

SENATORIAL CANDIDATES DEPLORE RULING

LINCOLN ADDRESSERS — These four men decided that America had existed long enough half free and half slave and took a big step toward finishing the job that Lincoln started in 1863, when they declared that there would be no more discrimination in the schools of this country on account of race.

The recent decision by the United States Supreme Court to outlaw segregation in the public schools of the country brought sharp words from both of the leading candidates for election to the United States Senate, and from other leading figures in the state to the extent that public leaders and liberal thinkers are worried as to what step will be taken to carry out the mandate of the highest court of the land. The decision of the high court is plain and there is no doubt in the minds of any of the opponents and the proponents that it meant what it said. The fact that it does not mean to further segregation in the case so as to know how much the school can take effect, what is called the strain and is really a question.

Senator Allen Lennon is known to have thrown a scare into the staff camp when he is said to have accused the former governor of meeting the citizens of North Carolina by denouncing segregation in the schools. The "Man from Haw River" lost no time in telling the lawmakers that he would not advocate anything but separate but equal opportunities in the educational field of North Carolina.

Governor William B. Umstead expressed what many termed his already expressed attitude that he was disappointed in the decision. There are others who cannot believe the conservative governor should be surprised when he takes a broad look at the turn of things throughout the world. "I well know, former banking official of the state, told interested persons whose name is not revealed at this time, said that it was the greatest assistance that we could have given India and the best atomic bomb we could have given Russia.

Teachers "Get Ax" In Spring Hopes

Henlenson Man Is Killed In Mine

NEGRO GROUP RECOMMENDS DISMISSALS

By J. B. HARRIS
SPRING HOPE — This western Nash County town and community was rocked last week by a blast that came from the mines of the local school board resulting in the unparalleled firing of seventeen — you read right, 17 teachers and the principal — Joseph Annum — of the Spaulding High School, which this winter presented three illustrious speakers — Dr. Eaton, Wilmington; Dr. J. W. Seabrook, Fayetteville and Durham insurance man, W. J. Kennedy — who told about "The Participation in Education."

VED SOLDIERS IN NEW JOBS — John J. Hunt, who was Mess Sergeant to General Dwight Eisenhower during World War II, met President Eisenhower and gave a warm handshake when he visited the White House recently. Hunt, like the General, has a new job. As a fifth grade teacher at Nishuane Elementary school, Montclair, N. J., he brought his class to Washington for a sightseeing tour. The pupils, too, met the President. (Newspress Photo.)

VANCE COUNTY MAN'S DEATH TERMED IRONIC

HENDERSON — A punishment should sometimes be heeded if the course taken by Govan Davis, 45, is to be used as a deterrent. Govan had a lunch last Friday that he should not go to the Tule Mine to work and stayed at home on Saturday he went to the mine and was killed.

AT LAST — Gen. E. C. Hayes, prominent Washington attorney, Harvard Harvard NAACP Legal Head, and J. M. Nabrit, Howard University law professor, join hand in victory over the decision of the United States Supreme Court. These four lawyers carried the brunt of the burden in bringing equal education to the Negro children of America.

"Mad" Soldier Kills Lover

Manuel, Army Second Class George Glenn, 25, of Baltimore, Md., a cook with the 72nd AC&W Squadron, stationed temporarily at Camp McNeil, is alleged to have shot Miss Ruth Townsend in her apartment at 12:15 a.m. Monday morning.

Glenn is married and has a wife and a child in Baltimore. However, he had been dating Miss Townsend while stationed here with his outfit taking part in "Operation Flash Burn." He told Chief Miles that they had a "lovers quarrel" during the day Sunday and after they had closed the business about 10:30 p. m., they went upstairs to the Townsend apartment where he claims they renewed the argument. Subsequently, she told him to get out of the apartment, and when he refused to leave, she obtained a revolver from another room. Glenn alleges that she fired once at him and, either at that time or a short time later, went downstairs and called up (Continued on page 8)

Woman Resents Petting; Gets Shot In Stomach

Miss Willie N. Smith, of 722 Quarry Street here and Johnnie Cox of 2 Iredell Terrace, Chavis Heights, were sweethearts, but Willie started getting a little weary of her boy-fronding attentions about one a.m. Sunday morning.

She resented local police officers that she had started to leave Johnnie where they had been visiting at the residence of Willie Hawkins of 401 1/2 Beauty Street in Joe Louis Park.

Johnnie, the woman reportedly told officers Samuel Clarkson and Joseph Winters, "had been petting me most of the day," Saturday. She figured it definitely should have ended by Sunday morning.

10-YEAR THEFT LANDS REX AID IN JAIL

Several Raleigh families have been eating fairly well off stolen food from Rex Hospital, a police case under investigation over the weekend revealed.

An employee of the hospital for 17 years admitted to Detective L. R. A. Liles that he had stolen from Rex for ten years. The man said that some of the stolen goods was sold to other people.

The admission came from the mouth of Ben C. Johnson, 42, of 410 Chamberlain St., after officers had caught him "red-handed" at the residence of his brother-in-law last Saturday night with food valued at $19.87 loaded in his automobile.

Johnson was released under $500 bond for trial on May 27 in City Court on charges of larceny and receiving.

A list of the stolen goods found in the car was reported as six pounds of coffee, eight pounds of sausage, four pounds of cheese, five pounds of smoked ham, seven pounds of butter, ten pounds of ham, twenty-four pounds of bacon, 29 frying bird chickens, weighing a total of 40 pounds, 15 (Continued on page 8)

Addresses Teachers

By J. B. HARRIS
SPRING HOPE — In an address to the South Nash County monthly meeting held last Sunday night, Durham attorney Floyd B. McKissick, chairman of the State Conference NAACP Executive Fund For Freedom (4-F) drive, told an appreciative audience that the program of the N. A. A. C. P. had its foundation in the bible and should come next to one's church affiliations. A native of Asheville and one of the original "sit-down" students to test the University of North Carolina Law School entrance by court action, which action was finally successful, McKissick drew heavily on the biblical training of his two grandfathers who were preachers, to expound the scriptures. Following his address, branch president, Williams spoke at length on the "Spring Hope Mess" as he called the recent firing of 18 teachers there. Williams urged the citizens to put school officials on the defensive.
