The Regulators of Shady Bend.

Shady Bend is a little village in the State of Kansas. There was a young lady school teacher in the village named Miss Mary Chamberlain. Certain parties circulated stories about her. She was weak and unprotected and had no one to protect her. In a name Without investigating the truth or falsity of the charges, a band of brutes in pantaloons assumed the task of regulating the community, organized a mob took the school teacher out, stripped her, and sneered over her a coat of tar and feathers. Then with a self-consciousness of having regulated the morals of the neighborhood, they wended their several ways homeward, all thanking God that they were not as this poor frightened and half dead girl. Fortunately the conscience of Shady Bend was not bound up in the mob. The courts have gone to work and several convictions have been had, all with inadequate penalties. It is stated that the stories were libelous and altogether false; that they originated with scandal mongering men and women and that the girl bore the very highest character and charity. But whether she was all that had been said of her, the members of the mob ought all to have been dipped in boiling oil, then scalded, then roasted slowly over hot coals, and afterward torn to fragments and thrown to wild beasts. Who put up a set of brute men to set in judgment on those of the weaker sex? Why were they called on to regulate the morals of the community. There was a bunch of just such scoundrels who brought a poor, trembling girl before the master to be judged under the Mosaic law. When he turned to them and said, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her, they all slunk away like the cowardly eels they were. They were as burning and sliding lights in synagogues of righteousness as compared with these scoundrels of Shady Bend. Lay this proposition down, and let it sink deep into the recesses of your heart: The man who lays a finger in anger on a woman is not a fit companion for a real gentlemanly devil. When he gets to his final abiding place, he will have to seek one of the lower pits.—Bowling Green Messenger.

Saved Many From Death.

W. L. Meek, of Meek, Ark., believes he has saved many lives in his 25 years experience in the drug business. "What I always like to do," he writes, "is to recommend Dr. King's New Discovery for weak, sore lungs, hard colds, hoarseness, obstinate coughs, la grippe, croup, asthma or other bronchial affection, and for all other ailments of the chest and lungs. I honestly believe it is the best throat and lung medicine that's made." Easy to prove he's right. Get a trial bottle free, or regular 50c or $1.00 bottle. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

Bill—How's his business going? Jill—Like clockwork. Bill—Why I heard he'd failed. So he has. They've just wound up his business.—Yonkers Statesman.

Starts Much Trouble.

EFFECT OF CIGARETTE SMOKING.

"You smoke thirty cigarettes a day?" "Yes on an average." "You don't blame them for your run-down condition?" "Not in the least. I blame my hard work."

The physician shook his head. He smiled in a vexed way. Then he took a leech out of a glass jar.

"Let me show you something," he said. "Bare your arm." The cigarette smoker bared his pale arm, and the other laid the leech black-leech upon it. The leech fell to work busily. Its body began to swell. Then all of a sudden a kind shudder convulsed it, and it fell to the floor dead.

"That is what your blood did to that leech," said the physician. He took up the little corpse between his finger and thumb. "Look at it," he said. "Quite dead, you see. You poisoned it."

"I guess it wasn't a healthy leech in the first place," said the cigarette smoker, suddenly.

"Wasn't healthy, eh? Well we'll try again."

And the physician clapped two leeches on the young man's thin arm.

"If they both die," said the patient, "I'll swear off—or, at least I'll cut down my allowance from thirty to ten daily."

Even as he spoke the smaller leech shivered and dropped on his knee, dead and motionless. The larger one fell beside it.

"This is gashtly," said the young man.

"I am worse than the pestilence to these leeches."

"It is the empyreumatic oil in your blood," said the medical man. "All cigarette smokers have it."—New England Outlook

That narrow Sectarianism which formerly afflicted many devout members of the various religious faiths is getting to be a thing of the past. The time was when the leaders of the different churches did not co-operate in the accomplishment of the noble work for which the church was organized. In pleasing contrast with the former conditions it is gratifying to note the friendliness and brotherly love existing between all Christian workers. The union services held in the Methodist church Thanksgiving Day was inspiring and helpful, and its greatest value came from the fact that the different denominations participated in the services.—Lenoir Topie.

An Alarm at Night

That strikes terror to the entire household is the loud, hoarse and metallic cough of croup. No mistaking it, and fortunate then the lucky parents that keep Foley's Honey and Tar Compound on hand. H. W. Cassleman, Canton, N. Y., says: "It is worth its weight in gold. Our little children are troubled with croup and hoarseness, and all we give them is Foley's Honey and Tar compound. I always have a bottle of it in the house." For sale by all dealers.

Doctor—I must forbid all brain work.—Poet—May I not write some verses? Doctor—Oh, certainly.—Christian Intelligencer.

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment she was well. For sale by all dealers.

Infant Eulalia

New York Sun. It is no news to Americans that the Infanta's ways are unconventional for she spent several weeks here in 1893 as the guest of this county and the representative of the Queen Regent, mother of Alfonso XIII, at the Chicago exposition. A Chicago paper thus describes her at that time:

"She has been a most fascinating and interesting creature when she pleased on me—a temper of joyousness and a million horse-power will, and does not care a rap for any of the laws of propriety or what people say about her. A stranger seeing her for the first time would put her down in the 25-year-old class, and her heart still palpitates in the Spanish style."

The Infanta had columns and columns in the New York papers after her arrival here on May, 18 1893. She was greeted by Mayor Gilroy, who died last Friday. A great ball was given in her honor in Madison Square Garden and the list of patronesses was headed by Mrs. Astor. Tradition has it that she exercised her royal privilege by asking the mayor to dance with her and was quite put out when he declined the honor because he didn't know how to dance.

