100 STITCHES TAKEN

GREENSBORO — It took 100 stitches to close the wounds of Miss Ruby Lee Williamson after she was cut and stabbed by Mrs. Margaret Steen, here last week.

Admitting that she assaulted Miss Williamson, Mrs. Steen told officers that she did so after she surprised her with her husband. Miss Williamson received multiple cuts on her back, arms and hands and two stab wounds, one under her right breast and another in her abdomen.

Mrs. Steen posted $300 bond for trial later.

FLYING PRESIDENT—W. T. Gibbs, president of AAT College, who visited some of the college's Air Force ROTC cadets in summer camp at Tyndall AFB, Florida a few weeks ago, accepted an invitation for a flight in a jet fighter. He climbs aboard a T-33 jet trainer in preparation for the trip. "Sensational," he said, upon his return.

Teenagers Accuse 2 Of Assault

DURHAM — A 19-year-old youth and a 55-year-old man have been arrested and charged in two separate cases of assault upon under-age girls, here this week.

Eugene Rogers, 55, of 412 Plum Street, was arrested Sunday and charged with assault on a female with intent to commit rape on an 11-year-old girl. The girl, a resident of East Pettigrew Street, reportedly told officers that Rogers made her go into his bedroom, held her and committed an unnatural sex act with her.

Arrested at 5:35 a.m. Sunday and charged with assault on a female, was Tony Markham McClinton, 19, of 710 McMannan Street, after a 14-year-old Chapel Hill girl accused him of raping her behind the Community Sport Shop at 312 Poplar Street.

Detective C. L. Wooten, investigating the case, said that McClinton was charged with assault on a female after the girl admitted in the accused man's presence that she followed him to a creek side behind the shop where the act reportedly took place.

She told officers further, Wooten said, that after McClinton completed the act, another man had

Killed Man Defending Her Honor

RALEIGH — Clarence Day, 65-year-old Zebulon man is dead and Miss Dorothy Bake, 29, also of Zebulon, is being held in Wake County jail charged with his death.

Day died at 8:45 a.m. Tuesday in St. Agnes Hospital after having been blasted with a shotgun Monday morning.

Deputy Earl Duke said that Miss Bake admitted shooting Day and claimed that he was "making improper advances" at her home about 11 a.m. on Monday. She told Duke that she pushed Day out of the house and fired once, with a shotgun "to scare him."

"But he kept coming," she is quoted as saying, "so I shot to kill."

Day, who never regained consciousness, was hit in the side and the stomach. Before his death, Miss Bake had been charged with

WARNS AGAINST PEARSALL PLAN

ASHEVILLE — Dr. W. H. Plemons, president of Appalachian State Teachers College, said here Friday that prophesies of destruction of the public school system resulting from adoption of the Pearsall amendment must be fulfilled.

The constitutional guarantee of a "general and uniform" system of education for all children has been removed, Dr. Plemons said, by adoption of the private grants-local option amendment.

ROBBER RAIP GOT NOTHING BUT TROUBLE

DURHAM — Two Duplin County men who drove 100 miles through five counties to break in a bank, a drug store and school and a garage and who attempted to break into a U. S. Post Office, got plenty of nothing for their pains—that is, nothing of value to them.

VANDERBILT LAW SCHOOL ACCEPTS FIRST NEGROES

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

The first Negro students to attend the Vanderbilt University school of law enrolled into the college last week.

Vanderbilt thus became the first privately endowed law school in the Southeast to lower racial barriers.

The U. S. Supreme Court desegregation decision did not affect privately endowed schools.

Vanderbilt graduated its first Negro divinity student in 1954.

Edward M. Porter, 26, a graduate of A&I State University, and Frederick T. Work, 21, a Fisk University graduate, were among the 145 students who completed registration for law school.

Dean John W. Wade said the decision to admit the Negroes was WINSTON-SALEM — A man, burned when his house caught fire Monday, ran from it and either fell or jumped from a nearby railroad bridge.

Charles Lee Brown, 29, of 616 E. 11th Street, suffered second degree burns of the right shoulder and first degree burns of the chest.

Personnel at Kate Bittins Reynolds Memorial Hospital said that Brown's condition was "good" as late as Monday night as no bones were broken in the fall.

Mystery shrouds the origin of the fire in Brown's home at about 1 p.m. Monday. Firemen received their first call on it at 1:02 p.m. At the same time police officers were

Crowds Pay Final Tribute To "Mother" Joella Gary

RALEIGH — Mrs. Joella Thornton Gary, 1506 E. Lane Street, died Friday, September 21, at the home of her daughter, the Rev. Mabel Gary Philpott, known more familiarly as Sister Gary.

Mrs. Gary was a native of Abingdon, Va., but had made her home in Raleigh for many years. Hundreds of local and out-of-town friends turned out to pay last respects to her.

She was affectionately called "Mother" of Grace A.M.E. Zion Church, where the Rev. Philpott is pastor and

Prison Rioters Get Extra Time

RALEIGH — A brief escape from Women's Prison on Saturday following a cold-lunch riot brought six more months of confinement to two of the six inmates who fled by scaling a fence.

Three others face the prospect of even longer additions to their sentences when their cases come up in Superior Court, while the sixth, believed to have been forced into the escape attempt, has not been prosecuted.

Sentenced in City Court Tuesday in the six-month extensions were Henrietta Vance of Duplin County, serving six months, and Jean Harlow Ballard of Rowan County, serving 24 months, both on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Bound over to Superior Court under $1,000 bonds because they were serving time for more serious offenses, were:

Mamie Smith of Mecklenburg County, sentenced in 1952 to life as an accessory to murder; Bertha Ann Walker, also of Mecklenburg
