COUNTIES RICH IN RESOURCES LOST BY LACK OF GOOD ROADS.

Ashe, Alleghany and Watauga -these three; formerly they were one-Ashe.

The taking away of Watauga in 1849, Alleghany in 1859, caused no friction in the mother country as is often the case. The people of Watauga have high regard and developed in days of yore, with tion; they will do the work. It is great appreciation for the penple of Ashe and Alleghany, and they have every reason to believe that their high regard and great appreciation are fully reciprocated. With six hundred and forty-five thousand acres of fine mountain land, forty thousand three hundred and sixty-four cattle, thirteen thousand eight highestcourt house in the state bundred and thirty-four hogs, twenty-six thousand six hundred and forty sheep, eight thousand one hundred and seventy-five ty in the State and the highest horses, a tax book value at $35,-000,000 and 41,881 courageous souls, these counties should be a State: they desire to be helped by the State. The propriety of putting these countles into Virginia and Tennessee has been discussed. A disting u is hed North Carolinian a few years ago canvassed Watauga to find the true sentiment, and declared that we were genuine North Carolinians. The great trouble, the tragedy of the whole matter, is that our transportation facilities connecting us with the State are about as they were when Zeb Vance canvassed the country for governor. A railroad, or a hard surfaced road, or both, will solve the question. A traveler in Boone wishing to go to Winston, would be advised to go to Bristol, Roanoake, then Winston. Go into our hotels and see the numerous traveling salesmen-not one from North Carolina; all from Tennessee and Virginia. Recently a big trust company was organized in Bristol. These counties were classified as Virginia counties, and our people were persuaded to buy $100,000 of the stock.

Ashe and Alleghany lead all the counties in the State in live stock, while Watauga leads in mountain produce. Here are the biggest cheese factories, with the the Blowing Rock, looking over biggest output south of Pennsylvania; bereis the largest commercial orchard in North Carolina-60,000 newly bearing apple trees, Chickens and turkeys, butter and eggs, apples, cabbage and potatoes, all in abundance, going daily into Johnson City, Tenn., there to be distributed to the Virginia and Tennessee cities. We should love to see it go to Winston and Greensboro, Charlotte, Gastonia, Salisbury and other North Carolina towns. How can the current of trade be changed? Not by wishing, but by providing adequate transportation facilities. In the days gone by we undertook to build a railroad from Raleigh west. The first plan was to come by Winston, up the Yadkin, through Cook's Gap, through Watauga county, down the Watauga river into Tennessee; this is perhaps the best route. At that time our people had no confidence in the project. The road was ta-Asheville; built, if you please, by State bonds. This estate will be turned over to the State of North Carolina for a hospital or sanatorium.

Here is the Grandfather National Park, one of the finest the country has. Boone was once the but Newland, in the new county of Avery, now claims the distinction. Watauga is the highest couneast of the Rockies. The Yadkin river rises in the eastern slope; the Catawba in the south; the great asset to the Old North Watauga in the west, while New river runs through Ashe and Vir ginia, north, into the Ohio. Here, then, is the summit of the Appa lachian mountains. Blowing Rock is the highest town, 4,000 feet a bove sea level. Here is the green bluest sky in all of God's creation. itself to surpass it. We would develop this country for the people of North Carolina. It must be a State project. Private capital cannot do it. It should be done now; the delay has already been too long. That there will be bickering we have no doubt. But let the worst pessamist leave the city when the thermometer registers at one hundred degrees and come across the mountains on a railroad speed, and land in the real "Land of the Sky" and sleep that night under a blanket the sweetest sleep in all his ken away, and finally built to life, awake next morning amid the matchless beauties and glories of the mountain land, his misgivings will fade away libe It has put millions of dollars on the dew before the morning sun. the tax books, bringing tremen: Let him ride over the well graded road the national government will build around the Grand father mountain, looking down

RATHER RANK.

Statesville Landmark.

Another man has been arrested for the Lippard murder and the father of two already convicted was caught transporting liquor. It is hardly safe, in these days, for one community to call attention to the sins of another, for wickedness does so abound in all that "the kettle can't throw up black' to the pot." But taking the risk we are moved to remark that the evidence in the Lippard case revealed a state of moral depravity in the section where the murder was committed that was a little more rank than one suspected existed in this part of the country. Evidently a considerable bunch of folks, of both sexes. in that locality, spend about all their time in transporting and dealing in and drinking blockade liquor, and gambling and other forms of law violation, immorali ty and other forms of indecency, usual accompaniments of the liquor tradic, are flaunted openly. Those who read the testimony in the Lippard case doubtless felt hat justice would be done if a number of the witnesses, on their ber, 1921, or this notice will be own confession, had been sent to pleaded in bar of their recovery the penitentiary along with the All persons indebted to said es

But those on whom the tower at Siloam fell were not the only sinners. Other communities may not be quite as bad but there are a plenty with records that take from them the right to point fingers. And if the liquor traffic continues with as little check as is now imposed, with public consent through public indifference these conditions will continue to grow worse. Lawlessness, always begets lawlessness and a very few lawless can overrun. lominate, a wide territory if th good people remain quiet. Simply deploring gets us nowhere. it is action and militant action as that, that is necessary. Such an expression of sentiment and such force behind it as will not only secure the conviction of the guil ty but compel adequate punishment, will meet the case. Drastic action will be necessary; a desperate situation requires a lesperate remedy. That dras tic action will appear when the folks really want something done and will stand up against the law oreakers, not only but against he aiders and abettors of the law breakers, who are really responsible for present conditions be cause of their all the time insisting that hobody should be put ished. The rolks who by assuray claim to be more just tuan God Almighty, have had their cry-out. Behold the result.
