

SANFORD CALLS FOR STATE LEVEL MEET

Chief Executive Acts To Calm Racial Storm

By ALEXANDER BARNES

There are mixed emotions over Governor Terry Sanford's edict that mass demonstrations will not be tolerated any longer in the state. There are those who agree with the chief executive that there should be no more bloodshed and it is time for positive negotiations to take the place of mass demonstrations.

The governor's announcement that the demonstrators had indelibly planted their case before the powers-that-be and that it was time for everyone involved to take a serious look at the case, brought hope and aspirations.

There were those who agreed with Sanford that perhaps the demonstrations had gone a bit too far, in that there had been the lying-down tactic that required body contact and that such contact tended to incite rash action and invited violence, by both the demonstrators and the person or persons against whom the demonstrations were being aimed.

The naming of former Ambassador Cephas Waynick to represent the administration, in dealing with the situation brought a ray of hope to those who would use non-violent means to gain the desired goal. The fact that Mr. Waynick worked out a solution for the city of High Point, that is the pride of all concerned, was a relief to those who felt that they were losing in the battle for civil rights.

There were also those who felt that the governor meant he would deal with all persons who defied his order to cease and desist. There were those who felt that persons who would throw eggs, make jeers and even snarl at people, who insisted on equal opportunities for all persons, regardless of race, creed or color, would feel the weight of the governor's statement that he would take "whatever steps are necessary to preserve the peace."

Incidents that have been happening throughout the nation from Boston to Alabama and from Chicago to New York, are believed to have been taken into consideration by the chief executive and was the cause for his taking over the situation and making the pro-

Jailers And Police Sexually Abuse Women Picketers

U.S. Moves To Stop Further Violence

Females Assaulted In Jail

NEW YORK (ANP) — Scores of young women, white and Negro, arrested for participating in civil rights demonstrations have been subjected to sexual abuse and personal indignities in southern jails, it was disclosed here last week.

Complaints disclose that jailers and police have forced some to strip naked and undergo crude and degrading physical examinations. Others have been fondled and even raped under various pretexts. The acts have been committed both to humiliate the women and to satisfy the lusts of the jail attendants.

The presidents of the National council of Negro Women and the Delta Sigma Theta sorority have called upon the Justice Department to investigate charges.

The demand for the probe and action to stop the sexual abuses was made after the three victims related their shocking experiences to representatives of the two organizations at a secret meeting at an undisclosed Virginia town.

The NCNW is also calling for a nationwide protest against the prison abuses and police brutality.

Demanding the probe and making the disclosures were Mrs. Dorothy Height, NCNW president and Dr. Jeanne Noble, Delta president. They also announced the formation of a Youth Emergency Fund, headed by entertainer Lena Horne, to offer help and make on-the-spot visits to Southern prisons where young Negro women are being held.

The three young women and other victims of the sexual abuses were arrested in racial demonstrations in Jackson, the joint report from the NCNW and the Delta Sorority stated.

In the case of the white girl, the report stated, she was also forced to strip naked and stand before the male prisoners in the jail yard. There were reports of other such incidents, it was stated.

Dr. Noble said she was told that young women arrested in civil rights demonstrations are subjected to indecent examinations upon entering. Discussing the examinations, Dr. Noble remarked:

She added: "As a woman, I can think of no greater indignity than rape . . . or sexual exposure . . . or unsanitary conditions. For example,

DON'T LET HIM DIE IN VAIN — Mrs. Medgar Evers, widow of the slain civil rights leader, tells a Jackson, Miss., audience that they should join forces and see that his death was not in vain.

National Forces To Motivate

FAYETTEVILLE — The city's restaurant association voted Monday to begin a 60-day desegregation test period if Negroes will agree to end demonstrations.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Mayor Ralph Kelly said Monday a bi-racial committee was "busy working for a peaceful and equitable solution to race relations" and some voluntary desegregation was expected soon.

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Around 800 Negroes marched to a segregated restaurant Monday night but failed to gain admission. Savannah police reinforced by 50 state troopers, kept the demonstration orderly and later made the Negroes disperse.

NEW YORK — Two white policemen were injured in a racial brawl in Harlem Monday night following a civil rights meeting. Po-

Evers Killed Because Of His Fight Against Violence And Hate

JACKSON, MISS. (ANP) — The assassination last week of Medgar Wiley Evers came just as he had succeeded in channeling the smoldering discontent of Mississippi Negroes into a weapon of effective mass protest. Considering the odds it had not been an easy job.

The 37 year old native born and educated Mississippian was the tragic victim of the two things against which he fought all of his adult life — violence and racial discrimination.

He abhorred violence, though he once admitted having had violent thoughts of his own as a young man. The Jackson civil rights campaign that he was leading at the time of his murder was based on the non-violent technique popularized by Dr. Martin Luther King.

But his dislike of violence did not make him immune to the violence of others. He had been pistol whipped, jailed and his home bombed. One of his indelible memories was the lynching of a friend of his father's. Evers was 14 at the time.

On another occasion, in 1950, Evers was visiting a cousin when a judge ruled against a Negro in a civil rights case. Sitting in the kitchen of his cousin's house, Evers wrote a statement condemning the decision and called the news services. When the statement appeared in print, he was arrested, fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail for contempt of court. The conviction was reversed by the Mississippi Supreme Court.

His latest arrest was on June 1.

