openings.

The practice is suppose to stem from the local hiring policy. The officials of the company are re- main in the homes of the whi ported to have told inquiresr that of the community, as servants. Negroes would be placed in the same spots in the plant as they were in plants and businesses already established in the community. This is believed to be in direct counter to policies followed by other southern towns and cities, where they have plants iocated. Negroes are reported to be
