Elbb presents the trooper with the lieutenant's badge of authority. Governor Stratton said: "I am proud to announce this appointment. Lieutenant Patton thus becomes the first member of the colored race to be so honored." Lieutenant Patton, a Chicagoan, has been a member of the Illinois State Police since September 10, 1951. He was promoted from the ranks to sergeant on August 1, 1955. (ANP).

Dr. S. E. Duncan Honored By Committee Of State Workers

DURHAM — A committee of state employees, headed by Mrs. Ruth Lawrence Woodson, sponsored a luncheon in the Home Economics Building, North Carolina College, Tuesday morning, in honor of Dr. S. E. Duncan, former head of Negro high schools and new president of Livingstone College, Salisbury. The honoree was shared with Mrs. Duncan, former president of the North Carolina Teachers Association and a member of the Reidsville city school system for a number of years.

The committee was composed of college presidents, school principals, teachers, PTA heads, A-E-teachers and Home Economics teachers. Dr. Duncan was praised for the contribution he has made to the educational system of North Carolina and was assured of the unstinted support of all present as head of the A. M. E. Zion Institution.

Dr. Duncan thanked the persons present for having been able to serve them and the state of North Carolina to such an extent that he would be so honored. He hastened to point out that had it not been for the cooperating that he received from all of the people of North Carolina he would not have been able to have made the kind of record that has been attributed to him. He warned his hearers that the job was not complete and told them that North Carolina would not have done its full job until every citizen, regardless of race, received a full and equal education.

The committee presented the couple with a beautiful silver serving set. Mrs. Duncan thanked the committee and everyone who made the occasion possible and told them that she would continue as a crusader for a broader educational system in the state.

State College Answers

QUESTION: What is one way to raise the average yield of rats on my farm?

ANSWER: By studying the different varieties of seed available for planting. No variety has everything. The individual grower should consider the characteristics of each, and then decide which would be the most suitable for his farm. County agents have the information needed on the various varieties.

QUESTION: Does it pay to feed silage on a year-around basis?

ANSWER: Dairy specialists at N. C. State College say "yes."

They offer as proof the $3-cow herd at the college dairy farm. For the year ending June 30, the cows averaged 11,595 pounds of milk and 472 pounds of butterfat. The cows had quality silage available at all times. However, the amount consumed depended on the lushness of the pasture.

QUESTION: How does North Carolina now stand in the production of livestock?

ANSWER: The state now stands 19th in national ratings. In 1948 North Carolina ranked 20th among the states in livestock income.

It will soon be time to think about storing some of the vegetable crops by using whatever facilities are available in or around the home. We will only give consideration to those crops whose temperatures and humidity requirements are not exacting.

Dry Beans—As soon as pods are mature and dry, shell and store in bags hung in a cool, dry, well ventilated place. If the beans are to be kept for long periods of time, put them in jars and add a few drops of carbon bisulphide to each jar. This should control weevils and will not injure the beans or cause undesirable flavor changes. Dry lima beans, black-eyed peas and soy beans be stored in the same manner.

Late Cabbage—There are several methods of storing this crop but perhaps the simplest is to cover with soil. Pull entire plant out by the roots, place head down and cover with soil. Provide good drainage around the mound of dirt.

Onions—The onions must be sound, mature and thoroughly dry. Baskets, crates or loosely woven bags may be used for storing. Store in a dry, well ventilated place such as an attic or unheated room.

Pumpkins and Squashes—Well matured pumpkins and squashes may be kept in dry, well ventilated cellars or in the basement of the house near the furnace. Baskets or hamper may be used but single layers on shelves is best. Late maturing varieties, to be kept for long periods of time, should be held at a temperature of about 50 degrees F.

Tomatoes—Your tomato season can be extended about a month by properly handling the fruits. One method is to pull the entire plant out by the roots and hang in a basement, or some other location, where the temperature will not go below 55 degrees F. You must, of course, do this before frost occurs in the fall.

Another method is to store the tomatoes in shallow trays. Tomatoes from weak, declining plants are more likely to be inferior in quality than those from healthy, vigorous plants.

CHICKEN IS TOPS FOR SUMMER EATING — Chicken is an important summer food because of its high food value. A quarter pound of meat will supply more than one-half of the daily protein requirement of an adult man or woman. Why not plan to have broiler-fryers often this summer, remembering these easy rules for care of uncooked chicken:

1. Keep chicken frozen until ready to use — allowing sufficient time for thawing before cooking.
2. Wrap fresh chicken loosely in aluminum foil or moisture-proof paper and refrigerate.

Consider the host of things that can be done with the broiler-fryers. They can be roasted, broiled, barbecued, fried or rollerfried. So you can see that broiler-fryers really are a convenience food, and are even more so during the summer months.

On a hot summer evening you may want to set the table outdoors and have a chicken barbecue, or plan a cool and easy main-dish chicken-salad luncheon. Fried chicken is done in a jiffy. Roast chicken with stuffing is a gala meal. And, don't forget the eating delight of a cold, sliced chicken sandwich.

QUICKLY — MADE SALAD DRESSING — For a quickly made Russian dressing, mix 1-2 cup chili sauce with 1 cup mayonnaise. A little chopped pimento, vinegar or lemon juice, or pickles relish may be added. Then, for Thousand Island dressing, add a diced hard-cooked egg to this dressing.

was up $11 million from January to May 1952 over the same period a year ago. Crop income decreased $14 million during the same period however.

"THAT OTHERS MIGHT BE FREE" — The Rev. J. A. Mehane, Tarboro fraternal leader, and Mrs. A. H. Harren, Rocky Mount, N. C. teacher, worship at the shrine of John Brown's Fort on the campus of Storer College, Harpers Ferry, West Virginia. Hundreds of tourists visit this and other pre-Civil War memorials in the town of Harpers Ferry, where 35,000 soldiers were either killed or captured in one day in what has been called the greatest battle of the Civil War. William L. Dawson, Noted Conductor, Will Direct Choir Of Fisk University

NASHVILLE — (ANP) — Famed conductor William L. Dawson this week received congratulations from friends all over the country, when it was learned he had been chosen to direct the famous Fisk university choir.

Dr. Stephen J. Wright, Fisk university president, made the announcement.

Dawson, for years, headed the music department of Tuskegee Institute. He will join the Fisk staff in September, devoting his time exclusively to the choir.

HONORED BY TUSKEGEE

World renowned as a musician, Dawson resigned his Tuskegee post in 1955, and a year later was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Music by the school, during its Diamond Jubilee anniversary celebration.

The U. S. State department sent Dawson to Spain in 1956 for a three-month tour to conduct various choral groups of that country. A highlight of that tour was a special concert with the famous Orfeon Donostiarra of San Sebastian in the basilica at Loyola, as a part of the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the death of St. Ignacio founder of the Company of Jesus.

Since his return to the U. S., he has served as guest conductor of the 200-voice all-state choir at the annual conference of the New York State school music association in Syracuse. He returned to New York in 1957 as guest conductor of the fourth annual Festival of Instrumental music in Schenectady.
