Say Death Caused By Head Injury

Was the death of 23-year-old Eugene Banks accidental, or was it murder? This is the question Raleigh police are asking as they attempt to solve the man's mysterious death.

Banks was found lying dead on his front porch at 205 1-3 Cuba St., early Sunday by a neighbor. Police said an autopsy showed he died of a fractured skull.

Mrs. Ethel Whitaker of 1004 Manly St. who found the man's body, told The CAROLINIAN he was lying on his back when she and her husband saw him and went to offer aid.

"His shoes were off and his house key was lying on the porch near his hand... there was blood on the porch and it looked like he had been feasting at the mouth," she described the scene.

Mrs. Whitaker expressed belief that foul play might have been involved in the death. She said she had seen him earlier on Saturday and he appeared to be in perfect condition.

Banks, a former serviceman, was employed at a local title company.

Thomas Jackson Lewis Family, 8

Hyde Terrace, was selected as one of the families of year Tuesday. The Lewises have five children, Kary, 16; Thomas, 14; Monica, 13; Ronald, 11 and Dana. Two of the children go to Ligon, one to Lucille Hunter and two to Crosby-Garfield. This means that the mother and father are members of three Parent Teachers Associations.
