CORE's National Chairman:

Attorney Floyd McKissick Speaks At St. Augustine's

Attorney Floyd Bixler McKissick, of Durham, National Chairman of CORE, addressed the St. Augustine's College student body at the College's regular assembly which was sponsored by the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity last week.

"The 700 B. C. prophet Amos could not read nor write, but he knew right from wrong. He had the courage to speak out against wrong in favor of right." Continuing he said, "In his day, he spoke out against wrong; he was one of the greatest men ever lived. Sometimes we place the wrong values on things. Amos spoke against social injustice in the courts, and discrimination in employment, these are the things he spoke out in 700 B. C."

"Christianity assumes a position of rightness. We are being deceived if we can not see that the whites have not met God's measurements. What do we find wrong in our society today? The Negroes do not really have equal job opportunities.

ATTORNEY MCKISSICK

nor social justice," stated the civil rights leader.

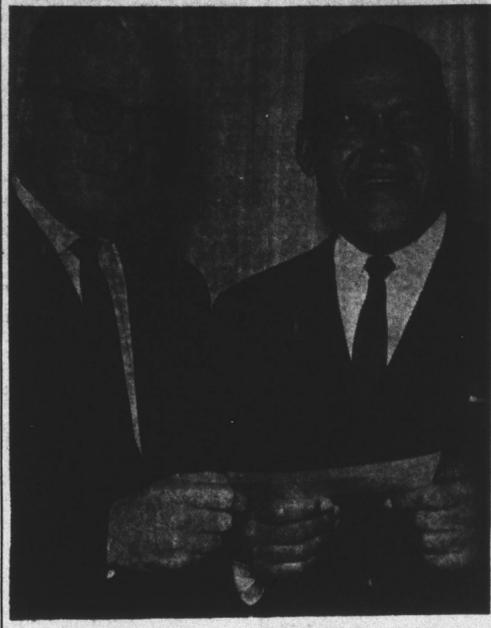

McKissick offered these words when telling the young audience that it should be proud of its color. "You should be happy to be the color, or whatever multicolor you are, because we are the true Americans. We have got nothing to be ashamed of. We should be proud of our people. We have some people who want to adopt everything that the white people have. Be proud that you are black men. Black men rule the United Nations."

"You need to accomplish something and take advantage of the education that you have now. I hope you will not become conformists when you get your education, education is not enough. You have got to have initiative," concluded the speaker.

On The Home Front

(News items this week from Wake, Cleveland, and Johnston Counties.)
WAKE COUNTY ACHIEVEMENT DAY

Many studies have been made to determine the reasons why young people drop out of school. The Wake County Home Demonstration Club members discussed the important subject at their achievement day program.

Mrs. Natalie Wimberley, home economics agent, reports that the panel discussion brought out helpful suggestions on ways of reducing the drop-out rate. Parents were urged to attend PTA meetings and work with school officials in counseling youth to aspire for higher goals.

USE OF EVERGREENS
Twelve members of the Kings Mountain Home Demonstration Club requested a workshop on making Christmas decorations. Miss Thelma McVea, home economics agent, says the ladies make wreaths and ropes of evergreens using berries, seed pod, leaves, and pine cones.

Miss McVea says the club members were asked to teach non-members in their community to make decorations using native materials.

HAT MAKING
Homemakers in Johnston County have been saving money on their clothing budget by making their own hats. Mrs. Fannie Wiggins, who is a member of the East End Demonstration Club, accompanied the home economics agent, Mrs. Lucy O. Toole to the club meeting and put up an exhibit of the hats she made.

Mrs. Toole says that Mrs. Wiggins has already taught ten other ladies techniques for making their own hats.
