pirations and goals under a peace-loving administration, whose preachment carry the tone of appreciation for each and every individual's rights under the law; it allows now for every question of change to be answered with satisfaction and calm; it gives our President the opportunity to continue his administration and that of our beloved statesman, the late President John F. Kennedy. In all these things and more America, through its freedom of choice by vote, has said its piece unequivocally; it shows our race has merged its vote in the right direction to aid our country in its continued progress in human understanding.

The CAROLINIAN says well done sons and daughters of a great country for a great President.

Teacher: "I did not vote for Goldwater because of his unacceptable stand on the civil rights issues because he too often is the victim of snap judgment, and because of his policies toward nuclear warfare." Concerning immorality and corruption: "A President is elected on the basis of what we think he is. We cannot be sure about morals; they are often hidden. It is something we can't be sure about."

Mr. L. W. Terrell, 602 E. South Street, Elementary Teacher, J. E. Shepard H. S., "I think Johnson will continue the liberal policies on civil rights issues if elected. Concerning immorality or corruption, "I see no sense in changing in the middle of the stream." He was here referring to recent international developments of concern, such as China's recently attained nuclear potentiality. Khrushchev's ouster, and the election of a Labor prime minister in England, our closest ally. "To fail to elect Johnson under such circumstances would be non-sensical."

The public is invited to attend this anniversary.

COMING YOUR WAY—The van shown above was recently purchased by The CAROLINIAN in order to speed up our newspaper's delivery in Wake and surrounding counties. Our readers will also have the opportunity of having photographs taken and news gathered on the spot. This is another in a continuing line of services being offered readers of The CAROLINIAN. Be sure to look for it when it visits your community.

Democratic. She did attribute Johnson's greater experience as a factor which makes him better prepared for this high office. She, too, thought that Johnson, if elected, will continue his present liberal outlook. However, she had "nothing against Goldwater."

Miss E. Spivey, school teacher: Miss Spivey is an example of a well-informed voter who has not allowed herself and her basic beliefs to be drowned in the flood of partisan allegations and accusations of the candidates and their respective parties. "In her heart" she felt that Goldwater was the poorer choice for President. By way of explanation, she cited his anti-civil rights stand and his uncertain stand of the Social Security and anti-poverty programs. However, she did not consider him a radical or an extremist.

Overall reaction was that the morality issue had no pertinence in the campaign because of the indeterminant nature of it. However, the questioner gave little or no weight to those "unfortunate incidents" in their decision for President.

Of the three critical p's of any presidential election—party platform, personality, the one most influential in decision-making was platform. Votes were cast, not for Johnson or for Goldwater, not for the Democratic or Republican tickets, but for what these candidates stood for, proposed to do, avowed to uphold.

Not a single voter interviewed, both at the Ligon High School precinct and the Luella Hunter School precinct, cast, or intended to cast, his vote for Goldwater. The results, then, were in accordance with President Johnson's acquired title of "Landslide" Lyndon.

During his first trial in court, which lasted a month, the 12 remaining indictments were reduced to the three on which the jury returned a guilty verdict.

The bishop has been without salary or assignment since 1960. The general conference of the church, meeting in Cincinnati last May, voted to continue his suspension for another four years pending the outcome of the civil court action.

Following the trial, the bishop's legal representative, Atty. Abraham J. Broom Levy, appeared before Judge Stoyer for either a new trial or an arrest of judgment. Arguments were heard last July on the motion.

In rendering its decision, the appeals granted an arrest of judgment on the contention that the prosecution had failed to show that Bishop Nichols had not done anything illegal with the funds in the special or general church account, which was "in his lawful possession." The decision further added that the Commonwealth offered unsatisfactory proof that the funds belonged to the church.

Unless further appeal is made against the ruling of the three-judge panel, Bishop Nichols has only the final hurdle to overcome—that of the church suspension. As is presently set up, the judicial committee of the Episcopal conference will review the case and make a report to the general conference in 1968. The conference will then vote on whether to reinstate the prelate or not.

Bishop Nichols attended the last general conference sessions in Cincinnati, but did not sit with the bishops. He was present simply as a minister of the church, with no official position.

South States of Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, and his home State of Arizona.

In chalking up his landslide, President Johnson received 464 electoral votes to Goldwater's 52. 270 are needed to be elected President.

North Carolina went strongly for Johnson, who received 79,139 popular votes to his opponent's 62,073. President Johnson swept several Democratic running for office in with him, including Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the slain President, who defeated incumbent New York Senator Kenneth Keating, a Republican. Keating had been a U. S. Senator for 13 years.

