

Old North State Medics, Dentists, Druggists And Their Auxiliaries Hold A&T Conventions

GREENSBORO — Two of three health organizations holding annual conventions at A&T College last week took differing views in attacking racial discrimination. The Old North State Dental Society voiced a "soft" approach in its effort to gain admission for its members to the all-white North Carolina Dental Society. In the annual address, Dr. J. B.

Rosemond, Wilson, N. C., president of the dental group, urged a course of moral persuasion. He said: "We must continue the North Carolina Dental Society, the recognized society in our State. We must, in some way, show that group that it is morally wrong to discriminate against us because of race — that dentistry in this State, in all of its phases, must be made available to all dentists if we are to move forward and offer to the people of our communities the latest and best treatment available." The Old North State Medical Society took a strong position, but in other problem areas, in a report by its Legal Defense Committee. A physician, dentist and pharmacist were honored as men of the year in their professions. Dr. Essex C. Noel, a physician who began practice in Greensboro, in 1900, but who had served in Al-banarle for 11 years, received the "Doctor of the Year" Award. He was cited for leadership in the litigation in the now famed Greensboro hospital cases. He now serves as chairman of publicity and public relations for the medical group.

Dr. Geore C. Simkins, Jr., also of Greensboro, N. C., was honored as "Dentist of the Year," by the Old North State Dental Society in commendation for his leadership in the civil rights struggle. The president of the Greensboro Branch of the NAACP, Dr. Simkins has practiced in Greensboro since 1949. Rufus S. Hairston, a Winston-Salem, druggist for the past 45 years and who had worked in the profession for short stints in Richmond, Va., New Bern, N. C., and Greensboro, N. C., was honored as "Pharmacist of the Year." He is a former president of the National Pharmaceutical Society and of the Old North State Pharmaceutical Society.

Professor Named To Nat'l Body

GREENSBORO — Dr. Darwin T. Turner, chairman of the Department of English at A&T College, recently appointed member of the Committee on Hiring and Recruitment Practices of American Colleges and Universities of the Modern Language Association, attending a two-day meeting of the Committee last week in New York City. hunching the shoulders and other forms of body movement or "body English."

"The woman who says she couldn't talk if her hands were tied is probably quite right," Dr. Birdwhistell said. He is an authority on "Kinesics," the study of body motion communications.

QUESTION: What activities call for purposive talk?—L.P.

ANSWER: Committee meetings, corporation meetings, faculty meetings, seminars, cabinet meetings, international conferences call for purposive talk.

Yes, We All Talk

BY MARCUS E. BOULWARE THE SPOKEN WORD We know that the average citizen speaks a far larger amount of time than he writes.

And yet another authority comes along and says that the spoken word probably has less to do with communication than the thousands of body movements we use to say something in context. This is the opinion of Dr. R. L. Birdwhistell, Temple University anthropologist.

According to the anthropologist, the average person spends only 25 minutes a day in articulated speech, the rest of the time communicating by grimacing, smiling, frowning, raising an eyebrow, nodding.

Alfred Hill: Howard Grad Given High Scout Post

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — The appointment of Alfred Hill as assistant national director of the Public Relations Service of the Boy Scouts of America was announced last week by Joseph A. Brunton, Jr., Chief Scout Executive.

Mr. Hill is presently an assistant director of Public Relations and Special Events in the Greater New York Councils. He will assume his new position June 29. He earned the rank of Life Scout and was a Scout and Explorer for eight years. He served as the assistant Scoutmaster of his troop and later as a neighborhood commissioner, as well as a camp staff member for ten summers.

A native of Atlanta, Georgia, Mr. Hill was reared at Lackawanna, New York. He graduated from Howard University, Washington, D. C. in June 1953 when he received an A. B. degree with a major in history and government. He also has done graduate work in the Howard University School of Social Work.

He is a graduate of the 188th National Training School for professional leaders in Scouting conducted in 1954 at the Schiff Scout Reservation at Mendham, New Jersey.

His professional career began in 1956 as a district Scout executive of the Robert Treat Council in Newark, New Jersey. A year earlier he was program director of Camp Wauwex, as a non-professional leader, in the Nassau County Council's year-round camp at Wading River, Long Island, New York.