Gov't Team Guarantees Fair Play

In a press interview held by James Wilson, Deputy Director of the Atlanta Region, the United States Civil Service Commission announced details of its plan to make certain that full opportunity is given all citizens of the Raleigh-Durham area to compete for Federal positions.

A team of the commission's representatives headed by Phillip E. Bell will remain in Raleigh and Durham to make further studies of employment practices and to assure that equal employment opportunity is provided for all regardless of race.

When asked by a representative of The CAROLINIAN whether there is actually any discrimination in employing persons in this area, Mr. Wilson told the reporter that

Rev. Perry Charged In Fraud

FAYETTEVILLE — There is an old campaign cry, heard on election day, "Vote early and often." According to the FBI the Rev. Charles E. Perry, pastor-school principal, voted twice on election day, 1962 and 1961.

The Rev. Perry is said to have voted at Cross Precinct No. 2 here, and at Precinct No. 2 in Roseboro. It was not ascertained as to how the double vote came upon the knowledge that he was voting in two places, however, they arrested him and he is now free under a $4,000.00 bond.

Rev. Perry is quite active in Baptist church circles. He has pastored a thriving church, located on Wilmington Road, for a number of years. The physical plant has been greatly improved and the church is said to wield a great influence in the community.

His work in educational circles is attested to the fact that he is

Former Livingstone Prexy Buried In Salisbury Mon.

SALISBURY — In a fitting ceremony, characteristic of his life Dr. W. J. Trent, Sr., was funeralized from the Varick Memorial Auditorium, on the campus of Livingstone College, Monday afternoon.

The rites were conducted by the Rev. Herman Anderson, Bishop H. B. Shaw and Raymond L. Jones assisted. Dr. R. E. Clement delivered the prayer.

Bishop W. J. Walls, with simple words, told of the contribution that he made to the world, with emphasis on young people. He pictured him as one who really deserved the scriptural saying "Well Done."

Dr. Trent was president emeritus of Livingstone College, having been given this honor after having served as president, from 1925 to 1957.

Dr. Trent was born in Charlotte, December 30, 1873. After completing his work in the public school system, he entered Livingstone College from which he graduated as Valedictorian of his class in 1898.

Citizens Committee Take Firm Stand On Race Issue

DUNN — The Citizens Coordinating Committee of Dunn issued a forthright pronouncement this week, in which they made it clear that they wanted equal opportunity to operate within the framework of the total community life of the town and community.

The pronouncement was as follows:

"We, the members of the Coordinating Committee of Dunn, hereby give notice that we, as Negro citizens, deem ourselves a part of the general public and a part of the general licensing authority of this city and state and that we will henceforth respond to and accept the invitations to the public of all licensed businesses in Dunn and elsewhere in the Dunn vicinity.

We further give notice that we will encourage all Negroes in Dunn and all Negro visitors in Dunn and all other people, to do likewise and to properly seek such services as licensed businesses are extending to the public and upon the same terms and conditions that such services are extended to others.

Finally, we hereby give notice that we will fully exercise the right to go where-so-ever services and accommodations are offered to the public by licensed businesses.

The purposes of these declarations are to dispel any notion that we either recognize or accept the fiction that the Negro citizen has a place separate for or less than that of other American citizens.

The committee further stipulates that the Negro citizenry of this community will not be satisfied until opportunities are provided for full and complete integration into the total life of this community on the part of all people, without regard to race, creed or color. We urge, therefore, that a beginning be made immediately to bring this about.

WEATHER

Cleman Cephas is shown in front of 200 demonstrators in Cambridge, Md. It can be clearly seen that his head is bloody but still unbowed. Cephas was injured by a group of white youths who protested the demonstrations. His uncle, William Cephas, is carrying "Old Glory."

This is the home of Medgar Evers, field secretary of the NAACP, in Mississippi, who was murdered by a sniper, as he stepped out of his car (rear), June 12, in Jackson, Miss.

Jackson, Mississippi officers are demonstrating how rapid they can be sent that regardless to who it might be, they are intent on keeping civilization out of the state. They are carrying John Salter, white teacher at nearby Tougaloo College, to the paddy wagon, after he had been beaten by members of their group, for participating in a freedom demonstration.

Shown here are some of the 1200 demonstrators who sat down in the streets of Greensboro and sang and clapped, while police formed a human cordon around them. 300 were arrested.

This unidentified white girl is comforting a member of the NAACP who is said to have been injured at 135th Street and Lenox Avenue, New York City, where a new hospital is being built. The skirmish is said to have resulted from the fact that demonstrators demanded that 35 per cent of the workers, on the job, be Negro or Puerto Rican.

Demonstrators at the State House in Columbus, Ohio blocked the entrance to the House chambers. Here, Sgt-at-Arms Harry Corkwell forces his way through the praying group. He called the fire marshal to remove the supplicants, but later decided to let them stay as long as they wanted. They are seeking passage of the Fair Housing Bill. (ALL ABOVE ARE UPI PHOTOS).

Unpopular Illegitimacy Bill Killed By State House

News that the North Carolina House of representatives killed a bill to curb increasing illegitimacy rate in the state was killed here last week, was met with mixed emotions by Negro leaders here.

Under this bill, the mothers of children born out of wedlock would lose custody of the children, if they refused to be rehabilitated by the welfare boards when they have given birth to one illegitimate child. The House bill would have
