

Mr., Mrs. Victor Peebles Bringing Much Experience To Restaurant

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Peebles, 119 Lincoln Court, represent a combined total of over 40 years in the handling and preparing of food. On Sunday, May 10, the couple will formerly add another restaurant to their growing chain as the grand opening of Peebles' Charcoal Flame Restaurant, 309 S. Wilmington Street, will be held from 1:30 to 6:30 p. m. Refreshments of sandwiches and soft drinks will be given free to all. The Peebles have one daughter, Miss Janet Peebles, who is studying veterinary medicine at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. Mrs. Peebles, the former Miss Inez Holden of Raleigh, was a librarian with the Richard B. Harrison Library here for some 14 years. She resigned her position to assist her husband as the Peebles' Grill, corner of E. Martin and S. Blount Streets, grew into Peebles' Hotel located at the same corner. She has been in the food business now around ten years.

Vic, as he is known to his friends and customers, has prepared and served food from Atlantic City, N. J., to the Florida coast and is well-qualified to operate any eating establishment as he has been in the food business more than thirty years. He is also well-known as a caterer.

The couple had contemplated a second restaurant for some time and the purchase of Peebles' Charcoal Flame Restaurant, makes it the only integrated cafe, owned and operated by Negroes in the heart of the downtown business section.

Vic Peebles is a native of the Jeffrey's Grove section of the county, located six miles north of Raleigh's city limits.

Here Are "10 Commandments" For Happy Marriage: Cleric

DETROIT (AP)—Married couples and newly-weds can take a leaf from the married life of the Rev. Clarence T. R. Nelson, pastor of Scott Methodist Church, for he has, during the past 30 years successfully followed his own rules for a happy marriage.

In a sermon delivered here recently, on the occasion of his 30th wedding anniversary, Rev. Nelson's topic was "Ten Ways to Keep Your Sweetheart."

They are:
FIRST: Thou shalt have no other gods before thee in thy marital relationship. "I will not claim that marriages are made in heaven, but they are more likely to be lasting if God is taken into account in the relationship. There is always a fear of a third party that may break or mess up a marriage. But there is no need of this fear of a third party if He is God."

SECOND: Thou shalt not make a god (graven image) of thy spouse. Remember that your wife or husband is not perfect.

THIRD: Thou shalt not call thy spouse anything but nice and sweet names.

FOURTH: Remember that thou should keep or take some time for the family.

FIFTH: Honor thy spouse by always remembering important days, such as birthdays and wedding anniversaries.

SIXTH: Thou shalt not kill thy spouse's personality. The two shall become one, but that does not mean that one of the marriage partners shall completely dominate the other.

SEVENTH: Thou shalt not steal time away from home without at least letting the spouse know where you are going.

EIGHTH: Thou shalt not commit adultery.

NINTH: Thou shalt not lie to thy spouse.

TENTH: Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife nor his daughter.

"If this commandment had been obeyed by movie star Richard Burton, he would not now have Eddie Fisher's wife."

"The vows taken and the pledge or troth must not be taken lightly if married people are to be sweethearts forever," he said.

Security Meat Market

Raleigh, N. C.

It was a beautiful morning. The sun was shining brightly and most welcome after many days of rain. The air was fresh and fragrant with early spring blossoms.

I parked my car and was ambulating toward the back entrance to our building when a young friend and co-worker, from another department happened along on his way to work. His cadence was nearer 180 than the usual 120 or less.

I greeted him with top-o-the-morning to you, Bob, and a happy day. What's your hurry? He screeched to a stop on his Hush Puppies and decided to take a breather and pass the "time of day" with me.

"You know," he said, "I just live in a state of rush and tension. I mow my lawn, tend my borders, prune and spray, but I don't take the time to enjoy the environment I have tried to create. It is more a matter of keeping up with the neighbors than of real enjoyment and relaxation. It is a shame, too. I suggested that it might be wise to slow down a little before he gets butterflies in his stomach. He replied: "That is a challenge which I shall remember." I know many, many more promising young men afflicted with this scourge of the space age. How about you?

Mow! mow! mow! That has been the story in our neighborhood as far as the evergreen grasses are concerned. Once a week has not been enough in some cases. If you are also having this lush growth don't get mad and cut the blades of grass shorter than two inches. You will regret it if you do. Mow as often as needed and be thankful that you have a beautiful welcome mat for your landscape.

Some timely reminders. Insect eggs are hatching by the millions and other insects are coming out of hibernation. Be prepared for a vigorous campaign against these pests with your dust and spray programs. Same for the leaf spot and other diseases on your ornamentals and vegetable crops.

Prune your early flowering shrubs as soon as they have finished blooming. If they need pruning, after planting your warm season vegetable seed, lightly mulch with either pine straw or clean grain straw over the rows. This will break the force of the rain drops and prevent soil compaction.
