WHAT OF THE VICTORY?

Savoyard, in Asheville Citizen.

This is written before the election but it will be printed after the election. It is a campaign marked by the public utterances of Woodrow Wilson and his preachments are the sagest political and economic philosophy the country has heard in fifty years and more. Pray God he has the hand to match that head of his. I believe he has the hand, I know he has the heart. The lions in his path will be the fools in his own party in Congress. These made Cleveland's administration a political failure. They will be there, too, to destroy Wilson. Much water has passed the mill since 1893. The people are more alert.

Listen to what our president said Aug. 7, in his letter of acceptance:

"I could not have accepted a nomination which left me bound to any man or any group of men. No man can be just who is not free, and no man who has to show favors in any rank or post whatever, least of all in the supreme post of president of the United States.

Was there ever a higher estimate put upon the great place of chief magistrate of 100,000,000 people composing the greatest republic of history? Every intelligent man who saw the Baltimore convention will bear witness that there was no bargain there. If candidate was ever the child of public opinion in our country, Woodrow Wilson was that candidate. At one season of that struggle I was nearly ready to fear the result—for from my standpoint, that convention had in its keeping more than a thousand Caesars and all their fortunes. I met a friend to cheer me up and his words were: "Telepathy will make the nomination; by it the American people will force the nomination of Woodrow Wilson." It did, and it elected him. Since July 2 there has been seeming apathy. Why? Because the day the president was named at Baltimore and the thing was done. Why go mad over it?

There is no doubt that Theodore Roosevelt is a very accomplished politician in the past even more fortunate than he was able. But he made a mistake, due to a lack of instinct, a fault that cannot be charged to Andrew Jackson, or Abraham Lincoln. Gen. Longstreet went to his grave in the belief that the cause of the South was lost because Gen. Lee had what was almost contempt for the prowess of the federal army of the Potomac as compared with the splendid fighting qualities of his own command. That may or may not be true, and doubtless it is untrue. But there is no sort of doubt that Roosevelt had utter disdain, scornful contempt for the Democratic party, that in his philosophy—if I may borrow from the poet pope—was a combination, every inch of which that was not fool was knave and he was sure the fools were yet 90 per cent of 'em.

Hence the third party. Roosevelt was as sure of the nomination of Champ Clark at Baltimore as he had been that he would be the republican nominee for president in 1904, eight years before. If he had foreseen—as he would have foreseen had he been endowed with the sublime instinct of a great popular leader—that Wilson would be named at Baltimore he would have called out of the republican national convention his every delegate, had them assemble in some hall to nominate him, and from thence he would have laid claim to the "genuine" republican nomination. Had he done that, today he would be boss of the republican party and its "regular" nominee. Defeated, of course, he would be; but master of the situation in 1916.

But he never dreamed of Wilson. He thought he must contend with Taft and Clark of the two old parties. He argued that he could muster nearly all the progressives of both old parties, and that maybe he could win in 1912 and not have to wait four years longer. Did you ever read the memories of Marbot, the staff officer of Marshall Lannes of Napoleon's "Grand Army"? It reveals a great mistake of even the genius that carried the eagles of France victorious into every capital from frozen Russia to sunny Spain.

And such is the mistake Roosevelt made when he betted on Champ Clark. What will the harvest be? It is no crime in this country to predict—else all of us had been in the penitentiary long ago. Here is what Roosevelt and Hearst think the reapers will get in their sickles: democratic failure through president and congress be of that faith. Roosevelt thinks that because he is thoroughly persuaded that no reform is moral or legal that does not purvey. Hearst thinks that it will be a failure because will be a democratic administration, a thing and a situation that he is so averse so as to make it impossible of success in his philosophy. And thus in 1916 we may expect this spectacle—can Hearst buy the progressive party? Can he mobilize Bill Flinn and all the Bill Flinns of that layout? We shall see.

Meanwhile the Woodrow Wilson administration is going to get a heap of cussing. It will be deserted by many more or less good men who think themselves democrats, better than he, but the people will "rise to it," as the pit rose to Kean, and good will come of it.

