FAYETTEVILLE — A series of activities representing all phases of college life came to a conclusion at Fayetteville State College on Sunday Sept. 15. The well-planned program was under the direction of Mr. J. C. Jones, Dean of Students, and Mrs. Ann W. Shephard, Dean of Women. Several discussions were held to help freshmen discover the academic expectations and college services.

Miss C. Frazier, Coordinator of Reading, discussed study skills necessary for success in college. Students were given specific instructions concerning scheduling and planning study time taking classes using the "Survey, Question, Study, and Using Library Materials."

Mrs. C. S. Bone, Chairman of the Social Committee, discussed Social Life in College. Emphasis was placed upon the student finding a wholesome and creative outlet for his energies and at the same time developing some worthwhile skills. She also outlined procedures for students to discover wholesome and creative leisure time pursuits. Social adeptness is considered a valuable personality trait.

LEADERS IN
MEET; OKAY
BIG 'MARCH'

A committee was named to make plans for the mass demonstration, but the date will be determined later and announced by the committee.

This decision was made in the face of strong objections from North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford, who claimed last week that the "march" would produce nothing good and "would be foolish."

The 19-member integrationist group, composed of Negroes, said in a statement released Thursday night:

"It was agreed that not only the issue of voter registration in the State should be emphasized, but that the problem of token integration in North Carolina schools, job opportunities of merit employment brutality should receive attention public accommodations and police a "march on Raleigh."

The entire "march on Raleigh" idea was brought up last week when Golden Frinks, Edenton, official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, of which Dr. M. L. King, Jr., is president, made a statement to the effect that some 15,000 Negroes from Eastern North Carolina would participate in a "march" here on Oct. 4.

The Durham group, which included Attorney Floyd B. McKisick, national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and 18 others, decided that the demonstration would be held later than the October 4 date in order to allow for ample planning.

Kansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Virginia. Foremost among the problems claiming the attention of these educators is a projected study of student dropouts and student re-training in the South. Special consideration will also be given to teacher-community projects for democratic living on a local level.

However, Evers and other integration leaders here thought the atmosphere was too highly charged for such a march. He stood in mid-street and implored the marchers to disband. "This is not the time," Evers pleaded with arms upraised. "We need no more bloodshed now."

He was aided by Capt. James E. Lay, a Negro civil defense worker, who used a bull horn and the Rev. Charles Billips.

Lay was credited by police with averting a riot by angry Negroes at the scene of the 16th Street Baptist Church minutes after it was blasted by dynamite killing the Negro girls.

At the time Evers made his impassioned plea, the marchers, singing "We Shall Overcome," were only a block away from a line of tough looking Alabama Highway patrolmen armed with shotguns and carbines.

The march was formed as mourners were filing out of the Sixth Avenue Church where the rites

Thursday afternoon, Sept. 26, at 1:30 p. m., Dr. Samuel DeWitt Proctor, who was formerly president at Virginia Union University here, will deliver the keynote address. Proctor recently returned to the presidency at A&T College after a two-year stint with the Peace Corps.

Thursday night's open public meeting will present Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary who will share the platform along with Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, president of the Birmingham, Ala. Christian Movement. This meeting is scheduled for 8 p. m. also.

Friday night Sept. 27 the final session of the SCLC convention, is expected to bring in many outstanding figures from the theatrical world to attend the gigantic "Freedom Rally." Rev. King will share the speakers' platform at 8 p. m. along with Ray I. Abernathy, SCLC secretary-treasurer; and Thomas C. Kilgore of New York City.

He did not explain why it will take him so long to reach a decision in the case.

Frank Heffron, NAACP attorney who represented Dr. Hawkins, argued in court last week that while the society is a normally private organization, it is associated with and has performed state functions which brings it under the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment of the U. S. Constitution. He questioned a parade of prominent North Carolina dentists about the activities of the society.

Meanwhile, Dr. James E. Graham, Jr., president of the Second District dental group, said that a Negro dentist had applied for membership in the organization. He said the application bore the endorsements of two present members of the society. It was disclosed that the society's five-man executive committee was to meet soon to consider the application.

Ministers participating in the services were: the Revs. S. Collins Kilburn, pastor of the host church; Russell Fleming, pastor of Western Boulevard Presbyterian Church and president of the Raleigh Council of Churches, and the Rev. Weyerman.

The affair was sponsored by the Raleigh Citizens Association, the Raleigh chapters of the Congress of Racial Equality and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Raleigh Ministerial Alliance.

