 TONGUE

TAKE TWO!
 No. 1. A particular, local, Negro business man should take inventory more frequently to determine whether he keeps too much stock on hand. He recently incurred considerable expense to improve his hotel and restaurant, but it is obvious to some of his workers' Oiler, when Mr. and Mrs. B. are elsewhere—probably planning for better business, many of their would-be restaurant patrons finally walk away, hungry, and disgusted over having waited so long in vain, while loitering, lazy, conceited waitresses served nobody!
 Talk gets around, so it is hurtful how—despite his splendid efforts—Mr. B.'s is becoming noted for structural elegance and lack of personal service! Nevertheless, these cheats continually expect to be paid in accordance with an agreement, their part of which they refused to uphold! It is plain, therefore, that, if they are mentally competent, they are definitely out to drain the man. At any rate, we advise Mr. B. to shake them up before they break him down!

No. 2. Approximately three weeks ago, Mrs. Vera Warren Atkinson of Johnston County was laid to rest. We must add that, along with being an unusually devout person, she was NOT the typical mother-in-law. To her four daughters-in-law and her two sons-in-law, she was always Mother, because for her we were always sons and daughters. Her oldest daughter, Juanita Atkinson Allen, of 3 Granville Terrace here, and the rest of us thank you all for your consoling hospitality.

A HIGH-FLYING EAGLE — Leon Grant, 6-7 North Carolina hoopster leaps high to score in NCC's 83-76 defeat of the Morgan State College Bears at Durham Thursday. The NCC Eagles, who are now 7-8 in the CIAA and 9-9 overall, avenged an earlier loss to the Bears. Shown in the action also are Morgan's Edward Strawthers (30) and Barry Sims (34).

Hard Fighting
 Doug Jones Tops
 Tom McNeely

NEW YORK (ANP)—Hard-fighting Doug Jones, No. 3 ranked New York heavyweight who is best remembered for almost beating boastful Cassius Clay, broke Tom McNeely's nose and gave the big Arlington (Mass.) fighter a bad beating in a scheduled 10-round bout here last week.
 The fight was stopped at the end of the fifth round by the referee on the orders of ringside physician Dr. Alexander Schiff. Jones weighed 194 1-3 pounds, to 203 for McNeely.
 McNeely was simply no match for the hustling, two-fisted Jones. The knockout by Jones was McNeely's second in his 37-bout pro career. The other knockout was administered by the then heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson on Dec. 14, 1961, in a title fight at Toronto, Canada.
