do for himself. "It is up to you as students to make the very best out of what you have. You must ask yourselves at all times if you are doing your very best; if not, you must take an inventory of yourselves and see what's wrong. Whenever you do something and it's not good enough, you should do it again."

Our speaker also reminded us, that when we approach our various jobs, to approach them without fear and trembling. Fear is brought about when you are not equal to the task. Once you get the "know-how" there is no fear. "Approach the jobs with the confidence you should have because you attended RBC where you obtained the "know-how."

Mr. Brown ended by saying that each one of us should have a favorite Bible verse that we say at all times and when fear appears we will have faith in that verse.

The faculty and students cordially invite the public to attend its commencement exercises on Friday, June 5, at 11:00 o'clock in Greenleaf Auditorium on Shaw University's campus.

Man Kills Wife In Fit Of Jealous Rage; Is Subdued

MILWAUKEE (AP)—All because of a fit of jealous rage, Y. C. Armstrong, 26-year-old foundry worker, pumped seven bullets into his wife, killing her, and then sought to shoot four passersby who attempted to subdue him.

Victim of the rage was Mrs. Ruby Armstrong, 24, mother of seven children, who was estranged from her husband. Taken to county hospital, dead on arrival, she is reported to have sustained seven .22 calibre bullet wounds in the neck, chest, arms and legs. After the shooting, Armstrong ran outside the house, but was stopped by four men. He aimed the gun at one and pulled the trigger three times, but nothing happened. Turning to another man, he pulled the trigger again, and got off two shots which missed.

Finally subdued, he was taken to the hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. Later, he was charged with first degree murder, attempted murder, and endangering safety without regard to life.

On The Home Front

(Items this week from New Hanover, Martin and Richmond Counties.)

SURPLUS COMMODITIES USED

Families who are receiving surplus commodity foods in New Hanover County has been trained in ways of using the foods in nutritious dishes.

Mrs. Rebecca Hall, home economics agent, says a workshop was held in the county to show the homemakers how to use the foods in tasty dishes and how to make the most efficient use of the products. Following the workshop, they received a copy of the Extension bulletin, "Low Cost Meals."

HOME TOURS MADE

Housing needs of families in Martin County are being studied. Mrs. Vivian Morris, home economics agent, says the groups are working on getting running water in the homes. "That seems to be the greatest need at this time," she added.

Recently homemakers in the county toured several new homes to study kitchen and bathroom arrangements and the coordinated color schemes.

CLOTHING WORKSHOPS

Around 85 garments and hats have been constructed by various club members in Richmond County within the last six weeks.

Mrs. Grace Cheek, home economics agent, says the clothing construction workshops have helped the women learn sewing skills that will help them provide better clothing for family members. This will also help in stretching the dollars in the clothing budget.
