A Democratic family newspaper devoted to the interest of County, State and Nation. Published every Thursday at Boone, Watauga County, N.C.

The Country Needs a Rest.

What the country needs now above all is certainty as to the future and rest from political calamity howlers. When manufacturers are in a position to look forward to the future with some degree of security as to the conditions under which they will have to work, a prompt revival may be looked for; but until then very little improvement can be expected. Full and fair discussion of so important a measure as the tariff bill is to be desired, but unfortunately very little of the current discussion is fair. Even from quarters where something better might be expected, statements and arguments on both sides are distorted by motives of partisan and personal interest. The most extravagant and unfounded statements are repeated, and, as they probably find credit to a considerable extent, the effect is necessarily bad.

What we need above all we repeat, is rest and certainty; time and the energy and enterprise of our people do what else is needed to restore prosperity. If our contemporaries of the press will stop their wild and stupid predictions of disaster if their advice is not taken, and if Congress will give us a tariff bill in a reasonable time, we need not fear for the result; delay is poison to business system of the country.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

Bristol Courier: The little hill-billy republican papers that are lifting their discordant voices and waving their unwashed hands in the patriotic air about Carlisle's bond issue out to keep on their breech-clouts, for the bonds will be printed on the plates prepared and approved under the direction of Foster, the great Ohio financier who was one of the secretaries of the treasury under icicle Ben. The deficit would have had to have been met just the same under the continued republican administration—all on account of republican extravagance and legislation. Take a whif or two of that and see how it tastes.

There is a good moral in Jane Taylor's story of the discontented pendulum which began one gloomy day to calculate how many times it would have to swing backward and forward in an hour, in a month, and then in a year, and then in ten years. How was it possible to do so much, or to work at all any given moment, with the dark prospect of so much work before it? So the pendulum stopped, nor could it be induced to start again, till it was reminded that though it would have so many times to tick in the whole year, it had the year to do it in, and was only required to do the hour's work in the hour. The anxiety which men heap upon themselves arises greatly from forgetting this, and trying to provide for tomorrow's work today. But leave tomorrow till it comes—take care of the minutes and the hours will take care of them. selves. A minute at a time, and each swing of the pendulum for God, that should be the rule of life.—Christian Standard.

Pulling up and Going West.

The exodus of farmers from Cabarrus and Stanly counties has assumed such proportions as to attract attention, and some means should be provided to put a stop to it. Dozens of some of the most thrifty families in Stanly have gone to Texas, Arkansas, and other Western States in the past six weeks, and some of the yeomenry of Cabarrus have vacated their homes for the Western land. Union county has also suffered in this respect. The News learns that some of the best homesteads in Stanly have been deserted. Along with the older people have gone young men whom we need to build up our own State. This exodus is becoming a serious matter for the counties named.—Charlotte News.

All for Drink.

There's my money—give me a drink! There's the clothing and food and fire of my wife and children—give me a drink! There's the education of the family and the peace of the house—give me a drink! There's the rent that I have robbed from my landlord and innumerable articles I have from shop keepers—give me a drink! Pour me out a drink and get more—I will pay for it! There's my health of body and peace of mind; there's my character as a Christian! I give up all—give me a drink! There's my heavenly inheritance and the eternal friendship of the redeemed! there is all hope of salvation! I give up my God! I give up all that is great and good and glorious in the universe! I resign all forever that I may be drunk!
