

MAY REACTIVATE 465TH QM COMPANY

Above are the four Army officers who were associated with the 465th Quartermaster Service Company during its operation in Raleigh in 1949 and 1950. The reserve unit was the only one from Raleigh to be called into active duty and was under the leadership of Major Leonard L. Jackson. When the 465th returns to this city in December it is believed that it will be immediately reactivated. Pictured from left to right are Captain Pedro McKoy, Major Jackson, 1st Lt. Charles G. Major L. L. Jackson Returns, Outfit To Reach Raleigh In December

By CHARLES R. JONES
Major Leonard L. Jackson, former businessman and popular resident of Raleigh returned recently from Metz, France, where he had been stationed as commanding officer of the 465th Quartermaster Service Company for three years. The 465th was the only reserve unit recalled to active duty from Raleigh during the Korean conflict.

Here on a 30-day leave visiting relatives at 202 N. Tarboro Street, the Major will be reassigned to Fort Lee, Virginia where he will attend an Associate Officers' Advanced Course.

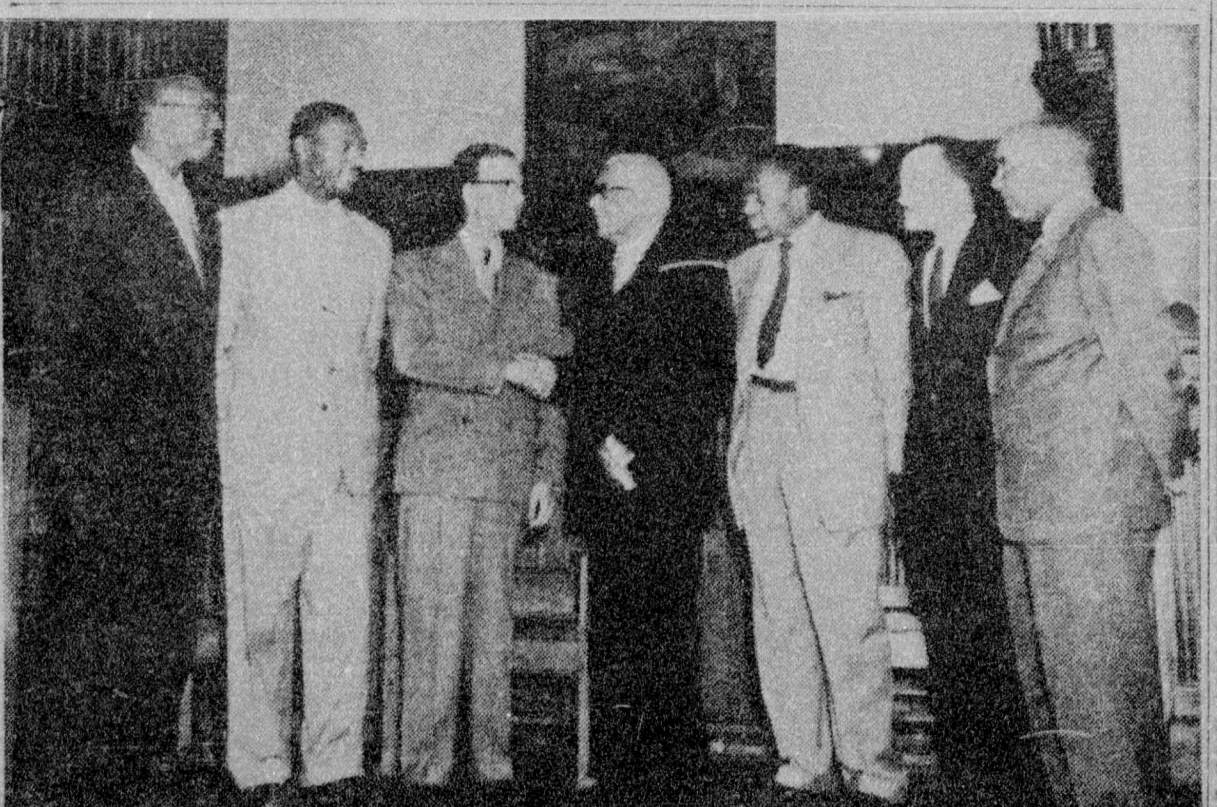

He entered service as an enlisted man in January of 1941. At the time he expected to do a year and get out, Pearl Harbor changed that, Jackson applied for Officers' Candidate School, was accepted and graduated in July of 1942 with the commission of a 2nd Lieutenant in the Field Artillery Division.

