Their Own Convenience, Not The People.

The following dispatch from Washington shows how little the people's interests are considered by the lawmakers at Washington and how well they look after their own conveniences at the people's expense. The Senate passes $150 000 for the reclamation of 50,000,000 acres of land, but appropriates $3,000 000 to give its members a better view of a railroad depot.

"An amendment carrying in appropriation of $150,000 to show the people of the South how to drain and reclaim 50,000,000 acres of the most valuable land in the United States, was kept out of the sundry civil bill by reason of the opposition of Senator Hale, of Maine. The amendment was introduced in the Senate by Senator Posey, of Louisiana, and enforced by Southern Senators. With the elimination of the drainage amendment, there was incorporated in the same bill by the same Senator from Maine an amendment appropriating $3,600,000 for the purchase of seventy-three acres to afford a better view of the new station from the Capitol and office building occupied by Senators. The amendment that was eliminated from the bill by the Senator from Maine would have resulted in the development of 50,000,000 acres of the richest and most productive land in the entire country, thus adding hundreds of millions in dollars to the wealth of the nation. The amendment incorporated in the bill at the instance of Senator Hale satisfied the whim of a few Senators. The first amendment is endorsed by the farmers of the country, three large delegations having come to Washington from the South and Southwest and appeared before committees of Congress to urge the importance of the appropriation for a survey with the object of proving how this waste land may be drained for settlers and home seekers. The 2nd amendment is endorsed mighty by people who live in Washington City."

Number One.

"He is a number one boy," said grandmother, proudly. "A great boy for his books; indeed he would rather read than play, and that is saying a good deal for a boy of seven."

"It is, certainly," returned Uncle John; "but what a pity he is blind."

"Blind!" exclaimed grandmother and the number one boy looked up, too, in wonder.

"Yes, blind, and a little deaf, also, I fear," answered Uncle John.

"Why, John! what put that into your head?" asked grandmother, looking perplexed.

"Why the number one boy himself," said Uncle John. "He has been occupying the one easy chair in the room all the afternoon, never seeing you nor his mother. Then she came in for a few minutes' rest. Then when your glasses were mislaid, and you had to climb upstairs two or three times to look for them, he neither saw nor heard anything that was going on."

"Oh, he was so busy reading!" apologized grandmother.

"That is not a very good excuse, mother, replied Uncle John smiling. "If 'Number One' is not blind nor deaf he must be deaf, he must be very selfish indeed to occupy the seat in the room and let older people run up and down stairs while he takes his ease."

"Nobody asked me to give up my seat nor to run on errands,"

"That should not have been necessary," urged urged Uncle John. "What are a boy's eyes and ears for if not to look him posted on what is going on around him? I am glad to see you fond of books, but it is pretty sharp indeed when you forget all things except amusing 'Number One,' better run out and play with the other seven year old boys and let grandmother enjoy the comfort of her rocker in quiet.—Youth's Evangelist.

Charlotte Evening Chronicle.

It seems that we do not even yet know all about the cotton crop. We had been under the impression that the one which will be quite roughly 11 million bales would be cast by the people living seventy-five years hence, but there is a slight gloom in Christian Herald, by Samuel Phelps Leland says of the comet which has "doubled the rope of the sun and consumed its long journey through the sky," that for over thirty-eight years it will rush through trackless space at a rate of speed past our comprehension. It will stop at no way stations. After this long journey it will swing about in its celestial pathway towards our sun again. Its return will consume another thirty-eight years, provided it shall return at all. Should it have attained sufficient momentum in its present visit to carry it beyond the confines of our solar system it may be wrested upon by the attractive power of another sun, and may never return to us again. It is very probable that many of our comets have left our system forever, and that many seen in from other systems have come to us. The journey which this comet is to make is a perilous one. It is attended with many dangers. Planets are scattered through the sky. They are rolling on their attractive forces across the comet's path. They are dangerous. Highwaymen. They may drag the comet into themselves, or may convert it into a satellite to revolve around some primary.

Stanley and His Book.

Before I met Henry M. Stanley I had talked with men who had been under him in his African expeditions, and all they told me about him was more or less unpleasant. He was not inhuman; but in desperate straits by starvation or other men or beast, he never would hesitate or defer to the counsel or the pleas of others or have any patience with less than instant and unquestioning obedience to his orders under all circumstances. He would not forbear under arguments or excuses or delay necessity by any familiarity or pleasantries even when his object had been gained. He was both despot and martinet—stern, exacting, uncompromising, silent, humorless, insatiable, Cromwellian.

"I cannot say we loved him," one of his lieutenants said to me. We were all afraid of him, but we all believed in him. When he had at his side in his hand he had his Bible. No matter where our camp was or how long and distressing our march had been, he never missed his bath and shave in the morning."
