

DEATH CLAIMS A BELOVED PASTOR

REV. J. W. JONES

The curtain was pulled on the life of one of Raleigh's most beloved citizens Wednesday afternoon in Wake Memorial Hospital when Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor beloved, preacher extra ordinary and commoner par excellent, died.

Rev. Jones was born in Wilson Mills, August 15, 1881. He is said to have only received a meager education in the public schools of Johnston County, but few people had more ability to get along with people, more devotion to service and a higher regard for the rights of others than "Little Johnny" Jones.

He was licensed to preach in 1909 and thus began a ministry that took him all over the country. His sermons were thought provoking, his motives high and his discourse persuasive. He made annual visits to White Plains, New York, to visit his children, but was always called upon to preach. It was on one of these visits, a few years ago, that he was stricken and all Raleigh went in prayer for his recovery.

He was known throughout the Raleigh area as a preacher of Sunday-schools. He often told audiences that his funeral sermons were not for the deceased, but admonitions to those left behind.

His pastorate took him in many of the leading Baptist churches in the rural section of North Carolina. He was said to have been highly successful at all of them. His crowning and last pastorate was at Fayetteville Street Baptist. Under his administration, at this church, not only the membership rose from approximately 90 to over 1,000, but it became one of the spiritual havens of the city.

The officer is said to have reported that he was told by Speed that his car straddled out of control, crossed the center line and crashed broadside into the front of the panel truck which was going south.

Bars Down According To Report

Just as the CAROLINIAN went to press Victor Bell, chairman, Bi-racial Committee released a statement that many agencies, in addition, had reached the conclusion that discrimination, in any event, due to race or color could no longer exist here.

The committee has the following report:

"At present in Raleigh, numerous business establishments have or are adopting non-discriminatory policies in recreation, food service, entertainment and employment. Let the tendency not be destroyed by..."

This is a group scene in one of the schools in Washington, D. C. Leaders of both races are said to have warned that racial tensions could be a "time bomb" unless they are relieved. This is believed due to the fact that 95 per cent of the school population is Negro. National unrest could aggravate this imbalance.

Durham Mayor Follows Through On Promise

DURHAM — Persons who supported Mayor Garbaruk are saying that he is one elected official who paid off his campaign promise posts haste.

He was recently elected to head the city and upon taking office asked that he might be given an opportunity to work out a satisfactory solution to the ills that beset the city.

His first step was to appoint the man he selected for the post, Watts Carr, Jr., the head of an Interim Committee, charged with meeting the city's racial problems. The result is that Durham is perhaps the most integrated city in the south.

The most significant advances were reported by George Watts Hill, chairman of the subcommittee dealing with hotels, motels and restaurants.

Hill opened his remarks with the announcement that the Jack Tar Hotel has desegregated. Then he

Integration Roundup

BY ALEXANDER BARNES

Even though Raleigh was the first city in North Carolina to set up a bi-racial committee and it was believed "as went the capital so went the state" it is far behind in announcements and other particulars pertaining to full participation.

Victor Bell, chairman, Bi-racial Committee, gave out the following statement Wednesday morning: "Significant progress has and is being made in all areas, designated by the Citizens Coordinating Committee."

In Durham, a voluntary step was taken and hotels, motels and many of the restaurants lowered the barriers and Negroes are being admitted without and incident whatever. Thirty one retail businesses and several commercial and industrial establishments made announcements that they would institute or continue practices of hiring and promoting workers on the basis of merit, rather than race.

In the little eastern town of Arden, located in the real farm belt, a restaurant owner is said to have opened the front door and invited all persons, regardless of race or color. It is reported that everything went off nicely. The owner, however, is said to have told some of her regular Negro customers, who had been going to the back door and getting service on credit, until Saturday, that all service thru the front door was cash.

Action is being seen in Greenville, Farmville and many other eastern towns. It has been reliably reported that Howard Johnson places have long since been available to Negro tourists at Goldsboro, Wilson and Fayetteville.

Raleigh, like many other college towns, was believed to be un-

FBI Seeks Georgia Fugitive

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is earnestly asking the general public to aid in the arrest of John B. Everhart, alias John B. Eberhart; alias Harold Everhart and alias James B. Everhart "Slick."

Everhart was placed on the list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." He is being hunted for unlawful flight to avoid confinement for murder. He is classed as ruthless and a dangerous killer, who has vowed that he will not be taken alive.

The FBI has reason to believe that he could be passing for a preacher, due to the fact that he spends much of his time sketching and drawing Biblical subjects. They also figure that he has a "crush" on women.

He is said to have killed a man, with whom he engaged in an argument over a girl friend in Athens.

POPE JOHN XXIII

THE CAROLINIAN joins the multitude of people of all stations and all nations in mourning the passing of Pope John XXIII, a man, though holding one of the highest positions that a mortal can hold, in this world, never forgot his modest beginnings and always had a deep concern for human values.

The passing of this great man, leaves a void that will be hard to fill. His great desire for peace and his continued work toward this end, will endear his memory to all peoples both Catholic and Protestant.

Men of all creeds and from all walks of life will remember him for his goodness, his respect for human values, his sense of justice and fairplay. His "Pacem In Terris" given, to the world, in his recent encyclical included all men and certainly proved his interest in humanity and his respect and belief in the dignity of the individual.

Pope John XXIII is gone from this world, but he has left with us his imprint. He was a mild mannered man, yet with a firm determination, as shown in his desire to bring to pass better relations between all men of good will. He had a deep sense of appreciation and concern for people and because of this he was loved by all.

It is the opinion of several Negro leaders that the Committee is
