

Raleigh Matron Buried

Death is the gate of endless joy and yet we dread to enter there could be clearly discerned at the First Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon when Rev. C. W. Ward enounced the last sad rites for Mrs. Ada Mae Rice Jarnigan, prominent in religious, educational, literary and community life.

From the time that the world flashed throughout the state that she had succumbed at Wake Memorial Hospital, Saturday night, after having been stricken at the Sir Walter Hotel, a few days previously, where she was attending a meeting, until she was laid to rest in National Cemetery, there had been a pall of sadness, hovering over Raleigh and environs.

MRS. ADA M. JARNIGAN

Her body was taken to University Chapel, Shaw University at 12 Noon, where colleagues, students and other persons close to Shaw, to which she was so devoted, found an opportunity to view it. There were those who pictured her leaving as a ship setting out for another port, knowing exactly where it was going to dock and what those on the other shore would say when the cargo reached there.

At 3 p. m., the body was carried to First Baptist Church and sorrowing hears and saddened countenances took the long last look. Knowing her devotion to duty and her consecration to service there were few who left the bier with dry eyes. Neither the station in life nor the dignity of office could hide the sorrow that pervaded the auditorium.

Promptly at four, the funeral procession entered the church. Dr. F. H. Johnson read the scripture

AME Zion Confab Protests

PITTSBORO — The annual meeting of the District Conference, Durham District A.M.E. Zion Church composed of churches in Chatham, Durham, and Orange counties which closed at Union Grove Church recently, implored both President Kennedy and his brother, Robert, to intervene in the growing tide of barbarism that is sweeping the South.

The unwarranted attacks on Negroes, the burning of churches, the jailing of persons who attempt to enter Howard Johnson's restaurants, and the shooting of two girls for their interest in registering and voting were termed as not only unchristian, but inhuman. The confab was highly critical of the way many of the law enforcement agencies

Johnston County Man Hunt Still On For Earl Terry

SMITHFIELD — Scotland Yards has a reputation for getting its man and Johnny Dollar can always track down his felon but according to Johnston County deputy sheriffs, Lathan Earl Morgan, alias Lathan Earl Terry, has successfully eluded them since Friday night.

He is wanted in connection with the shooting of an 18 year old white boy, Dewett Johnson, on a rural road, near Benson, Friday night. The report reads like a real western and one that fitted crime against love-making. It is alleged

ODDS-ENDS

BY JAMES A. SHEPARD

"A good name is rather to be chosen than riches."

TO SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT For the past 5 years, Odds and Ends has been carried in The CAROLINIAN under the name of Robert G. Shepard. Robert George is actually a portion of the name of James A. Shepard, the full name being James Augustus Robert George Shepard.

It seems that there was a great desire to "honor" all the uncles, so in order to do so, all of these uncles names were given to the writer.

Robert G. Shepard was chosen as the author of Odds and Ends merely to give that column a special identity. However, in order to put to rest some false rumors that the writer was hiding behind the name

Highway Accidents Take Three Lives Near Fuquay

DEATH DEALING CAR—This 1962 Pontiac, owned by David Ballow, dealt death to two persons Monday when it struck a pickup truck, careened off highway 401 near Fuquay Springs and then tore into the tree shown in picture. Willie Richardson and Glenwood Arnold lost their lives and Ballow is in Wake Memorial Hospital. The three men were on their way to Ft. Bragg, where they worked as barbers. (UPI PHOTO).

Three Cars, Truck, Tree Figure In Death Of Three

FUQUAY SPRINGS — Thomas Lyon, brother of one of the three automobile accident victims, killed here Monday, told The CAROLINIAN, "That is the way brother was supposed to die." Thomas was weighted in sorrow as he attempted to tell how his brother met his death. He could hardly hold back the tears because it brought the death of another brother, killed about three years ago, in the same manner, back in focus.

Tragedy struck this farming section Monday morning and when the grind of car wheels ended, the failure of some one to respect the rights of others had been manifested, three people were dead and seven others injured.

Willie Richardson, 21 and Glenwood Arnold, 32, were found dead after a 1962 Pontiac careened off of U. S. 401 about one mile south of here, Monday morning about 10:30, after striking a pickup truck. David Bailey, the owner of the fatal car, was said to be driving, and is now in Wake Memorial Hospital. The three men lived in this community and were reported to have been on their way to Fort Bragg where they worked as barbers.

Brewington's wife and their 15 year-old son were riding with him and had to be treated for injuries. They were sent home after the injuries were treated. One of the mules was also injured, but not too

Jelks was freed earlier on $10,000 bond, $5,000 for each charge.

Attorneys for Cox posted the $10,000 bond for the defamation charge and an additional $7,500 for

Ga. Mayor Leads Campaign

DAWSON, Ga. — Some of the white citizens of this trouble-ridden community are out to prove that something good can come out of Nazareth and they have decided to rebuild the church burned by arsonists here recently.

Mayor Carl Rountree said white people of Dawson and Terrell Co. would rebuild High Hope Baptist Church about three miles north of Dawson. The church was destroyed Monday.

"I'm going to serve as chairman of a committee to accept contributions for rebuilding," Rountree said.

"We feel that since this particular church was burned by people who live in Dawson and Terrell County, it's our job to do this."

Three white men and a 16-year-old white youth, all of Terrell Co., were jailed in Dawson after they confessed to setting the fire, the FBI said.

The mayor said white residents don't believe this incident is connected with the burning of two Negro churches at nearby Sasser more than a week ago.

