TOP 1963 FARM AND COMMUNITY AWARDS—The farm family of the year and "the community of the year" in South Carolina were honored last week at State College Orangeburg. At top, the honored family, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hough and their two children Frank and Bob (center) of Darlington receive a plaque from G. L. Twitty, president of the State's Community Development Association. Looking on are Mrs. Wilhelmina F. Johnson, their home demonstration agent; and L. A. Feltz, special assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture and awards speaker; and at extreme right, E. N. Williams, assistant State Extension agent; and the Hough's County agent, E. C. Smith. Middle photo shows recipients of first-place John P. Burgess community near Greenville receiving their plaque and $250 check from T. J. Crawford (left) State College public relations director. Others, left to right, are: the Rev. W. A. Harrison, W. C. Brock, president of the community organization; Mrs. Ella B. Brown, Mrs. Odell Owsley, and F. D. Garrett and Miss Sara E. McDuffy, the community's county farm and home demonstration agents. Bottom: Two of the seven homes built during the year in the top community. Associate County Agent F. D. Garrett is giving Mrs. Billy Young and her son Edward some pointers on growing shrubbery. The other home was built by her brother-in-law and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Young. Both brothers work at a cotton mill and raise hogs on the side. The Clemson College Extension Service and South Carolina Rural Electric Cooperative sponsor the program. (USDA PHOTOS).

Shaw University Hosts County 4-H Meeting

More than 250 Wake County 4-H Club members and adult community 4-H leaders attended the Annual County-wide 4H Achievement Program at Shaw University, Dec. 8. Presiding over the program was Herbert Sneed, Jr., of Fuquay Springs, with Judy Cannady of Millbrook as song leader and Floya Cotton of Apex at the piano. Greetings were brought by John W. Winters, Raleigh city councilman. The main address was delivered by Dr. Nelson H. Harris, interim president of Shaw. "We are living in a great age and we are going to need more and more great men and women," said Dr. Harris. "When you take part in worthwhile activities it stimulates you to want to continue on in education," he said.

Demonstrations given on the program were Treating Cotton Seeds by Thaddeus and Michael Hodge and Save With Milk by Claudette Hodge of Riley Hill. Other members taking part on the program were Edward Chavis, Jeffreys Grove; Phyllis Debnam, Shotwell; Brenda Hill, Khamkatie; Joe Ella Walden, Friendship; Beale Ashbury, Jr., New Bethel. Sixty-five certificates of merit, medals and plaques were awarded 4-H members for having done outstanding project work. Wake Extension Agents directing the 4-H movement are W. C. Davenport, Mrs. Mary B. Graham, M. W. Ashew and Mrs. N. P. Wimberley.

Bennett To Give Yule Concert

GREENSBORO—The annual candlelight Christmas concert by the Bennett College Choir, directed by Miss Charlotte Alston, will be presented at 7 p. m., Sunday, December 16, in Pfeiffer Chapel. From Handel's "The Messiah," the group will sing the air and chorus, "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion" and the recitative, "Behold! A Virgin Shall Conceive, Verdi's "Hymn to the Virgin," and "Make We Joy," by Friedell. A group of solos will be heard, along with a special arrangement of the traditional "Silent Night" by Miss Alston. The quartet will sing two numbers - "Coveney Carol" and "Rock De Cradle, Mary" and Mrs. Bernice Otudeka, soprano, will sing "O Holy Night." Accompanist Clarence E. Whitesman will play four organ pieces, among them Bach's "In Duet Jubilo" and "Choral Prelude on 'Grenada'" by Rowley. By 1963, America will need an estimated $1 billion acres less cropland than the 485 million acres in 1959. Governmentally, all-European education schools throughout Europe now admit pupils of all races to classes.
