YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

"A miserable night," you mutter to yourself as you drive your car through the steady drizzle of rain that has been soaking the landscape for the past several hours. You arrive at the fashionable home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Hartman, where you are admitted at the front door by a butler and escorted to the living room. Here you find a large number of anxious looking guests clustered here and there about the spacious room, evidently discussing the news of the "crime" that has brought you here. The host and hostess approach you. "My jewels... all of them... gone!" exclaims Mrs. Hartman. "I know they were in my bedroom before I came downstairs to the party, because I went through them to select the necklace I'm wearing now," and she points to the pearls she is wearing around her throat. "The thief evidently came in while we were all gathered downstairs here in the living room, took my precious jewels, and made off with them."

"We know how he entered the house, too," Mr. Hartman breaks in, while at the same time he is slipping on a light tan "all-weather coat."

He conducts you outside the house, over the rain-soaked, spongy turf to the area beneath his wife's bedroom window. You flash your light in the direction of his pointing finger and see the ladder leaning against the house up to Mrs. Hartman's room. It is an aluminum ladder, and from all appearances a new one, and the silvery-colored ladder and its rungs shine out bright and clean in the rays of your light.

"Who did all this?" you ask, pointing to a number of footprints in the muddy ground about the ladder.

"Oh, we're responsible for that... several of the other men and I came outside immediately after my wife rushed downstairs with the news of the theft. Incidentally, that's a brand new ladder we bought just yesterday. The thief must have found it in our garage... and made good use of it, too."

You and Hartman walk back to the front door and, after wiping your shoes carefully on the mat, enter the hallway where you again question Mrs. Hartman. "How did you discover the theft?"

"I went up to my room to freshen up my face a bit. The first thing that met my eyes was my jewel box open on the bed empty!"

"Has anyone left the house during the course of your party?"

"Oh no... everyone is still here. Our butler hasn't left the area of the front door all evening, and the maid and cook have been in the kitchen... which of course accounts for all entrances and exits."

"Well," you then say, "please don't allow anyone to leave just yet. I think your jewels are still here in the house!"

SOLUTION

Considering the weather and the muddy, soggy ground around the house, you would have found some muddy tracks left on the rungs of the ladder by anyone who had used it to enter Mrs. Hartman's room. But the rungs of the aluminum ladder shone out "bright and clean" in the rays of the light you flashed on them.

CPL Will Repeat Atom Youth Prize

Expense-paid trips to a national conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy await two Carolina high school students and their teachers from throughout the United States who will attend the conference Nov. 5-7 in Chicago.

For the first time, CP&L this year is offering two $50 savings bonds for second-place winners in its two-state service area.

"Not Good For Wife," Husband Kills Himself

DETROIT (ANP)—A 33-year-old husband who was experiencing marital difficulties because of his gambling and inability to make "ends meet" financially committed suicide here last week after reaching the conclusion that he was not "good enough for his wife."

He was Fred Nelson, who hanged himself in the basement of his home with a pistol's clothesline and left a suicide note reading: "I am going to fade out of your life—because I was not good enough for you."

Nelson's wife, Dorothy, discovered his body hanging from the rafters when she went to the basement to investigate, after he failed to answer a call from a co-worker with whom he rode to work daily. She cut his body down and then called police.

She then told police of their marital difficulties.

CAROLINIAN Begins "Silver Dollar" Program

BY S. E. CLARKSON
To the readers and subscribers of this newspaper, the CAROLINIAN is sponsoring a promotion to create additional interest in its advertising columns. Every advertiser is a member of our new Silver Dollar Promotion. Eligibility rules follow:

- 1. If you are a subscriber or have purchased the CAROLINIAN for this particular week.
- 2. If you have a receipt from one of our advertisers, showing a purchase made or a bill paid;
- 3. If you are a subscriber and have a receipt from one of our advertisers, you are entitled to bonus money.
- 4. No employee of The CAROLINIAN or any member of his or her immediate family are eligible to participate.

Should a representative from The CAROLINIAN call at your home and ask you if you have this week's CAROLINIAN and a receipt from one of our advertisers, you will be entitled to win the Silver Dollar, by producing the current copy of this newspaper.

Don't get caught without a CAROLINIAN and a receipt, because a CAROLINIAN representative may be knocking on your door. This newspaper.

The first railroad (with powered locomotives) in North Carolina was built from Petersburg, Virginia, to Blakely on the Roanoke River, just east of the present town of Weldon. It was completed in 1832.

Babies Keep Us Busy By The Millions

Millions of new babies each year keep millions of people busy. And that's not counting their devoted parents, relatives and other baby sitters!

Helpless, tiny babies have a powerful way of creating jobs—both in and out of home. Arriving with large lungs and appetites, they often push whole families into the suburbs, and are responsible for a rising need for housing, clothing, furniture, toys, transportation and, of course, food. No wonder there are now five Gerber baby food plants in fertile farm areas in the United States. And no wonder there are more than 100 varieties of strained and junior foods for young mothers to choose from these days.

Each year since 1954, national births have exceeded 4,000,000—reason enough for babies to have a special week set aside in their honor. This year's edition of National Baby Week is being celebrated April 25-May 2. It's the 32nd anniversary of the event.

While every week is baby week in a baby household, the annual occasion is recognized as time to review baby's entire program. And don't forget that important visit to baby's doctor.

Not only are there 4,000,000 new babies regularly, but each year finds new services, new products, new efforts in their behalf. Index of the year-round care and planning that go into baby products today is a modern Research Center at Farmington, Michigan which Gerber will dedicate in May to the study of baby foods.

Ligon Takes Part In Dist. Drama Fest

The J. W. Ligon Jr.-Sr. High School Drama Guild will appear in Wilson, Thursday to participate in the Eastern District Festival of The North Carolina High School Drama Association.

The Ligon players, under the direction of C. C. Lipscomb, will present a one-act comedy by Josephine Niggi entitled, "Sunday Costa Five Pesos". It is based on the Mexican Village life which involves a young girl, who through jealousy breaks off her engagement, then repentant, tries to win back her beau with the aid of some well meaning friends who only manage to involve her in further difficulties.

The author reveals that the theme is based on an old Mexican law that is still enforced in many of the small villages of the Republic—a woman who starts a fight on Sunday must pay a fine of five pesos.

If the Ligon production receives an A-1 rating the play will be presented again at the state festival in competition with other schools with A-1 winners. The state festival will be held at the Ligon High School, March 13-14.

The cast includes: Gregory Sledge, Misses Mary Harris, Mildred Campbell, Carnetta Blakely and Rachel Sanders.
