ATLANTA (ANP)-The Georgia State Board of Education has retreated from its ruling that teachers who are members of the NAACP must resign or lose their licenses.

Also reseinded was a resolution calling for the dismissal of any teacher who approved of integrated classes or who agreed to teach such classes

The board acted in the face of widespread opposition from all quarters, including the determination of the NAACP to test the legality of the resolutions if any Negro teacher was fired because of mem-bership in the organization. Even pre-segregation newspars in Georgia had joined in the attack against the boards' "excursion into thought policing."
