

Child Dies, Mother, Brother Ill From Dehydration

Father In Prison, Unaware Of Events

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (ANP)—Lawrence Bowling, currently serving a forgery term in Joliet Penitentiary, was a very sad man when prison officials told him about the tragic events that happened over the weekend in his Michigan home.

Bowling's four-year-old daughter, Patricia, died at Mercy hospital after she was sped to medical aid when a distraught grandmother entered her home and found the child, her mother and brother severely ill.

Dr. Joseph Cooper, Van Buren County medical examiner, said the child died of "gastro-intestinal tract", cause apparently by an infection. He said the ailment was "uncommon but not rare."

Mrs. Harriet Bowling, 27, and her three sons, aged one to five, were placed in an isolation ward at the same hospital and their condition was listed as "guarded condition" after the children's grandmother, Mrs. Raymond Sandberg, visited the family after they did not respond to her repeated telephone calls.

Doctors said the dehydration, a depletion of the body fluids, was a complication of Patricia's illness.

Source of the illnesses has not been determined but authorities said tests of food and water at the Bowling home would be made.

large formal wedding, and will be sending out about 200 wedding invitations. I work in a business office and have been granted permission to use the postage meter machine on my envelopes, and I would of course reimburse the company for the postage costs. Since this machine both prints the stamps and also seals the envelopes, this would be a great convenience to me—but someone has told me a metered stamp on wedding invitations would not be in good taste. What do you say? CINDY.

DEAR CINDY: Your informant is right. This use of a metered stamp on your envelopes would give your wedding a commercial and business-like aspect.

DEAR SALLY: I'm a girl 16, and go steady with a boy of 17. We see each other at least five nights a week, and so sometimes we run out of conversation and entertaining things to do. So we go riding in his father's car, park in some out-of-the-way spot, and have a session of necking. There have been recent signs, though, that we're permitting matters to get out of control. I'm a good girl, and I don't want anything to happen that I'll regret bitterly later. Do you have any advice for me? J. L. E.

DEAR J. L. E.: Yes, I do. In the first place, if you're much too young to be tying yourself down to any steady arrangement with one boy—and five dates per week is much too In the second place, veto all all future parking in out-of-the-way spots, and no more sessions of necking. Congratulations for recognizing these danger signs. Now all you have to do is steer clear of them.

NOTE TO PATTY: My reaction is that you place a much higher value on your present high level of living than you do on marriage.

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW
DEAR SALLY: My husband, who was a widower when I married him earlier this year, has a darling 3-year-old daughter who has been taken care of by some friends of my husband ever since her mother died more than two years ago. I want very much to have this little girl live with us and to mother her, especially since I am not physically able to have any children of my own. But these people are insisting on keeping the child, saying they have come to love her very much and that it would break their hearts to give her up now. My husband is inclined to sympathize with them, but he also sympathizes with me and how I feel about the child, too. What do you think is right? H. E. J.

DEAR H. E. J.: And I sympathize with how these good people must feel, too. But on the other hand, a child does belong with its natural parent if at all possible—and unpleasant though the task will probably be, your husband should claim his daughter.

DEAR SALLY: I'm a woman of 31, and have been going with a man of 33. I was sure we were just about at the "ring" stage when, about a month ago, he told me he had become infatuated with another woman he had just met—that he was sure he was still in love with me, but that he felt that a few dates with this other woman would decide it once and for all. I was deeply hurt, but agreed to his suggestion. Now, after a month of silence, he has phoned to tell me that he KNOWS for sure that I'm the one he loves and "always will love." I admit freely that I love him very much, but somehow the idea of being part of such an "experiment" bothers me. Do you think I should resume with him? V. E. C.

DEAR V. E. C.: If you really love him resume your romance with him. Maybe the experiment

WAS good for him and made him appreciate you all the more.

DEAR SALLY: I'm planning a
