

PRE-SCHOOL FACULTY CONFERENCE AT SHAW—Shaw faculty and staff members met Tuesday morning and afternoon in conference, with Dr. James E. Cheek, president, presiding. Dr. Cheek is seen in rear explaining the administrative, academic and organizational structure of Shaw University.

DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW
DEAR SALLY: I'm trying hard not to be the typical "meddling mother-in-law," but it's difficult. What bothers me so much is the way my son's wife keeps house... or rather the way in which she DOESN'T keep house! Every time I visit there, the place is a mess—dust an inch thick everywhere, newspapers strewed all over the floor, sastrays overflowing, unwashed dishes piled up in the kitchen sink. My son was reared in a clean, orderly home, and I can't see how he endures this mode of living. But to all appearances he's perfectly happy, and he and his wife are still deeply in love. But still I think I should tactfully advise my daughter-in-law on some of the finer points of housekeeping, don't you? MOM?

DEAR MOM: You advise your daughter-in-law only if or when she ASKS you for such advice. Otherwise you WILL be a "meddling mother-in-law."

DEAR SALLY: There's an unprincipled girl in our high school who is deliberately leading a wonderful fellow toward a big let-down, and this burns me up, because I know her tactics well enough and I know that as soon as she has him well on her leash she'll give him the well-known brushoff just as she has with a number of other nice fellows in the past. This is a boy I like particularly much, and I hate the idea of his being hurt by this scheming female. Don't you think I should get him aside and warn him about her? WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: There are some things people must learn the hard way, and if what you say about this girl is really true, then it's up to the boy to discover it for himself. As for your warning him, DON'T—because about all you will probably accomplish is to make yourself sound like a jealous little girl.

DEAR SALLY: A few evenings ago, as we were preparing to entertain some guests in our home, my husband's aunt and uncle dropped in unexpectedly. They're very nice people, and I was at a loss as to what to do as they sat down in our living room and seemed prepared to spend the evening chatting with us. Finally, though, I decided to be frank. I told them we were expecting guests and that I simply had to excuse myself in order to prepare for them. They departed with rather nurt expressions on their faces. My husband was a little put out over my "dismissal" of them, but honestly, what else could I have done? Incidentally, this was the third time this aunt and uncle have dropped in unannounced. R.E.B.

DEAR R.E.B.: Certainly You had every right to handle the matter as you did. I hope that after this your husband's aunt and uncle will be considerate enough to phone in advance of their wishes to visit with you.

"What Is That In Your Hand?" Asked By Shaw's New Minister

"What is That in Your Hand?" was the question posed by the Rev. J. Z. Alexander, University Minister in his initial message to the new students at Shaw University Sunday. Upon entering the church each student was given a straight pin. "Our message, the Rev. Mr. Alexander stated, "is caught up in this pin."

It is a straight pin. The greatest need in our day," he said, "is for straight men and women of sterling character. If a straight pin is bent it is very hard to straighten it and this holds true for the individual. If you once become crooked it will be hard for you to get straight again."

"The straight pin has a head, which symbolizes the fact that you must use your head. Logical thinking is an aid to attaining worthy goals with God's help. As the pin, have a point. One of our great tragedies lies in the fact that many people have no reason for living, and are simply being carried along with trend of things. In the nation there is much boredom because of the lack of dedication.

"Find your point in life," he urged, "and stay there." "If you have a high and noble purpose, God will open the way. If you block God out, you will block your own progress. Have no anxiety about anything, but make your desires known to God," he concluded.