'Graduate' Of Sit-Ins Still Sitting-In

BALTIMORE, Md. — A 24-year-old "graduate" of the Negro sit-in campaign is still "sitting in" — in the Maryland state legislature — points out the June issue of Ebony. He is Clarence Mitchell, III, son of the director of the Washington Bureau of the NAACP and one of three Negro members of the Maryland House of Delegates.

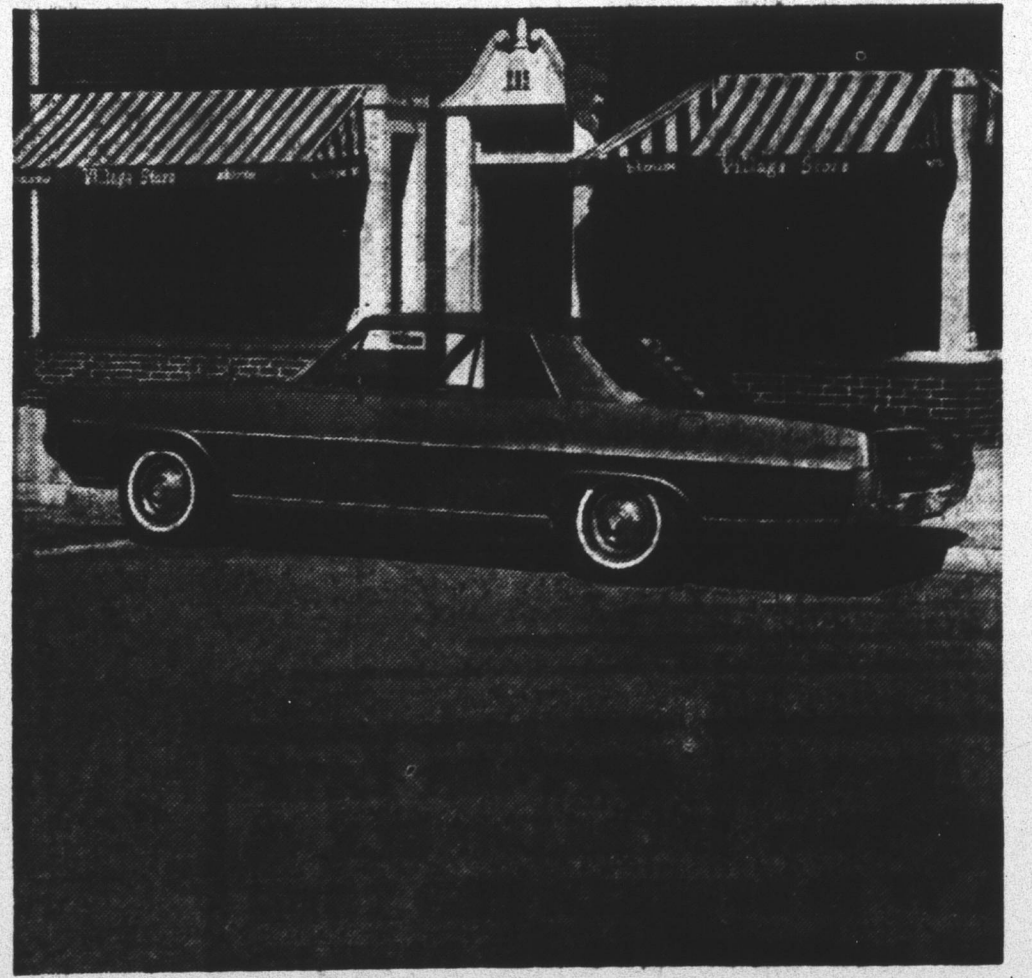

"I became convinced that the quickest way to get our constitutional rights was to start 'sitting in' in the state legislature and other elective bodies as members," Mitchell says in Ebony.

"The nation's youngest lawmaker," Mitchell is hailed by Ebony not only as a champion of civil rights but as an able lawmaker in general. During his two years in office, Mitchell authored or cosponsored 10 new laws and backed 25 others.

Mitchell, who campaigned two years ago in Baltimore's Fourth Legislative District (58 per cent Negro) as "the civil rights candidate" is "still justified in calling himself" that, says Ebony.

Six pages of pictures in the Negro monthly magazine turn the spotlight on the young legislator at home in Baltimore with his family, in his office where he continues his real estate business and in action as a legislator.

His grandmother, Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, is president of the Maryland State Conference of NAACP Branches.
