Negroes May Join London Police Force

LONDON, England — There is a possibility that colored men may soon be seen in police uniform in London. This is likely to happen first in the areas of Paddington and Notting Hill, areas which have a large concentration of colored people and in which the recent riots took place.

The Paddington Police Chief has started a drive to recruit urgently needed Special Constables, but the campaign has not been very successful.

New Scotland Yard has said that colored men and women citizens can apply to become Special Constables in the Metropolitan Police Area.

The Police Chiefs do not want to be accused of trying to build up a bias but it is a known fact that this colored force of Special Constables is one of the recommendations most strongly urged by the Welfare Organizations in this country. The Superintendent in charge of recruiting said: "I have been and my answer is that regulations which if colored men can apply do not bar them from applying."

A Home Office spokesman said: "There is nothing in the regulations to exclude any British citizen joining the Police, providing he satisfies other requirements. The Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police would decide if the man was suitable."

It has not been disclosed whether or not any colored man has applied as a result of this and if so, if he is accepted or rejected.

The general belief is that the response from colored people will be very limited indeed.