Here, I don't want an office. Flock to me, all democrats in that fix, and let us help Woodrow Wilson save our people from the greed of monopoly.

Saved By His Wife.

She's a wise woman who knows just what to do when her husband's life is in danger, but Mr. R. J. Flint Braintree, Vt., is that kind. "She insisted on my using Dr. King's New Discovery," writes Mr. F. "for a dreadful cough, when I was so weak my friends all thought I had only a short time to live, and it completely cured me." A quick cure for coughs and colds, it is the most safe and reliable medicine for many throat and lung troubles—grip, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, tonsillitis, hemorrhages. A trial will convince you 50c, and $1. Guaranteed by all dealers.

The Charlotte Observer's information that the Galax industry in the mountain counties had failed this year turns out to be erroneous. A correspondent of that paper, writing from Linville Falls, says orders are being received and the industry will soon be in full blast.—Landmark.

Avoid Sedative Cough Medicines.

If you want to contribute directly to the occurrence of capillary bronchitis and pneumonia use cough medicines that contain codeine, morphine, and other sedatives when you have a cough or cold. An expectorant like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is what is needed. That cleans out the culture beds of breeding places of the germs of pneumonia and other germ diseases. That is why pneumonia never results from results from a cold when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It has a world-wide reputation for its cures. It contains no morphine or other sedative. FOLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR BACKACHE, KIDNEY AND BLADDER

Two Pitfalls Revealed.

Lexington Dispatch.

Had the campaign borne no other fruit it would still have been worth while for two crushing blows that it struck at demagogic tactics. The first of these is the clearness with which it has been demonstrated that the man who is so egotistical and thoughtless that he believes that his unsupported word, like Caesar's, "might have stood against the world" and who therefore vilifies and slanders his opponent and everybody else who has the audacity to oppose or even disagree with him, with no regard for either truth or decency, is digging his own political grave. That sort of work is Blasphemy, and the opinion of certain prominent men to the contrary notwithstanding Blasphemy doesn't work in North Carolina. Let our neighbor to the south boast of her "wool hat boys;" the voters of North Carolina are intelligent clear-thinking men, accustomed to weigh the issues and cast their ballots accordingly, and the only way a candidate can hope to swing their votes is by presenting clear and convincing arguments with hard facts to back them up. It would be a matter of pride with all Tar Heels that in this state a campaign of mud-slinging only serves to arouse aversion for the slinger.

The second blow was at the contemptible effort to ride into office on church relationship; in North Carolina church and state are absolutely separate, and when a man attempts to garner votes because he is a member of a certain church he does no more than arouse a strong suspicion that he ought to be turned out of his church, for he isn't helping himself and he is bringing discredit on his denomination. Perhaps it is legitimate for a man's friends to mention the fact that he is a member of a certain church by way of proving his good character, but to insinuate to a North Carolinian that he ought to vote for any man simply because he belongs to the voter's church serves only to rouse the Tar Heel's wrath.

This was the first campaign in many years in which such methods had been used and it is difficult to imagine why men who ought to be politically wise allowed themselves to be deceived into believing that by sowing such seed they could possibly reap any other harvest than disaster. However, they have their lesson now, and it results in compelling every candidate in the future to come before the people on his own record and his own character alone all the labor of teaching it will be well repaid.

Mrs. T. A. Town, 107, 6th St. Watertown, S. C., writes: "My four children are subject to a cold and I always use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound with splendid results. Some time ago I had a severe attack of grippe and the doctor prescribed Noley's Honey and Tar Compound and it soon overcame the lagrippe. I can always depend upon Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and am sure of good results." For sale by all dealers.

Mr. H. C. Loudon, Chief Engineer of the Watauga Railway was here a few days this week. He says work is progressing nicely on the construction of the road out from North Wilkesboro. They now have about five miles in use getting out materials and supplies. He has about 250 hands at work and wants as many more if he can get them.—The Lenoir News.

The Wake Forest Tragedy.

Charity and Children.

