Ligon Student Composes Top Essay; Cited

The works of a creative artist begin at any time and any age. This was indicated by Miss Deborah Bass, a sophomore at the J. W. Ligon Jr.-Sr. High School by her composition entitled "And So They Marched."

The theme for her essay, which was a part of her English project, was influenced by the movements of certain groups as they express personal involvement and dissatisfaction with certain customs or habits that are considered unjust.

Miss Bass' essay, along with some others, is the result of an English class of exuberant students taught by Mrs. M. W. Allison. According to Mrs. Allison the Tenth Grade English classes of Ligon High School recently completed a unit on "The Essay." As a culmination to the study of this literary work, the students wrote original essays on a topic of interest to them.

The essays were restricted in length to less than two-hundred words. Students were encouraged to write the familiar" essay and to give their opinions on a restricted topic. The essay, "And So They Marched", written by Miss Bass follows:

AND SO THEY MARCHED
"They wanted to have educational rights so they may be capable of attending any school of their choice. They could not, and so they marched. When they completed high school, many were deprived of attending a college of their choice, and so they marched. After the hard trial of struggling through college, they were qualified to fulfill any positions, whereas, they were not permitted, and so they marched."

"When completing a hard day's work, many wanted to spend their leisure in some places that they were not allowed to enter, and so they marched. For enjoyment, many wanted to attend a special movie to see a good picture but were not given the privilege of going there, and so they marched. For recreation, some wanted to participate in special events in sports, but they were not permitted to sit in on the games, and so they marched. Marching—marching—onward, forward—and with dispatch, they march to destiny."

The Vets Corner

Here are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to questions from former servicemen and their families:

Q—Are widows of veterans eligible for GI home loans?
A—Veterans' widows may be eligible for GI home loans if they meet these requirements:— they must be unmarried widows of veterans of World War I or the Korean Conflict who died in service or after separation from service as the result of service-connected disabilities. Entitlement for World War II widows expires July 25, 1967, and for widows of Korean Conflict veterans January 31, 1975.

Q—Why is a so-called "C-Number" necessary in connection with veterans benefits? Shouldn't the veteran's name and proof of service be sufficient?
A—There are many veterans (sometimes hundreds) with the same name and middle initial. Periods of service are often duplicated. A C-number (claim number) positively identifies the record of the individual veteran.

Q—Can a War Orphan who has his entrance into VA educational training delayed or interrupted by military service have his completion date extended?
A—Yes. He has five years from the date of his first release or discharge from military service in which to complete his training.
