THE LEWISES HAVE THE JINKS

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your name is Lewis, don't try to operate a numbers game in the nation's capitol, especially in the 1300 block on 9th st., n. w. Edward M. Lewis, 59, tried it recently, and on the second day of business, was cornered and arrested by police. It was only then that Lewis learned that two other namesakes had fallen in the clutches of the law within the past year for operating the same game in the same block. Last May, James Henry "Doc" Lewis, tried it and failed. This past January, Nathan Lewis, a 43-year-old Lanham, Md. resident, didn't read the signs correct, and fell prey to the minions of the law.

VANDALS VISIT NEW HOME

Lorenzo Baldwin, 1510 E. Edenton St., informed Detective Spts. Peter H. Bowers and E. W. Rhodes at 8:27 p.m. that someone cut a screen on the back door at his home between 6 and 8:30-p.m. Monday.

Mr. Baldwin believes that "some of the gang" which hangs around the corner of Carver and Edenton Streets did it for spite, as he frequently runs them off his property. Baldwin's home was described in the report as being "fairly new."

PRINCIPAL'S OFFICE RANSACK

William Wilson Hurdle, principal of the Lucille Hunter Elementary School, told officers at 7:47 a.m. Monday that someone entered the school during the weekend, and ransacked his office. The door of his office was jimmied open by a large screwdriver, it was reported. Nothing was found missing, although several windows were left open. The point of entry could not be determined.
