DEAR SALLY

BY SALLY SHAW
DEAR SALLY: Am I an odd-headed freak just because I don't want a big sparkling diamond engagement ring? My mother and my older married sister seem to think so. But honestly, I'd much rather have the $500 or so plunked down on furniture or carpets for our future home. However, my mother and sister and most of my friends think my engagement is null and void, just because I don't have a ring to wave in their faces. T. G. D.
DEAR T. G. D.: There's nothing "odd-headed" about a girl who shows the good sense of values you are exhibiting. Stick to your guns, and I hope your fiancé appreciates the sensible, considerate girl he is marrying.

DEAR SALLY: When a business firm has cards engraved for Christmas, is it proper to mail them to a business associate's home, addressed to husband and wife, or should they be sent to the associate's office, addressed to him alone. THE CHIEF.
DEAR CHIEF: These may be mailed either to his home or his office, addressed to him alone—unless there has also been some business connection with his wife. If, for example, his wife has been entertained on occasion with her husband by your firm's executives, it would then be fitting and proper to include her in your Christmas greetings—and of course the card would then be mailed to the home.

DEAR SALLY: I have a REAL problem! My fiancé is in love with another girl. He's very free to admit this, but he insists in the same breath that I'm the one he wants to marry, that I'll make him a much and a much better mother to any children we might have. Whenever I see this other girl, it almost makes me sick. She's much prettier than I, and loaded with personality, too. I can really understand why my fiancé is so much attracted to her. If I didn't love him so much, I'd throw in the towel right now. Have you any advice at all for me? HEART-SICK.
DEAR HEARTSICK: I think you will be even MORE "heart-sick" if you marry this man, and spend the rest of your life with the feeling that you were

"Adventures In Negro History"
Recorded By Pepsi-Cola Co.

HENDERSON — Members of the faculties of many of the schools in this area were guests of Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, Inc., Monday night and had an opportunity to listen to a record, "Adventures in Negro History." The record was made by Pepsi-Cola and gives a rather graphic description of the part that the Negro has played in the development of America. It tells of the struggles of slavery, the pangs of hunger and destitution, the scourge of segregation and the devastation of war. It also relates how the Negro lost courage and continued to fight and pray until he is now realizing some semblance of equality. Pepsi-Cola, through its Special Market Representative, James Cameron, hopes to make this record available to teachers, students and other interested persons as another public service of the company. Billy Williams, local manager welcomed the great and gave a brief synopsis of the record. When the record was out he then asked for comments and it was the consensus that it could be of tremendous assistance to those who are interested in the advancement of the race. Mr. Cameron told of the educational scholarships offered by the company and urged the principals and teachers to have their students take advantage of the examination when they are offered in this community. The guests were served a repast by Mr. Williams and each one present was given one of the records and a carton of Pepsi-Cola. Mrs. Eadie L. Leak, a member of the faculty of Riverside High School, Louisburg, was the winner of a beautiful Pepsi-Cola cooler.