Following his graduation from OCS the Major served with the 930th Field Artillery Battalion at Camp Butler, N. C. for one year and was transferred to the 82nd Division at Arizona prior to going overseas. He served in Italy for 14 months and returned to this country in November, 1954, for separation.

Major Jackson, who had apparently taken a liking to military service, joined the reserve unit here and attended regular meetings while serving as an active co-partner in the Hayes-Jackson Electric Company of Raleigh for five years.

In June of 1949, he reactivated the 465th QM Service Company which has since become an inter-racial unit. It consisted of 135 enlisted men and four officers at the time of its reactivation. The unit is now in France and will return to reserve status in December of 1955.

Attorney General Seeks Gradual Desegregation

By ALEXANDER BARNES
Attorney General Harry McMullan set off a rave in North Carolina this week, when he made known the state's position on desegregation, that runs from gradual implementation to immediate acceptance of the edict, handed down by the highest court of the land on May 17.

The state official, in a brief filed with the United States Supreme Court on Monday, not only asked that North Carolina be given time to make the change, but asked that it be left to the discretion of the judges of the local courts, as to when and how the edict would be carried out.

His brief did not set out any vehicle by which the state planned to approach the matter, but merely asked that it be done gradually.

The NAACP got a jump on the Attorney General and asked the Board of Education of Catawba County on November 11, to begin at once. The militant organization was represented by Kelly M. Alexander, state president, and Attorney Charles V. Bell.

Neither Mr. Alexander, nor Attorney Bell, told the Board how it should be done, but insisted that it be done now. Mr. Alexander also told the Board that he objected to it being tried with the first grades and extended each year, until it reached the full extent.

The Fear of God and the Love of Mankind (AN EDITORIAL)

The fear of God and the love of mankind is hereby offered North Carolina as a path to tread in meeting the high tribunal's ruling on desegregation in the schools.

To challenge the veracity of the Supreme Court to the extent of setting a dangerous precedent for future decisions is of considerable importance.

The Carolinian recognizes vividly the impact of the "decision" upon the long and cherished pattern of the two-way living of the South and North. Nonetheless, in the end Democracy for all must triumph—and at the expense of no particular group. For scores and scores of years Negroes have suffered oppression and lack of total opportunity to become greater contributors to themselves and America—sacrificing, cajoling, begging, stooping, "uncle tomming", and yes praying, that some day they would meet with full appraisal by their majority group the good feeling of total Americanism, unabused and respected according to the great American tradition en-couched in the four freedoms.

This sub-standardization should have been short-lived by any American, in the land of the free and the brave. Other generations should have righted the wrongs of yesteryear. There would be no apprehension and fears of race intolerance had our forefathers accepted their responsibility. There will be none for our children if we, white and Negro alike accept our responsibility now. It is asking our children to be stronger than we are should we procrastinate now. It will burden them with our present obligations. We should look back on past generations wondering why some gradualism had not been offered; why some initiative hadn't been taken to erase from the minds of our children this blight on American culture that is so unduly troublesome. It is inconceivable to believe that we should want to continue embarrassing future generations both Negro and white with buck-passing a responsibility that involves inherently 15,000,000 Negro Americans' constitutional rights.

BURLINGTON — A member of the Alamance County Board of Commissioners said Tuesday that Sheriff-elect Joe W. PATROL CAP IN MISHAP

NEW BERN — A State Highway Patrolman and a Negro teenager he had picked up on a charge of speeding, were injured six miles north of New Bern Sunday night when the patrol car was wrecked while chasing a second auto, who is alleged to have been speeding. The patrolman reported that the second suspect was involved in what appeared to be an 85-mile an hour race on the highway leading into Kinston.

Sylvester Whitfield, 16, of New Bern, the race passenger, was hospitalized with undetermined injuries. He was last reported in an unconscious condition at the Good Shepherd Hospital.

Suffering three fractured ribs and a head injury was Patrolman H. G. Woolard. His car came to a dead end on a dirt road, crossed Highway 54 and was demolished after going over an embankment and landing in a field.

Woolard gave chase to Whitfield's auto and another automobile when they passed through a speed clock side by side, apparently racing, in excess of 85 miles an hour.

The officer got the license number of one of the cars which failed to pass a car that the first speeding automobile managed to evade by, and radiating the information to the patrol office in New Bern, overtook Whitfield and arrested him.
