

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

For more than two months, a gang of four vicious hoodlums has been terrorizing a certain district, robbing and wantonly beating up some of their victims. And now just a few days ago, your good friend, Detective Jim Pierce, has been ruthlessly shot to death by one of the gang.

The vast network of the police has finally succeeded in rounding up and bringing in the four hoodlums, and difficult though it has been to break through the sullen defiance of the four hardened criminals, you have managed to gather the following information:

Their names are Charley Alken, Woody Briggs, Pat Callahan, and Hank Dunn. One of the four is a great man with a switch-blade knife and has never been known to use any other weapon. Briggs' uncle is a well-known professional gambler and is married to the sister of Detective Pierce's killer. Briggs and the switch-blade man are both redheads. Charley Alken and the switch-blade carrier recently prevailed upon Hank Dunn to devote himself exclusively to the driving of the gang's getaway car, despite a few mild objections from the killer.

The killer and the switch-blade specialist have been close friends for several years. A week ago, Hank Dunn and the killer collaborated on a robbery of their own, unknown to and against the rules of the gang.

Now, after studying these notes you have gathered, can you determine which of the four men killed Detective Jim Pierce?

SOLUTION

The knife-carrier is not the killer, since Detective Pierce was shot. Briggs is not the knife-carrier nor the killer. Alken is not the knife-carrier, Dunn is not the knife-carrier nor the killer, and since Alken is not the knife-carrier, Charley Alken must be the killer.

Sentenced Invoked In Tax Case

GREENSBORO — Raleigh and Greensboro Attorney Herman LeRoy Taylor, Sr., began serving a two-year prison sentence Tuesday after Judge Edwin M. Stanley ruled in U. S. Middle District Court at Greensboro that Taylor had "deliberately and willfully" violated terms of his probation, issued earlier in two income tax charges.

The noted civil rights attorney's probation was revoked early in 1963 when he could not pay the $20,000 in fines levied against him. Both the sentences and fines were imposed in 1961 after Taylor pleaded guilty to one charge of evasion and was found guilty by a jury of another.

He appealed to the U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Baltimore on claims the five-year probationary sentence should be revoked since he was unable to comply with the fines. This court ordered a hearing on Taylor's pauperism claims.

Judge Stanley reviewed Attorney Taylor's financial background Tuesday, taking special note of his home library, furnishings, expensive automobiles and his bank accounts.

The jurist stated: "It is apparent that the defendant, if he earnestly desired to do so, could have paid all or a substantial portion of his fines."

"He has a long and continuous history of totally disregarding his obligations as a citizen and taxpayer, and is a person interested in providing himself and his family the luxuries of life, even at the expense of defrauding the government. While enjoying a lucrative law practice, he has preferred to own his own numerous expensive automobiles rather than meet his obligations as a taxpayer," the judge concluded.

Judge Stanley also noted that Taylor has paid no tax on claims

Also Leon Penn, Jr., Arnold Ambers, Decatur W. Miller, Joyce Flippin, John Theys, Lloyd Jeffries, William P. Parks, Harlan Eugene Clark, Deborah Jean Sorrell, Alice Stella Clark, John Williams, Jr. and Henry L. Whitehead.

Leaders of the gigantic rally were proving themselves quite successful at keeping the demonstrators orderly.

The demonstrators, including thousands of white civil rights supporters, poured into town aboard 20 special trains, nearly 700 chartered buses, nine special plane flights and thousands of cars.

First of the special trains rolled into cavernous union station before 7 a. m. Buses waited to take their more than 26,000 passengers to the Washington Monument grounds, staging area for the demonstration.

The first chartered bus to wheel into the city carried 38 hymn-singing, hand-clapping Negroes from Clarkdale, Miss.

The first of the special trains brought 535 persons from the Pittsburgh area. A spokesman said the group was about 80 per cent Negroes and 40 per cent whites. Another train from Cincinnati quickly followed.

A police helicopter reported that traffic leading to the city was light at 8 a. m. Later, Maryland state police reported traffic had become "heavier than usual" but with "no serious bottlenecks or tieups." At that hour the monument crowd totaled only about 3,000 persons, predominantly Negro.

At 9:30 a. m. Washington police estimated 22,000 demonstrators had arrived in the capital. Of the 10,500 were in the Washington Monument staging area.

SEE CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Leaders of the march called early on congressional leaders to make their plea for a strong civil rights bill. They got a friendly reception but no guarantees that Congress would be able to advance its timetable for action on the legislation.

Demonstration leaders had promised their best efforts to maintain order. Two hours before the scheduled march of eight-tenths of a mile from the monument to the Lincoln Memorial, police reported: No arrests, no violence, no incidents.

At the 25th first aid stations set up for the rally, health officials said "a called only to administer 'a cup of aspirin for headaches'."

The first congressional call of the march leaders was on Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. A Philip Randolph "father" of the demonstration, said they were received cordially.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said they had "a very fruitful discussion" with the Democratic leader. Walter Reuther, AFL-CIO vice president, said Mansfield voiced support for President Kennedy's civil rights bill.

