WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C. WILSON HARDER

Perhaps the most frustrating job in the entire world is that of holding down the office of U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

His primary job, of course, is to work toward bettering the lot of the farmer. The farmer is only well off when he gets a sufficient price for his produce, and yet the price to the consumer is not too high to stop consumption.

Unemployment insurance was originally set up to help those losing steady jobs to tide over until securing another job. It was never intended to be a gratuity for seasonal workers.

Yet, each summer, in the nation's canning and processing plants, housewives, students and others who want part time work make up the bulk of the working force. They neither want, nor seek employment for the rest of the year.

But as long as C.W. Harder as the American farmer is saddled with the promoters of monopoly labor in government, plus the promoters of an expanding welfare state, the Secretary of Agriculture may as well spend his time fishing.

The Dept. of Agriculture points out in recent publications that the farmer only receives 2.4c for the wheat in a 25c loaf of bread, and about 11c for the milk in a 25c bottle.

The biggest expense item in these articles is created by Jimmy Hoffa, whose teamsters get the lion's share. For example, the cost of delivering bread to the grocery store now accounts for about 40% of the wholesale cost. In other words, it costs 8c to move from bakery store shelf a loaf of bread that contains 2.4c worth of wheat.

The same report says farmer receives only 11c for oranges in a 25c can of orange juice.

On other canned fruit and vegetable products, the value of the farm product is even less, due largely to the welfare of the state. Unemployment checks are paid out in them.

Who pays for this? In the long run it is the consumer, because the cost of the unemployment insurance premiums, which furnishes checks for doing nothing, has to be added to the canning costs.

Thus, the Secretary of Agriculture is really the stooge in a monstrous shell game. If the farmers do not make a living, he's a bum. If the price to the consumer goes up to enable the farmer to make a living, he's also a bum. If prices are kept down to the consumer, and, as has been done for many years, the Treasury is raided to keep the farmer in business, he is also a bum. And if he ever came out with vigorous attacks on the welfare and labor policies that are the real root of the farm problem, he would soon get the bum's rush out of Washington. Perhaps job should be called United States Secretary of Futility.
