(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) A banquet will be held at 8 p. m. in the college cafeteria. The final day of the conference will begin at 10 a. m. with a clinic on the "Complete Denture Protocols and its ramifications," led by Dr. W. E. Allen, dean of the school of dentistry, Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee. An "Oral Pathology" clinic will be held at 2 p. m. with Dr. Thomas L. Blair, local dentist, in charge. The business session will get underway at 4 p. m. and will include the election of officers and adjournment.

CHURCH BOMBERS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Britt, 27, and Livingston, 19, were tried only for the bombing of the Hutchinson Street Baptist Church. The charge carried from 2 to 10 years imprisonment on conviction. James Alexander, 27, face possible death sentences on a charge of dynamiting a Negro minister's home. The bombing came a few hours after shots were fired for the sixth time at city buses since they were racially integrated December 21 by a U. S. Supreme Court ruling. Theftford told the jury in closing argument that "we were on the very edge of racial rioting" before police arrested the four white men in the last few days of January. "If you turn these men loose without the evidence the state has presented," Theftford said, "you say to the Ku Klux Klan, 'If you bomb a Negro church or home it's all right.'"

CAMP TO OPEN

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) from July 14 to July 28. Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, President of the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults, announced this week. Crippled Negro boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 16 will be admitted provided they are toilet trained, able to dress and feed themselves and able to walk, even with braces or crutches. Interested applicants, or persons wishing to provide campships, should contact their local chapters of the N. C. Society for Crippled Children and Adults, or write Chapel Hill.

KILLER SOUGHT

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) The young woman, Mrs. Thacker's sister-in-law, was listed in "fair" condition at a Greensboro Hospital today. The search concentrated along the Guilford-Rockingham County line, near the barn, owned by Wilkins, in which the shooting allegedly occurred. Deputies who searched the area last night said they thought they heard someone shout like a gun shot blast. The reason for the belief that Allen may have killed himself. However, no trace of the man was found. The three victims were Negroes.

TRENT RESIGNS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) said that his wishes would go into effect July 1. The school has been operating under a committee composed of Miss Julia Belle Duncan, Dean M. F. Shute and Prof. J. H. Brockett, during the illness of President Trent. The Board of Trustees named Prof. Brockett, acting head, with instructions to carry out the duties of the president until a new one was named. The board also named a committee to search for a president, with the understanding that Dr. Trent's successor would be named on or about the opening of the 1957-58 term. Dr. Duncan, class of '27 and supervisor of High Schools in North Carolina, said he is challenging message from the subject, "To serve effectively in this day." He began by saying that education could not be divorced from the Christian religion. He traced the history of education and showed that only those who applied their education in service to others had really proved worthy of the time and money that had been expended to give them an education. He told how the American people had developed education through service. "Practically every president has left for history a significant statement on education," Thomas Jefferson, the third President of the United States, chose to have inscribed on his tombstone simply that "Here lies Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the University of Virginia." In President Eisenhower's message to the Congress on January 28 of this year, he stated, "It is not only the means for earning a living, but for enlarging life for mankind and improving the quality of the mind, for providing both the rights and obligations of freedom, for understanding the world in which we live," unquote. Speaking again at the centennial dinner of the National Education Association in Washington on April 3 of this year, he said, "I quote, 'This is more important than any Nike battery, more necessary than our radar warning nets and more powerful even than the energy of the atom,' he said. He continued, "Out of the interest in and the support of education is derived the inescapable fact that society has the right to expect that the recipients of the blessings of education from the kindergarten to university, will not only set as their goal the pursuit of their own aspirations, but service in behalf of others." He admonished his hearers that they should be careful that they get not lost in the false idea of self-pride and adopt a feeling that they would go forth to work for only themselves. "The day of the shoe cobbler when one man fashioned the shoe and built it with his own hands has gone forever. And strange as it may seem, more credit is apt to be given in this day to the man who sews the shoe than to the one man process, there has come the assembly line where sanitary working conditions, shorter hours, and higher wages, have replaced the personal satisfaction which once was derived from creativeness and independence," he warned.

Graham was nominated to membership on the group's Foreign Mission Board. The Baptists action calling for an end to racial injustice came in the wake of all-out moves by the Presbyterian faith three weeks ago to end all acts of segregation within their ranks. The Presbyterian group voted down segregation at their annual meeting in Birmingham, Ala., in a statement that protested against church-people joining White Citizens Councils, the Ku Klux Klan and other movements. Whose purpose is to gain its end by intimidation, reprisal and violence.

MRS. LIGON

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) She was educated at Shaw University in this city. She is survived by three daughters, Misses Hazel and Mary Ligon of the home, and Mrs. Johnnie L. Ligon of Hertford; two sons, L. W. Ligon, and J. W. Ligon, Jr., both of Raleigh; three granddaughters, four great granddaughters and three nieces. Serving as pallbearers were: J. ## ODDS & ENDS

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) men, women and children all seemed to be very happy, and very hungry. The spectacle was all right for what it was until we came to the far end of these grounds and saw there, fenced off from the others, a small group of "spooks" who were supposed call themselves Negroes. Oh yes, they were eating too, and they appeared to be having a very fine time. This group was also divided into men, women and children, all decked out in their Sunday best. On our way back from the hospital, we stopped a colored lady who was passing near this scene of Southern goodwill and asked her what it was all about. She told us it was the annual Brunswick Stew dinner given by the Erwin Mills for its employees and families. "Well, we see no reason why the Erwin Mills should not give an annual Brunswick Stew dinner for its few Negro employees (cleaners, laborers and janitors) could even become so hungry for Brunswick Stew that they would allow themselves to be fenced off on the side of a heavily traveled street just to get a chance to eat this stew. We certainly didn't believe that making such a spectacle of themselves and the group they consider themselves a part of or they just didn't give a rap. Which- ever it was, believe us, it was awful."

