Ray Charles Found Guilty On Paternity Rap; Must Pay $400 Per Month To Support Daughter

LOS ANGELES (ANP) — Blind singer-pianist Ray Charles last week was singing the blues strains of "A Sweet Old Song" after a jury of seven men and five women judged him to be the father of a baby daughter of a 22-year-old Los Angeles receptionist. He must pay $400 per month to support the child.

Charles denied the charge, but the girl's mother, who flew here from Ohio to testify, backed up her daughter's statement that he had admitted fathering the child, named Sheila Jean. The mother-daughter testimony apparently convinced the jury. The paternity suit against Charles was filed by Miss Sandra Jean Betts, who in a spicy testimony during the trial, said the singer "taught her how to be a woman" in a Los Angeles motel in 1962. She said he taught her so well, the baby came as a result.

Charles is married, but separated from his wife. He also has other children with his wife.