McDowell, a 21-year-old graduate student, was quickly suspended by "Ole Miss," pending a hearing. He was expelled from the school Tuesday, after the hearing.

Joseph Ford, sheriff, reported that he found the pistol in the inside coat pocket of McDowell, who is alleged to have admitted ownership of the pistol, but refused to elaborate.

The sheriff said he picked up McDowell after receiving an anonymous report that the student was reportedly noticed when it fell from McDowell's inside coat pocket as he stepped to retrieve some shades which he had dropped.

The charge of carrying a concealed weapon carried a maximum penalty of $100 fine and three months in jail.

Sheriff Ford said he took McDowell in to see acting dean of law school, John Fox, before jailing him. A large crowd of students is said to have been on hand when the graduate student was arrested.

When carried before Justice of the Peace W. H. Jones, McDowell refused to make a statement unless represented by counsel.

McDowell is an honor graduate of Jackson State College in nearby Jackson. He entered the University of Mississippi in June of this year as the school's first Negro graduate student.

Before leaving the "Ole Miss" campus Tuesday night, McDowell told newsmen: "I have no emotions about it (the expulsion) whatsoever."

Gov. Wallace Doubles Guard (Continued from page 1) supplemented with four additional State Troopers.

Press Secretary Bill Jones said that on previous occasions "when the situation was tense" the security force had been increased.

An outpouring of highly critical telegrams were received by Gov. Wallace in the wake of the Birmingham violence.

More than a dozen telegrams were delivered Monday morning, including only one which was pro-Wallace.

One wire from a Baltimore mother mentioned her children had come back alive Sunday School, "but of course they don't have you as their governor."

Another suggested that Senator Wayne Morse, D-Ore., must have been correct when he questioned Wallace's mental condition while yet another charged that "the blood of six children is on your hands."

were held for the three murdered girls. The 1,800 seat church was packed to capacity and the crowd spilled out into the surrounding area. Police estimated the throng at 4,000.

because of the many places of entertainment in the area.

The affray is said to have started when Coley pushed his wife, Mrs. Annie Bell Coley, who was walking with Morgan, according to the detectives. The Coleys have been separated for several months, according to reports.

Morgan told police that he became scared, swung at Coley with his knife and ran when the victim began to stagger.

At CAROLINIAN press time Wednesday, a hearing for Morgan had still not been held in Raleigh's City Court.

CLERIC LAUDS
"PASSIVE RESISTANCE"

He continued: "We must accept the evils of men. If this act in some way can move us to feel persons guilty, perhaps God has again proven His work of a miracle."

He also stated: "We sense both sides moving in the direction of a freeze. We must particularly be concerned that the freeze will not take place. The white man would like any excuse to shift the blame."

"It is the white man who created this status quo and who is responsible for changing it. The white man can take his child from the slums in one generation and make him the president of a bank. The Negro cannot do this. Naturally he would seek revenge. But the Negro must not do this. He should forgive many times over as did Peter in the Bible."

The white minister stated that Negroes distrust white people completely with "passive resistance." If you people would retaliate, then the white man could find some fault. But as things now stand, the white man knows he is wrong but doesn't know how to go about making it right.

A 20-minute silent prayer followed the sermon.

The affair was sponsored by the Raleigh Citizens Association, the Raleigh chapters of the Congress of Racial Equality and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Raleigh Ministerial Alliance.

Ministers participating in the services were: the Revs. S. Collins Kilburn, pastor of the host church; Russell Fleming, pastor of Western Boulevard Presbyterian Church and president of the Raleigh Council of Churches, and the Rev. Weyerman.

Mrs. Herbin said the need for good stenographers is very acute. "Many persons," she said, "are skeptical about applying for positions with the State because in the past, few Negroes have been hired in non-traditional jobs. We want applications for any positions for which there may be openings in the future. For certain jobs, the amount of education is not that important. It is the quality of the education that is important," stated Mrs. Herbin.

"North Carolina is losing many of its technical trainees to other states because of the future potential offered in those areas."

In her present position, Mrs. Herbin is working with the N. C. Good Neighbor Council in cooperation with the Department of Administration and the State Personnel Dept. Her offices are located in the Southern Bell Telephone Business office, corner of W. Morgan and S. McDowell Streets, room 300.

These books were "American Women: The Changing Image," "Crime of Galileo," "The Anatomy of a Revolution," "Arts and the Man" and "Notes of a Native Son." Cutting across the disciplines of science, social science and the humanities, they provided the background for discussions
