The duty was removed from hides and the price of shoes went up. Pull can come in free from Canada, but because of it there has been no reduction in the price of paper. The fact is that the Sugar trust fixes the price of sugar without regard to duties. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

Of course the free-listing of hides has had no effect in reducing the prices of shoes or other manufactures of leather, and no body possessing a modicum of intelligence and taking the trouble to use it, could have ever seriously thought that it would. It is the finished product, not the raw material, that the great mass of consumers buy. To remove the duty on the latter, without at the same time making a corresponding reduction in the tariff rates on the former, was simply to cheapen by so much the cost of production to the manufacturer without insuring that the consumer should benefit by the saving effected.

A result identically similar would follow upon legislation putting raw sugar on the free list, while maintaining the existing duties on the refined product. In that event the trust would be the gainer, while the great body of domestic consumers would reap no iota of benefit. Such, however is not the democratic bill. That measure provides for the free listing alike of the refined article and the raw product and so removes the stranglehold which the duties on the former give the trust on the domestic. Between this proposed legislation and that actually enacted in relation to hides there is a wide difference which only wilful blindness can fail clearly to recognize.

As to the Inquirer's contention that the sugar trust fixes the price of sugar without regard to duties, it is only necessary to point to two indisputable facts to show the absolute absurdity of that: First, the trust has for years consistently and vigorously opposed, and still any and all efforts to lower the duties on refined sugar; secondly, the difference between the prices at which the trust sells its products in New York and in London is almost identical with the duty on refined sugar under the existing tariff law. If the trust could control the domestic market as well without the tariff as with it, why should it be so insistent upon the maintenance of the existing duties at all? Again, is the fact the difference between the trust's selling price at home and abroad exactly equals the tariff duty only a co-incidence and nothing more? Maybe the Inquirer so believes; but, if so, it is only because the wish is father to the thought.

Repels Attack of Death.

"Five years ago two doctors told me I had only two years to live." This startling statement was made by Stillman Green, Malachite, Col. "They told me I would die of consumption. It was then up to me to try the best lung medicine and I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery. It was well I did, for today I am working and believe I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure that has cheated the grave of another victim." It's folly to suffer with coughs, colds or other throat and lung troubles now. Take the cure that's the safest. Price 50c. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists.

Pellagra A Puzzle Still.

Charlotte Observer:

After studying pellagra for many months, the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service declares that it must leave the problem unsolved. No one knows the cause of pellagra aside from the undoubted connection between this disease and the use of spoiled corn. It cannot be contended that spoiled corn is the sole cause, as the nature of the connection remains unknown and pellagra has occurred among people who had never in their lives eaten corn. In this country our students of the disease have not evidenced to convict corn of any guilt at all. But in Italy the matter has been elaborately tested with one invariable result. It is found that pellagra can be controlled in the worst afflicted district if the Government enforces abandonment of both the cultivation and the consumption of corn. Pellagra is practically confined to the corn consuming districts, increasing or decreasing with the consumption of corn. It was unknown until this native American crop had been introduced there.

The Public Health and Marine Hospital Service considered various theories which have been advanced on the subject including one—perhaps advanced from interested motives and evidently absurd—that cotton seed oil is to blame. It found no ground whatever for this supposition. As regards theories implicating certain vegetables and the goat theory, it was unable in case to find the proof.

People who eat corn cured in the shock are perfectly safe. There seems to be little doubt, in fact that Southern cases of pellagra mark some special connection with the use of Western corn, which has much opportunity to ferment or spoil before it arrives here. Certainly pellagra's extensive spread followed upon the extended use of Western corn. On grounds equally of health and thrift the South should produce at home all the corn required. Meantime we must continue hoping for more light upon this dreaded disease. The medical scientist who affords it will be hailed by Southern people as a benefactor indeed.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. J. T. Curtiss, Dwight, Kans. He writes: "I not only have cured bad cases of eczema in my patients with Electric Bitters, but also cured myself by them of the same disease. I feel sure that they will cure any case of eczema." This shows what thousands have proved, that Electric Bitters is a most effective blood purifier. It's an excellent remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates the liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Price 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.

Those democrats who seem to be exercised over the prospects of the Col. getting the republican nomination for president, should go off and smother themselves. Let him have it, if they want to give it to him. It is the business of the democrats to look after their own candidate and put out a man that will beat any old thing they nominate.—Ex.

A GOOD LONESOME.

"Be good and you will be lonesome."

Who was it that said this to you? Mark it down that he was certainly not a man to be trusted. The enemy of your soul first prompted that saying.

What was he saying then.

He was saying that the young man who is fair and right and honest in his examinations is the student who will be shunned by those who resort to the other sort of a thing to win their diploma. That if you do not stand still and listen to the story which is full of wickedness and laugh at it afterward, you are to be "cut" by the fellows of your class. That if you would rather walk through country, or read a good book or visit some great library or temple of art, you are "no good" and not eligible to the company of "good fellows."

It is good to be lonesome sometimes.