Friends of Wake Forest College were pained to hear of the shooting of a young man, Frank Powers, a resident of the village, though not a student in the college, by a young man named Rhodes. If the story comes to us straight, Rhodes was clearly within his rights, and ought to be permitted to pursue his work at the college whether his victim lives or dies. He was assaulted on the public highway as he was returning from a social call which he had a perfect right to make whether he was a freshman or not; and being attacked he had a right to defend himself. However, the impression that the hazers were all boys of the village and not of the school, is an error. A gentleman who knows the facts tells us that there were some four or five boys in the party and among them several students. Let us tell the truth about this matter wherever it may hurt. The fact that hazing has been going on at Wake Forest in the shadow of the Chapel Hill horror, does not speak well for the conditions that obtain there. If such a deplorable occurrence as that at the University will not suffice to check the evil of the evil at our other colleges we can realize how deep seated is the disease and how heroic must be the remedy. For there is a remedy and it must be applied. We have been told by students in sympathy with hazing that it cannot be stopped—that it is inherent in the nature of a boy to indulge in this barbarous practice. However, we know better than that. It is just as consistent to say that no other form of lawlessness can be uprooted, and therefore we would as well allow the outlaws to take charge of the country and run it to suit themselves. And we are obliged to say another thing: unless hazing is broken up at Wake Forest, there will be nobody there to haze. Fathers will not intrust their sons to an institution that is powerless to enforce its own laws. The life of a college depends upon the proper settlement of this question. The board of trustees are wise and capable men. If the faculty cannot control the situation the board ought to try its hand.

J. G. Criswell, a painter living at 519 N. Mulberry Street, Hagerstown, Maryland, states: "I had kidney trouble with a severe pain in my back, and could hardly get up after sitting down. It took Foley Kidney Pills and soon found the pain left my back. I could get up and down with ease, and the bladder action was more regular and normal." Try them. For sale by all dealers.

In these days of high nervous tension, when everything from a sewing machine to a railroad locomotive is being run at the top of its speed, and every man from the judge to the janitor is complaining of the pressure of work; when men are too busy to be kind, and too hurried to be happy; when they run the mental and physical machinery at such speed that it breaks down and is on the scrap heap before it is half worn out, anything which will help to lessen the tension and render life more enjoyable is surely worth considering, and the restraint of anger is certainly such a subject.—Christian Guardian.

Mrs. Paul Mehling, 316, Smith St., Peoria, Ill. had kidney and bladder trouble, with terrible backache and pain across the hips. Just imagine her condition. She further says: "I was also very nervous, had headache and dizzy spells, and was fast getting worse when I took Foley Kidney Pills, and now I am cured of all my troubles. Foley Kidney Pills have done so much for me I shall always recommend them." For sale by all dealers.

FOLEY'S URINO LAXATIVE
FOR STOMACH TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION

Our Orphan Homes.

The Thanksgiving Proclamation of the President, which has just been published to the people of this great country, calling upon us to stop our usual vocations long enough to consider from whence comes unprecedented prosperity which we as a nation have been enjoying, comes with a voice of authority. Truly every heart can find genuine gratitude to the Great Giver of all good.

While your minds are directed to the consideration of the Source from whence these blessings come and a feeling of thanksgiving is thereby engendered for the goodness of our Heavenly Father, we feel that this is the best time to bring to the attention of our readers the needs of the various orphan homes in our state where the little ones who have lost their earthly protectors are being cared for and trained.

These children receive the great blessing of these homes through your generosity. They are dependent upon you. Their numbers are increasing as are the advantages they receive, which necessitate larger contributions from the people. God has blessed our people and he expects us in turn to help bless our homeless little ones.

Nobly have the people of North Carolina measured up to their duty in this regard in the past, and we believe they will not be any less mindful of the needs of our orphan children this thanksgiving season than they have been in the past.—Hickory Democrat.

Chronic Dyspepsia.

The following unsolicited testimony should certainly be sufficient to give hope and courage to persons afflicted with chronic dyspepsia: "I have been a chronic dyspeptic for years, and of all the medicine I have taken Chamberlain's Tablets have done me more good than anything else," says W. G. Mattison, No. 7, Sherman Street, Hornersville, N. Y. Sold by all dealers.
