

Condensed Drinks

Baltimore Sun.

A man in Binghamton, N. Y., has invented a process for compressing intoxicating liquors into tablets. If his invention is all that he represents it to be, the bibulous slurrer will be able to carry enough corn juice in his vest pocket to produce a high state of intoxication. This is a wicked and thirsty old world, and the Binghamton man's invention will not make it any better. On the contrary, there is ground for the belief that when liquor can be carried around in a pillbox, the millennium will be indefinitely postponed. It is claimed in behalf of tableted whiskey that it will be of great value for medicinal use. Unfortunately, mankind has long been prone to take too kindly to prescriptions in which alcoholic preparations are the chief ingredients. Many a man, suffering from the ills to which the flesh is heir, imagines that he knows exactly how to treat his own case, and instead of going to a doctor and druggist, gets his "medicine" from the nearest compounder of high balls, mint-foleys and gin fizzes. If the Binghamton scientist has invented a process by which a man can convert his vest pocket into a portable bar-room, he will probably make a fortune for himself at the expense of the bibulously inclined. He will also, perhaps, make two toppers where only one existed before. There are unlimited possibilities for evil in the tabloid drink. Perhaps there are compensations as well. The thirsty person of the drama who finds it necessary to calm his emotions by a drink between every act can take a supply of compressed liquor to the theatre and stimulate himself without leaving his seat. Persons who are in the habit of creeping into side doors when "the coast is clear" can save time and suspense by carrying a stock of alcoholized tablets in their side pockets. There is fear, however, that if old rye and ancient Bourbon tablets become a success, the world will eventually go on a jamboree. It will be so easy to become intoxicated that even the strongest of men may fall by the wayside. The man who can compress high balls, juleps and cocktails into vest-pocket pellets ought to burn his recipe and save his soul.

When the Republicans represent themselves as friends of American labor, ask them how it comes that the Republicans tried to pass an anti-trust bill making labor organizations unlawful, and that when the Democrats offered an amendment that "Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to apply to trade unions or other labor organizations, organized for the purpose of regulating wages, hours of labor, or other conditions under which labor is to be performed," the Republican leaders, including Cannon and Littlefield, voted against the amendment.

Durham Sun: The "full dinner pail" is credited with having a good deal to do with Republican success in 1900. The "meatless dinner pail" and the "coalless sentiment" may prove a factor in 1902.

When the Republicans tell you that the tariff makes things cheaper, ask them if they are not well enough acquainted with their own doctrine of protection to know that the primary object of the protection was to hold prices up and to keep out any competition that would undersell American manufacturers.

When the Republicans tell you that we had such hard times in 1893, ask them if they are really so ignorant of the political history of our country as not to know that the panic of that year came while the McKinley tariff law was still in force, and before the Wilson tariff bill had been passed. And ask them if they are aware of the fact that the great panic of 1873 came under a Republican administration and under the highest protective tariff the country has ever known.