However, in California, former White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, was not so fortunate as he was defeated by former movie star and dancer, George Murphy, for the U. S. Senate. Salinger was appointed to the Senate by Democratic Gov. Pat Brown after the death of Sen. Clair Engle.

Another Kennedy, Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, won easily in Mass., where he is bedridden, following an airplane crash earlier this year.

Mrs. Ruffin, who stands five feet, five inches tall and weighs 140 pounds, is being held without bond for trial on a charge of murder. She is scheduled to receive a preliminary hearing in City Court this week.

The other murder, also involving a knife, was committed at The Cave, a nightclub, located at 405 E. Cabarrus Street.

Officer R. E. Keeter investigated the incident at 12:55 a.m. Monday. Three soldiers from Fort Bragg were involved, and a Raleigh civilian, 30-year-old Herbert Bankston, of 1308 S. Person St. was stabbed to death.

Allegedly an argument had ensued, erupting into a massive fight. Russell E. Holder, 21, William L. Reese, 19, and Charles Highs, 23, all of Fort Bragg, received either gunshot wounds or knife injuries in the melee.

However, Bankston's stab wound in the chest proved fatal, according to officers.

Investigating detectives said early this week that eight other soldiers from Fort Bragg may be called back to Raleigh as information indicates their involvement in the case.

The three soldiers are being held in Wake County Jail without bail in the death of Mr. Bankston. Investigation is continuing in this case.

ATTENDANT TO SHAW'S ALUMNI QUEEN—Miss Gloria Wilhelmus Lester, class of '54 is one of the attendants to Mrs. Debrae Jenkins Coppock, "Miss Alumni" of Shaw University. Miss Lester will represent the Raleigh-Wake Alumni Chapter which raised $3,510 as of June 28. A native of Raleigh, Miss Lester is a teacher at the N. C. State School for the Blind and Deaf here.

FAYETTEVILLE STREET BAPTIST RAISES OVER $4,000.—Raleigh's Fayetteville Street Baptist Church raised $4,097 in a Biblical Pageant entitled, "Is Your Name Written There." Shown, left to right, are: Clifton Rogers, who represented Gideon, and his host, Mrs. Margaret Wallace Ramsdell, his host, Jacob White, being crowned by Mrs. Vivian Brown, general chairman of the event; and Mrs. Ruth Chavis, being crowned by the Rev. W. B. Lewis, church pastor. White and Mrs. Chavis ranked first in the program; and Rogers and Mrs. Ramsdell placed second. Mr. White represented the Prophet Jeremiah, and raised the highest amount of money. The program was held on Tuesday night, October 27. Rev. Lewis said he expects the total amount to reach $5,000 by the end of November.

THESE SIGNS AGAINST THE LAW—In Raleigh's Wake County Office Building a CAROLINIAN photographer snapped these photos last week, indicating separate rest rooms for Negroes. The Public Accommodations section of the 1964 Civil Rights Law forbids this discriminatory practice. It is expected that the signs designating race will be removed in the near future.

Clinic For Cage Heads Set Sunday

ROCKY MOUNT—The Commissioner's office announced today that the annual basketball clinic for officials and coaches in the Eastern Division would be held at the Bookers T. Washington High School Gymnasium, Rocky Mount, Sunday, November 8th, at 10:00 a.m. with the well-known Joe Mills of Raleigh serving as clinician.

All officials presently registered with the Conference are required to be present for this clinic and absence precludes the official being assigned to work games for the upcoming season.

Officials working in the Western Division of the Conference held their clinic in Charlotte on October 25th, with Art Capper of that city conducting the discussion on rules and mechanics.

Approximately 200 officials and coaches are expected for the Eastern Clinic and coaches are being urged to bring their squads with them so that they may benefit from the discussions and demonstrations.

Chaplin At St. Augustine's College To Attend Confab

The Reverend Edwin E. Smith, Saint Augustine's College Chaplain, will attend a conference to be held at the College of Preachers in Washington, D. C. Nov. 9-13.

The conference will open with lectures by the Reverend Canon Douglas Webster, Theologian-Minister of the Church Missionary Society of Great Britain. During the first two days, his lectures will constitute the main concern of the conference. The remainder of the week will be devoted to Bible Study, practice preaching, and sessions devoted to a sharing with one another some experiences in the pastoral and preaching ministry.

Other outstanding Episcopal ministers from several sections of the country are expected to be present. The Reverend Charles I. Penick, rector, the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rocky Mount, and son of the late Right Reverend Edwin A. Penick, D.D., bishop of the Diocese of North Carolina and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Saint Augustine's College, will also attend the conference.