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

Even though several courts, one right in Greensboro have ruled that a governing body cannot exclude Negroes from any public owned and publicly used property, neither by direct operation or through lease or rental, the city manager of Durham had the gall to answer a request for unsegregated seating in the grandstand of the city-owned ball park made by a group of Durham citizens with the illegal statement that since the city has leased the park to a private organization, it, the city, could not exercise any control over the seating arrangements there. That this case will ultimately be settled in favor of the plaintiffs is a far gone conclusion. But why these court litigations cost money, a lot of money. We have the time to wait for our request to be met, we have the time even if it takes 100 more years.

COMMUNITY

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) The annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention was approved. One provision in a resolution approving the admittance issue was that the Seminary be operated completely in its own property when Negro students are admitted. Insertion of this matter was because the Seminary presently is holding chapel services in the Wake Forest Baptist Church, which it does not own and whose membership is all white. The chapel building on the campus is being renovated and is expected to be available for the beginning of the 1958-59 school year. About 24 or 25 of the Seminary's 30 trustees were present for the meeting, and a spokesman reported there was no dissenting vote when the resolution was approved. The meeting was held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The spokesman noted that the acceptance of qualified Negroes will bring Southeastern Seminary in line with three other Southern Baptist ministerial colleges which already are taking Negro students. Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex., and Golden Gate Seminary in Los Angeles.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) FOREST CITY — Police have charged a Rutherford County man with murder in the stab-death of a Forest City man early Sunday. Two other men were held as accessories. Charged with the slaying of James Quarles, who died en route to a hospital, was Sam Hines. Sheriff Vance Wilkins said Quarles was stabbed through the heart. Held on charges of aiding and abetting in murder were Harvey Miller and Zebby Hines, both of Rutherford County. Wilkins said the stabbing climaxed a feud among a group which started more than a week ago.

HELD IN CUTTING

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) RALEIGH—A Raleigh man suffered a bad cut on his arm late Saturday night, police reported. The condition of Hole Miller, 37, of 524 E. Davis St., was reported Saturday night to be too poor for police to question him after the slashing. Sunday Miller told officers that a Matthew Bridges had done the cutting. Bridges was arrested later Sunday and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. The nerves and muscles in the man's forearm were allegedly slashed. He is being treated at St. Agnes Hospital.

COMMAND RESPECT

These were the words or some of the words used by the international newspaper, "The Christian Science Monitor" in describing the Prayer Pilgrimage made by some 30,000 or more Negroes to Washington, D. C. last May 17. This paper went on to say, "From here and there throughout the country come occasional reports of individual Negro boorishness, even violence — often provoked, no doubt, by personal insults or latent sense of group injustice. But thus far when American Negroes have taken considered action as a race and under their own leadership they command the respect of the nation." All of this brings us to the point of asking why is our leadership so reluctant about assuming real leadership and organize our people everywhere as the Rev. Martin Luther King has done in Atlanta. If this were done on a national scale not only would our efforts "command respect" they would achieve results.

WORTHWHILE

The Book Parade Club, an annual reading program of the Richard B. Harrison Library is a project that is really worthwhile. This reading program is designed not only to keep alive an interest in reading by school children during the summer months when the schools are not in session but also to help those who failed or have reading deficiencies to make up. Boys and girls from the third grade and up are eligible to participate in this reading project. The reading of and making reports on ten books entitles a participant to a certificate from the library. It is to be hoped that a large number of parents will see that their children take part in this worthwhile program.

Hampton Lists

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) HAMPTON, Va. — Additional course offerings have been arranged for the Hampton Institute summer session, starting Monday, June 17, according to Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, director of the session. These offerings include accounting, art, advanced composition, an introductory course in physical science and three more courses in secretarial sciences. The additional classes will meet student requests from those planning to attend the college's nine week summer term. Other courses available include those designed for students and teachers-in-service working towards a Master's degree in various fields of education and teaching. In addition, there are some 30 different offerings by regular faculty and visiting professors, for undergraduate students and teachers-in-service working toward the P.S. degree or for certification for teaching. An increasingly popular phase of the Hampton Institute summer session is the six weeks term, which also starts June 17, offering pre-college courses for high school graduates. In the past this college preparatory session has been attended by those seeking planned guidance toward college adjustment and success. The students in this program take preliminary studies of basic college subjects to effect a better command of these subjects and to achieve a more successful transition from high school.

She is said to have become so excited that she was not able to say whether a noise she heard was the firing of the gun or not. In another death, Mrs. Isabelle Hemphill Jones is charged with stabbing her husband with an ice pick through the left chest, Thursday night with such force that it entered his heart. Police reported that when they picked up Mrs. Jones she was suffering from injuries inflicted by Jones to such an extent that her jaw was wired up. He is alleged to have beat her earlier in the week and was to face the charges in the Cabarrus Domestic Relations Court.
