

Don Newcombe Fails Again In Series Bid

TIED UP SERIES
Jackie Robinson, veteran star of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has a reason to smile because it was his two-base blow in the bottom of the 10th inning of Tuesday's crucial game which sent Jim Gilliam across the plate with the run that gave the defending champions a 1-0 victory. By winning this game, Brooklyn squared the series with the Yankees at three games apiece, making a seventh game necessary. Defensively throughout the series, Jackie played flawlessly, making out of what seemed to be sure Yankee hits.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Big Don Newcombe, strong man of the Dodger pitching staff whose 27 victories helped the Bums to their second consecutive National League pennant, failed completely in two attempts to win a World Series game. Yankee bats knocked him out after two innings of the second game of the 1959 series here last Thursday, and again after three in the final game Wednesday. Although Don Larsen's history-making perfect no-hitter for the Yanks on Monday was the big thrill of the entire series, Negro players on both teams did their bit. (Continued Page 3)

Georgia Must Replace 'Off-Limit' School

ATLANTA—A new $348,000 school in Laurens County stands idle, the Negro children for whom it was intended must continue to attend classes in dilapidated ancient buildings, and the state must spend $350,000 to build another—all because of race prejudice. The new building in the Brewton community near Dublin is a bit too near the home of objecting white residents. One of them, Curtis Beall, white merchant-farmer, living across the road, started the trouble by contending that a small portion of the building was on his property. While the controversy over property rights raged, other whites began a series of threats to blow up the building if Negroes were allowed to attend it. Officials feared legal action through the NAACP because the old schools now being attended by Negro pupils were so unquestionably inferior. At a wary vote, the State Board of Education met Monday and voted to spend $350,000 to build a substitute building on a 15-acre site donated by one of its members, State Senator Herschel Lovett. Lovett, a wealthy landowner, described the buildings now attended by some 600 Negro pupils as "deplorable, cold and leaky shacks, with bad roofs, pot-bellied stoves and no toilet facilities."

'Please Save My Life,' Ala. Fugitive Asks

BY ALEXANDER BARNES
GREENSBORO—The most sordid story of life in an Alabama prison camp was unfolded here on Tuesday by Albert "Willie Duke" Thomas, a reported escaped convict, in the ears of Judge T. G. Warner in Municipal Court. Thomas is quoted as saying, "They'll kill me if I go back. He plead with the court to permit him to remain here, where he has lived a model life and has been regularly employed since December. Through his attorney, he asked a no-press corpus hearing. He based his plea on the fact that he had been knocked off of a road repair truck and a tar-bearing trailer, at Hamilton, Ga. He further stated that the truck ran over his head, causing multiple injuries to his jaw. His testimony also revealed that after spending three

Say 300-lb. Cop Shot In Self Defense

AHOSKIE—A 300-pound policeman who shot and killed his second man in the line of duty here Saturday night was freed on the ground that he acted in self-defense. A coroner's jury absolved Patrolman Abner Sessions in the fatal shooting of Wright Askew, Jr., 31, following an altercation on downtown Main Street. Sessions, only Negro on the force here, found Wright Askew, Sr. on the street and arrested him for public drunkenness. When Askew resisted he reportedly blackjacked him. Askew's son is then said to have leaped on Sessions from behind with a Barlow knife, stabbing him several times. Sessions then wheeled and shot Askew in the stomach. The latter died en route to a hospital. Sessions was also admitted to the hospital where he received stitches for the wound in his back. The

Racial Equality Ruling In Park Upheld By Court

WASHINGTON—Last-ditch efforts to preserve racial segregation in the only one of nine Virginia State parks bordering on the Atlantic Ocean failed here Monday when the U. S. Supreme Court flatly refused to review a lower court ruling that it must be open equally to all races. Seashore State Park, located in Princess Anne County near Cape Henry, Va., has been closed since the end of the 1954 season. State officials declined to re-open it after Federal Judge Walter Hoffman of Norfolk, Va., ruled that it could not be operated on a segregated basis. Virginia has continued to operate its eight other state parks on a segregated basis. These parks lean more toward camping and hiking, while Seashore Park has camping areas, cabins and beach facilities. It has served as a summer seashore playground for white Virginians throughout the state for many years. After the federal court banned

2 Brothers Who Sold Dope Get Jail Terms

RALEIGH—Two Raleigh brothers—Thomas and Henry J. Johnson, of 723 Fayetteville St., were sent to jail on Thursday for a total of 2 1/2 years for violation of the federal narcotic law. The men, who were sentenced by U. S. District Court Judge Don Gilliam, were also fined a total of $1,500. Johnson was fined $500 and Henry J. Johnson was fined $900. The brothers each drew two years on each of the counts. So. Carolina NAACP Man's Home Burned

MANNING—Although reports are current that fire destroyed the home of a minister, leader in the fight for integration, here six days ago, Clarendon County Sheriff J. J. Jackson said last week that it was "news to him."

NAACP headquarters in New York issued a statement that the home of the Rev. James W. Weas of Manning, a founder of the Clarendon County NAACP branch, was destroyed by fire Oct. 2 while the minister was visiting relatives in New York. Jackson told a press service that "no such fire has been reported to my office and I know nothing about it." The NAACP said that the Rev. Mr. Weas had "received various threats" because of his NAACP activities and "also has been subjected to economic pressure" for the