She was taken to see West Point, escorted by General Horace Porter. She once attended the races and lost $40 on the only horse she bet on. At the normal college she told 1,900 young women that she would be supremely happy if she could sit on the benches with them. One evening 15,000 persons crowded the plaza in front of the Hotel Savoy where she was staying and cheered her when she appeared on the balcony.

She rode on the front seats of street cars and became very tired boxing at the crowds that saluted her. She was photographed in her innumerable gowns. When she left this city for Chicago she gave the headwater of the Hotel Savoy $500 to be distributed among the servants who had attended her. She gave Mrs. Gilroy the Royal Spanish monogram made up of precious stones set in gold.

Her reception at Chicago was another crush. She attended the world's fair incognito and busied on seeing everything. A dispatch of the time said: "The democracy of Princess Eulalia is positively astounding." She left the concert that had been arranged in her honor to adjourn to the Midway Plaisance for beer and sausages. She went to Mass at a poor church when she was expected at the Cathedral. At a reception given by Mrs. Potter Palmer Eulalia got tired of being presented to Chicago society and abruptly requested her escort to take her to the conservatory. The guests who had not been presented went away aghast.

The Princess has two sons. She lives in Paris.

Where The Locality Does Not Count.

Wherever there are people suffering from kidney and bladder ailments, from backache, rheumatism and urinary irregularities, Foley Kidney Pills will help them. Belvidere, Ill. E. A. Kelly, an engineer, says: "Three years ago my kidneys became so bad that I was compelled to give up my engine and quit. There was a severe aching pain over the hips, followed by an inflammation of the bladder, and always a thick sediment. Foley Kidney Pills made me a sound and well man. I can not say too much in their praise." For sale at all druggists.

Schools in Politics.

The successful effort to prevent Mr. Coon concluding his address was lead, we are informed by county superintendents. Those superintendents met afterward and endorsed State Supt. Joyner. That part was all right, for Mr. Joyner is a splendid man and has wrought well for the schools. An attempt in a meeting of city school superintendents to endorse State's educational policy met with so much opposition that it was dropped. Here the politics of the situation is made clear. Many of the county superintendents owe their job to politics rather than merit. Realizing that they felt called on to resent any criticism of the State's educational policy. What is or is not best for the State's welfare educationally is beside the question with some of them—not all of them we are sure. But the party is responsible for the school system and the system must not be criticised. If the State's educational policy isn't strong enough to stand criticism then it is in bad shape and we must believe that Supt. Joyner is big enough and broad enough to welcome criticism. The city superintendents, not so much controlled by politics had the nerve to decline to endorse State's educational system because they claim the privilege to do their own thinking.—The Landmark.

There's No Bad Weather.

The human mind is not naturally thankful; but is prone to ingratitude and complaint.

We are all too prone to discuss and find fault with the weather which seldom suits us. If it is today genial sunshine, the fear of evil storms or bad weather tomorrow mars our pleasure. Instead of counting our many blessings and returning thanks for same, we are always looking for and fearing bad weather.

The farmer is too often a pessimist fearful that some disaster may tomorrow ruin their crops. His mind should dwell on the thousand blessings which brighten his life. Counting our blessings is good for soul help the human mind expand and lightens our daily mental attitude. Be glad and return thanks for the weather that comes to us right, and better than any that we could devise or plan.

Receive with cheerfulness a any kind of weather that comes and remember there is no bad weather. Nothing happens by chance and we find that God, not chance is in every happening!

Let us remember the words of England's great writer, John Ruskin, "Sunshine is delicious, rain is refreshing, wind braces us up, snow is exhilarating, there is really no such thing as bad weather, only different kinds of Good Weather."

A Father's Vengeance

would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bandy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attack of kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help him," he wrote, "so at we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. It's the best kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, tired feeling, nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of kidney trouble that may end in dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Beware! Take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed, 50c at all Druggists.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Checking the Man With the Axe.

The "Appalachean Park" is to be a reality. The area of the 18,500 acres in the Mount Mitchell region of North Carolina is a respectable reservation in itself and the news that it has been purchased will be heard gladly by the people of the south.

One who has been familiar with the glorious Blue Ridge mountains for a quarter of a century must have observed the broads upon their beauty that have made. Only a little while ago and one rarely saw a bald spot on the mountain side and even more rarely a gully. Now they show many an ugly scar and every year then have become less beautiful as the man with the axe marched on.

The preservation of the mountain forest is necessary to the regulation of the flow of water on the earth, so the scientists say—the woodlands protect the valleys below and many mile distant from the crushing of the floods—but there are those of us who think that they are worth preserving for no better reason than they are beautiful and because the wrong of depriving our children and their children of their beauty would be deep and cruel. That the purchasing of the mountain lands has begun is refreshing and revived tidings and will renew the zeal of those who have contributed in arousing the public sentiment that brought about the passage of the Weeks law by Congress.—Columbia State.

You will find that druggists everywhere speak well of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. They know from long experience in selling it that in cases of coughs and colds it can be depended upon and that it is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

"George says he loves that little curl over your right ear." I'm glad to know that, I was just about to hang it on the other side."—Kansas City Journal.

MUSTANG LINIMENT

CURED A BAD SPAVIN.

Mr. J. H. Ives, Marion, N. C., writes: "My horse had a very bad case of spavin and was doing very poorly. I tried many different remedies, but failed. I finally got a bottle of Mustang Liniment and used it as directed. It cured the spavin in a few days and my horse was completely cured. It is sure to cure if properly used."