The leaders also spent 35 minutes conferring privately with Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen and House Leader Charles A. Halleck. NAACP secretary Roy Wilkins said the session was "all right."

Wilkins told a reported afterwards that Dirksen repeated his opposition to the President's public accommodation proposal. He said the GOP leader was said to have promised "full support" to other sections of the bill.

BUMPER-TO-BUMPER TRAFFIC

Although the buildup of marchers got off to a slow start, Maryland state police reported at 10 a. m. that Baltimore-Washington Expressway was "partially solid" with Washington-bound buses running "almost bumper to bumper" at times.

Baltimore authorities said Washington-bound buses since around 8 a. m. had been passing through the city's harbor tunnel at the rate of about 100 an hour.

A high point of the demonstration was the program at the memorial which houses the brooding figure of Abraham Lincoln, the man who proclaimed of the end of slavery.

There the leaders demanded a complete and immediate end of racial discrimination in America. Some said Kennedy's civil rights legislation was not strong enough.

Wilkins said: "We want freedom, we want employment, and the pride and responsibility and self-respect that goes with equal access to jobs." He called the President's bill "little more than sugar-water."

SEX ASSAULT CHARGED BY WOMAN HERE.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) said she first thought the man had blackened his face so she would think he was a Negro, but claimed she found later that she could not be sure whether her assailant was colored or white.

The man allegedly used some rags which he had in his hand to tie a blindfold around her face and gag her before forcing her to leave the house with him.

Mrs. Sarvis is said to have told police her assailant threatened to kill her and her parents if she made any noise or refused to accompany him. Although the man was said to have had a pistol in his person, Mrs. Sarvis said that she didn't see it.

I offered him money or stayed in the house, but he refused it," the victim is quoted as saying.

Mrs. Sarvis said the man forced her to walk blindfolded to a spot near some railroad tracks where the alleged attack took place.

The attacker was described as being six feet tall, weighing about 170 pounds, wearing a light shirt and dark trousers.

Detective L. R. A. Liles said a window to the apartment was open and a screen had apparently been removed.

N. MITCHELL GIVEN RITES AT RALEIGH

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) He started working for the Winston Mutual Life Insurance Company as field supervisor in 1921 and was transferred to the Raleigh District as manager, built up the first local office and established the first Raleigh office of the company.

Mr. Mitchell retired from the company in 1954 after 33 years and was cited for his efficient and faithful service. He was also associated with THE CAROLINIAN in the circulation department following his retirement.

The deceased was a member of the First Baptist Church in his home town and was later affiliated with the First Baptist in Winston-Salem, where he served as superintendent of the Sunday School.

Upon coming to Raleigh many years ago, Mr. Mitchell became affiliated with the First Baptist where he served until his death.

He had resided with a daughter, son-in-law and grandchildren at 115 Pettigrew Street for the last 13 years.

Mr. Mitchell is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Thelma M. Keck, Mrs. Gloria M. Sanders, and Mrs. Lorraine M. LeVander; one son, Norman T. Mitchell, Jr. of Honolulu, Hawaii; one sister, Mrs. Marie M. Spaulding, one brother, Walter G. Mitchell; five grandchildren and a host of other relatives.

SKELETON FOUND IN CEMETERY

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) here Sunday. Local police made the prediction that the bones may be the remains of man known only as "Pete." He disappeared from his home about six years ago.

Moore County Deputy Sheriff J. A. Lawrence said the bones may be the remains of his former Seaboard Airline Railroad employee.

According to Lawrence, the skeleton was dug up by dogs from a grave bearing the body of Will Love, an Aberdeen Negro, who also died in 1957.

Found along with the bones were the remains of a brown suit.

No indication of how or when the body was placed in the grave could be ascertained.

The skeleton was taken to the Moore County Memorial Hospital for laboratory tests.

MEREDITH IS ENDORSED FOR MISS. SENATE

Grady O'Connors, III, chairman of the NCRP and publisher of the weekly newspaper, SPEAKOUT, included Meredith's name among 175 persons he said his party would endorse.

Plans of the party were explained in detail at a news conference at the Hotel Americana here.

An official of the party said it would provide a forum for persons dissatisfied with civil rights efforts of both the Democratic and Republican parties.

O'Connors, a Negro and Brooklyn resident, reported that the party will endorse or nominate other Negro or white persons in the future.

Meredith was not available for comment on the endorsement.

Woolworth in Cameron Village is also operating an integrated lunch counter.

Hodges last week failed to comply with a Senate committee suggestion that he outline his views on the Administration's civil rights program.

Because he was on vacation when the committee closed its hearings Aug. 2, Secretary Hodges was asked, at the suggestion of Committee Chairman John O. Pastore (D-Rhode Island) to write a letter to the committee outlining his views on the legislation.

Hodges' aides said that the committee suggestion had been discussed with the department, and it was "the decision of the department that a letter was not called for."
