

DEAR SALLY

DEAR SALLY: I have quite a reputation in my town as a landscape artist, and recently when one of my women friends was visiting in my home she seemed so much taken with one of my recent paintings that I carefully wrapped it up and gave it to her. She gave every indication of being happy and appreciative of my gift. However, yesterday when I called on her, I was horrified to discover that my beautiful painting had been hung in the darkest, most out-of-the-way corner of one of her hallways. No one would ever see it there unless he had very good eyes, or was looking especially for it. This seems to me an out-and-out waste of my artistic talents, a flagrant lack of appreciation—and I'm wondering if I would be justified in asking her to return the painting to me. G.O.E.

DEAR G.O.E.: When any gift is given, it should be given generously, and with no strings attached. It would be in very poor taste for you to ask your friend to return your gift. The fact that she has failed to hang your painting to best advantage does not necessarily mean she is lacking in appreciation. It could just mean she is lacking in a sense of artistic values... and that is no reason at all for your feeling hurt or offended.

DEAR SALLY: I'm a fellow of 16, and there's something that's been bothering me for a long time. I can't seem to hold onto a girl for very long, and most of the time after I've taken a girl out once I have trouble getting another date with her. This is very hard for me to understand, because I always take them to nice places, spend a lot of money on them, and they give every appearance of enjoying themselves. I even try my best to show them how much I like them by holding their hands as much as possible and coaxing them into one, two or three kisses at the end of the evening, but I never make any passes at them—because all the girls I date are from respectable families, and so am I. So can you advise me how I can make better headway with some of these girls? TURNED DOWN

DEAR TURNED DOWN: I think you'll get ahead faster if you slow down on your speed. Stop grabbing for your girls' hands and coaxing them into kissing on first dates. It's possible these girls are thinking of you as somewhat too aggressive... and I'd agree with them.

DEAR SALLY: One of the other women tenants in our apartment building has the nerve to borrow my card table and chairs periodically, and then never inviting me to play bridge with her club of women. This hurts me very much. Recently she even discussed with me her search for a new member of her club, one who would fit in with the age group of the other members in the mid-60's. Even though I happen to be only 54, I was very much miffed that she didn't even consider me as a possible member. How about this? T.W.

DEAR T.W.: Instead of feeling miffed, I should think you'd feel complimented. It's evident that this woman regards you as "too young" for her group. Why don't you forget your hurt feelings and instead volunteer as a "substitute" anytime one of the "older girls" is unable to attend the club?

DEAR SALLY: The parents of the girl our son will soon be marrying have indicated that they are not mailing out any marriage announcements to anyone. Under these circumstances, would it be all right for us to mail out such announcements to our relatives and good friends? H.J.L.

DEAR H.J.L.: When the bride's family is making no move to send out marriage announcements, then the bridegroom's family may properly notify their own friends and relatives, either by phone or letter or through the society column of their local newspaper. It would, however, be in very questionable taste for them to mail out formal engraved announcements.

Jr. Science, Humanities Program Set

GREENSBORO—Youngsters attending the fourth annual A&T College Junior Science and Humanities Symposium were told last week that the program is growing year by year.

The speaker was Colonel Nils M. Bengtson, commanding officer, U. S. Army Research Office, Durham, chief sponsor of the junior symposium idea.

Describing the Junior Science and Humanities Symposium ideas as one in which the U. S. Army is making a small contribution towards stimulating higher interest and motivation among both teachers and students in the sciences and humanities, he said that the symposium first started in North Carolina in 1958.

CARNATION COOKING HINTS

by Mary Blake

HOME SERVICE DIRECTOR AND HER STAFF

Company's coming! Plan a buffet, and serve new, flaky-crusted Meat 'n Dill Turnovers! The flavorful ground beef filling is always moist and juicy, thanks to Carnation Evaporated Milk. And, with Carnation, there's never a lump in the zesty sauce. Keep versatile Carnation Evaporated Milk on your kitchen shelf, and use it for all your cooking needs.

MEAT 'N DILL TURNOVERS
(Makes 12 turnovers)

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 1/2 pounds ground chuck | 3 tablespoons chopped onion |
| 3/4 cup undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK | 3 tablespoons chopped pimiento |
| 1 1/2 teaspoons seasoned salt | 1/4 cup condensed cream of mushroom soup |
| 1/4 teaspoon pepper | 2 packages (9 1/2 ounces each) pie crust sticks |
| 1 1/2 teaspoons dill weed | |
| 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper | |

Combine ground chuck, Carnation, seasoned salt, pepper and dill weed. Cook meat mixture, green pepper and onion in frying pan. Drain off excess fat. Add pimiento and 1/4 cup cream of mushroom soup. Stir to blend. Prepare pastry according to package directions. Roll, and cut into 12 6-inch circles. Fill pastry circles with 1/2 cup meat mixture; fold and seal edges with fork. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Pierce turnovers with knife tip to make steam vents. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) for 25-30 minutes or until golden brown.

To prepare Cheese Sauce: Measure 1 tablespoon flour into saucepan. Stir in 1 cup Carnation, 1/4 cup cream of mushroom soup, 2 tablespoons pimiento, 1/4 teaspoon dill weed, few grains pepper and a dash of tabasco. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Add 1 cup grated American process-type cheese. Stir, until cheese melts. Serve over turnovers.

Wake's 4-H Council Picks New Officers

Forty-three Wake County 4-H officers and community leaders representing more than twenty Community 4-H Clubs met in Raleigh recently in a County Council meeting. The meeting was held in the Wake County Office Building, housing the Agricultural extension offices.

Officers elected for the 1964 year were: president, Miss Barbara Fowler, Route 6, Raleigh; vice-president, Miss Mary McDougal, Route 1, Varina; secretary, James Leach, Route 1, Willow Springs; assistant secretary, Miss Gwendolyn Matthews, Holly Springs Road; treasurer, Miss Cora Ray, Route 6, Raleigh; reporter, Miss Joyce Peterson, Loop Road, Raleigh and song leader, Miss Joyce McClamb, Route 2, Raleigh.

Topic discussed during the business session had to do with meaning of a County Council, purpose of a County Council and its value to the total 4-H Club program. A Calendar of Activities for the year was discussed at the meeting.

The next Council meeting will be Saturday, May 30, at 10:00 a.m. on the second floor of the Wake County Building on the corner of West Davis and McDowell Streets, Raleigh.

W. C. Davenport is Wake County's Agricultural Extension Agent.

NCC Slates Confab On Cadet Tutors

DURHAM—North Carolina College supervisors of student teachers will join some 65 cooperating teachers and principals in a work conference on Saturday, April 4, in the college's Education Building.

Dr. Walter M. Brown, director of student teaching at NCC and director of the conference, indicated that registration will begin 9 a.m. in the lobby of the Education Building.

The conference will feature an address by Dr. William Colbert, coordinator of teacher education, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Following Dr. Colbert's address, Dr. Norman C. Johnson of NCC will describe the college's undergraduate program in teacher education. Teachers and principals will then participate in group conference under the leadership of college supervisors.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY!