Minister Is Found Dead

WADESBORO — The body of Rev. Henderson A. McFadden, 80, Rock Hill, S. C., which was found near Ansonville Tuesday, is causing local police officers much concern.

He had last been seen in Rock Hill on Friday, Sept. 7. He left his home that day to attend a church conference at Mt. Zion Church on Highway 21 in Chester County.

Friends say he left the meeting at 10 p. m., headed back toward Rock Hill. But he never reached his home at 722 Clarinda Street.

Police in Lancaster believe they stopped the man on Saturday night, Sept. 8, in downtown Lancaster, during a routine license check. He handed them a metal license plate stamped "Rev. H. A. M."

Early the next morning, police said they found the same man walking the streets in a daze. They said he was almost incoherent when questioned.

Police in Rock Hill say the man has no criminal record, was not active in desegregation agitation and was not known to be in any trouble.

SHAW FACULTY TOLD OF NEEDS

"We cannot be satisfied with education that meets the needs of only our own people," said Dr. I. E. Ready, who is Director of Curriculum Study, State Board of Education, further stated that we have traditionally thought of education itself as universal education.

Very few people live in today's world who will not at some time need retraining in new ways of making a living in addition to vocational needs, the needs for understanding and promoting social welfare understanding the people of the world

RELAXING BEFORE ORDEAL — James H. Meredith, who was ordered by Justice Hugo Black to be enrolled in Mississippi's State University, last week, is shown with his wife and son. He left the state and went to Memphis, Tenn., to be with friends before he attempts to enroll at the school Thursday. He has stated that he expects trouble but thinks that his experience in the service of his country will enable him to endure hardship like a soldier. (UPI PHOTO).

Meredith Ready To Enter Mississippi Without Fear

MEMPHIS — "I don't think I'll need any federal marshals. I believe Mississippi will protect its citizens."

That was James H. Meredith's reaction when he was informed that U. S. marshals would accompany him on his attempt to enroll at the University of Mississippi this week.

The 39-year-old Air Force veteran is expected to try to register Thursday at the all-white institution located in the pine-studded hills of north Mississippi, about 80 miles south of here.

Meredith, outwardly calm, and untroubled by the racial stormcloud over his head, waved aside questions about whether he might be putting himself in danger. "If I went around worrying about that I'd be living a pretty miserable life," he said. "I don't worry about me."

Meredith answered questions cautiously, apparently not wanting to say anything which would touch off new fireworks in his home state. He even spoke kindly of Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett. "He's doing what he feels is his duty," said Meredith.

Horton's Condition Serious

The severe beating given Wayland Horton, Raleigh City Recreation employee is causing much concern in the city. The beating is said to have been inflicted by four teenagers late Saturday night or early Sunday morning at the corner of East Avenue and Worth Street.

Investigating officers report that when they answered the call they found Horton about 15 ft. from his car, lying on the ground. The lights were burning on the car and the engine was running. They say he had a considerable amount of blood. He was sent to Wake Memorial Hospital and was found to be in serious condition.

An examination revealed that he had been beaten severely on the head and in the face. It was reported that his jaw and nose had been broken. He also is believed to have suffered broken ribs due to having been kicked in the side.

Officers who visited him in the hospital said that he was in such bad condition that he was unable to talk and could only write yes and no answers to questions they asked him.

The CAROLINIAN learned that his face and head were swollen almost beyond recognition, due to the beating. His condition was quoted as fair at press time, but persons who visited him in the hospital said that he was still in a bad condition.

Officers are trying to run down a lead that he had chastized some teen-age boys, in Chavis Park, prior to the beating, for using profane language. They have not been able to make any arrests, in the case. Horton has not been able to name his attackers. The officers hope to obtain their names as soon as the victim is able to talk with some coherence.

Negro schools in Mississippi do "an excellent job," he said, but it was "common knowledge" they were not as good as white schools. Meredith said he had applied for a room in one of the dormitories at the university but did not plan to take a role in the campus social life. "I don't expect anybody to send me a letter inviting me to join any fraternities," he said.

Huge Protest Meeting Is Slated For Iredell Sunday

STATE WIDE PROTEST MEETING AT STATESVILLE

Negroes from all over North Carolina have been invited to attend a state wide protest mass meeting in Statesville on Saturday, Sept. 22 beginning at 10 a. m.

Describing the present situation in Statesville as "another Albany, Ga.", leaders of the planned protest demonstration say that, because of the news black out, the outside world is not aware of the actual brutality, and the outright denial to Negroes in Statesville of these elementary constitutional rights.

The Saturday mass meeting will be held in the St. John Baptist Church under the auspices of the Statesville Civic Association.

The stated purpose of this meeting is to let the people in North Carolina and the world see and hear what is now going on in this Iredell County segregation stronghold.

According to the leaders of the protest, here are a few of the highlights of the "Statesville Story":

(1) Iredell County was one of the 2 western North Carolina counties carried by segregationist I. Beverly Lake during the last gubernatorial race.

(2) The States Record and Landmark, the local newspaper is edited by a Mr. Huskins who uses his front page editorial "Down in Iredell" to denounce the Negroes desire for first class citizenship.

(3) Statesville is the home of the Rev. James Dees, president and organizer of the States' Righters, Inc. a rabid segregationist group. (4) More than 30 persons, Negro and white have recently been arrested.

Sitting with his face buried in his hands, Terry looked around