When it costs a little bit of maddness to have a "good time" better go quietly away and sit down alone. When to be sure of company one must "stand in with the boys," yielding something that has been always dearer than life itself, better hold on the treasure, even though silence and a room all alone are the penalty.

Alone!

Never! The young person who holds fast to his integrity at the cost of the companionship of this who quote to him that cutting thing never will be alone, no matter where he may go. Close by his side will walk the angel of God who stayed the flames from lapping the bodies of the three in furnace of fire and held his hand on the leash of the lions which were turned out to tear the limbs of Daniel asunder!

Alone!

Blessed loneliness which comes from putting away evil! That is the loneliness which bring God himself near and makes life purer, sweeter, grander. It the loneliness which wins even those who sneer, for in their very heart of hearts those who thus challenge you to join them on the pathway to sin, honor and respect you say, "I would rather with him out yonder, all than to tread the primrose way of evil with all the rest of the world!"—Selected.

C. A. Glossner, 24 Ontario, St., Rochester N. Y., has recovered from a long and severe attack of kidney trouble, his cure being due to Foley's Kidney Pills. After detailing his case, "I am sorry I did not learn earlier of Foley's Kidney Pills. In a few day's time my back-ache completely left me and I felt greatly improved. My kidneys became stronger, dizzy spells left me and I was no longer annoyed at night. I feel 100 per cent better since using Foley's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers.

He or The Dog!

"My dog is a great companion," said a man to me the other day.

"He sleeps in the same room with me every night."

"Don't you know that is unhealthy?" I asked him.

"Well," replied the man, "he's used to it now."—Exchange.

SAME OLD STORY.

Charlotte News:

Another pitiful story comes in today from Durham. If the fact set forth in the bill of charges are true, a young white man has betrayed the confidence of a beautiful mill girl, and ruined her. It seems that the girl was induced to consent to marriage. Accordingly a ceremony was gone through with which the girl thought to be regular and binding. Later developments show that a fake magistrate had been called in to play and spurious ceremony performed.

The girl was deceived into believing that she was regularly wedded, and since the mock ceremony has been living with the reprobate who deceived her. The case leaked out, facts became known, and the gay deceiver of a young girl's confidence and her trust was jailed. At the hearing yesterday he was convicted and sentenced to 12 months on the roads.

It is the same old story, handed down from one sorrowing heart to another since the world began. Man's inhumanity to woman!

Twelve months for the scoundrel who by deceit and perjury seduced and ruined a girl—and a life sent to the victim of his hellish plot!

At the end of the twelve months period the young man will return to society. He will be welcomed back into many homes. Some of his kindred spirits will congratulate him on his cleverness. He will find other factory girls, and he will perhaps, keep up the diabolical work he has commenced.

Society will welcome him back. But what of the girl. What home will invite her through her portals? What man will seek her hand in marriage? What chance has she in a world ever ready to stone a branded woman? It matters not if her soul is as pure as an angel's. She must suffer through life the stigma cast by a villain who broke a heart and uned a life with the price of a twelve months sentence.

Arizona Twice Admitted.

A remarkable coincidence touching the admission of Arizona to the Union is pointed out in a dispatch from Phoenix. On February 14, 1862, it appears, President Jefferson Davis issued a proclamation admitting it to the confederate states of America; just 50 years later today President Taft issued a proclamation admitting it to the Union. As need hardly be said, Arizona did not enter the confederacy, and a little more than a year after Davis' proclamation, on February 24, 1863, it was made a territory under the Lincoln government. Presumably Mr. Taft did not know when he issued his proclamation on Wednesday of this week, that he was observing a picturesque semi centennial.—Providence Journal.

OLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR DYSURIC KIDNEY AND BLADDER

ONE OF THESE DAYS.

Say! Let's forget it! Let's put it aside! Life is so large and the world is so wide.

Days are so short and there's so much to do. What if it was false, there's so much that's true! Say! Let's forget it—brush it away. Now and forever—so what do you say? All the bitter words said shall be praise.

One of these days. Say! Let's forget it! Let's wipe off the slate. Find something higher to cherish than hate. There's so much good in the world that we've had. Let's strike a balance and cross off the bad. Say! Let's forget it! whatever it be, Let's not be slaves when we ought to be free. We shall be living in sunny ways. One of these days.

Say! Let's not mind it! Let's smile it away! Bring not a withered rose from yesterday. Flowers are so fresh by the way side and wood. Sorrows are blessings but half understood. Say! Let's not mind it, however it seems. Hope is so sweet and holds so many dreams. All of the sere fields with blossom shall blaze. One of these days.

Say! Let's not take it so sorely to heart. Hates may be friendships just drifted apart. Failure be genius not quite understood. We could all help folks so much if we would! Say! Let's get closer to somebody's side. See what his dreams are and know how he tried. Learn if your seedlings won't give way to praise. One of these days.

Say! Let's not wither! Let's branch out and rise. Out of the byways and nearer the skies. Let's spread some shade that's refreshing and deep. Where some tired traveler may lie down and sleep. Say! Let's not tarry! Let's do it right now! So much to do if we just find out how. We may not be here to help folks or praise. One of these days.
