

TRAINING SCHOOL ITEMS

The clinic at the School building the past week treated successfully 80 cases suffering with their tonsils and other kindred troubles.

Prof. Griffin, of the State Bd. of Education, was with us at the School some days last week and to the great delight and benefit of all, made a talk to the teacher-students.

In the recent absence of your correspondent quite a number of distinguished visitors were at the School, much to the pleasure and benefit of all who heard them. In addition to those mentioned last week, Misses Kate Finley and Carrie Wright, both former teachers, have been here. Editor Zeb Green, of the Marshall Home, spent Saturday night in Boone, having brought his son for the fall term of school.

Early on Tuesday morning of last week the public school house at Foscoe was burned, and the tragic feature about it is that some think it was set on fire owing to a feud among the patrons. We would rather believe that it happened otherwise than that any one would be guilty of an act so foreign to the best interests of all, especially for the children concerned. Another building has been secured and the school is progressing.

Miss Williams, a nurse of the State Board of Health, who is largely responsible for the good work of the Clinic here, made splendid talks to the school during the past week on the work that the Clinic has done and is doing in the State, stating that 3,000 operations had been performed and only one death had resulted in the entire number, showing thus the great efficiency of those in charge.

Prof. Roy M. Brown, who was for a number of years, professor of English in the Training School is now Field agent of the State Department of Public Welfare.

We were glad to see the Rev. W. A. Lumbeth, pastor of the Methodist church at High Point, at the School the past week.

President Dougherty, who has recently been on a trip to Tennessee gave a good talk to the students during the past week.

Rev. and Mrs. Brinkman received a heavy pounding on Wednesday of last week from the Methodists of the town and school. They are surviving with a happy smile.

On Friday the Industrial Arts Department of the Summer School gave an exhibit of its work which was a very fine display for the varied work in that department, which was in charge of Miss DeBerry.

The second term of the summer school came to a close last week after having done most excellent work. The two terms of the school this summer are considered the best we have had thus far, 280 being enrolled in the state school, and with those in the county school more than 400 took work here during the summer. Clinton.—Mrs. Cora Jernigan, on trial for the murder of Quimby Sewell, whom she had accused of the ruin of her daughter, Ruby Jernigan, thirteen years of age, was given a verdict of acquittal by a jury in superior court. She departed at once for her home in the county, a free woman, to carry the glad tidings to her other children, her friends and relatives.

Raleigh.—Road building operations in North Carolina "right now," in point of extent and intensity, are of proportions to surpass a man who stays at home closely, once he does take an automobile trip across the state, according to William H. Richardson, of Raleigh, private secretary of Governor Morris.

The New County Home.

The walls of the new county home are almost completed, and it is the purpose of the contractors and the Board of county commissioners to have it ready to be occupied by winter, the lower story at least. The building will be a commodious affair, and is beautifully located on a gently rolling plot of ground on the poor house, farm right near the Boone Trail Highway. The rooms are amply large and will be heated by a furnace. A splendid flow of pure water will furnish the baths, kitchen, etc., of the institution, and when completed the building will present a very pleasing appearance.

It was our pleasure last Sunday afternoon, in company with Rev. Edgar Tufts, Mr. J. D. Coul and Mrs. Mary Journey to visit the inmates of the home. All of them who have reasoning powers seem to be happy over the prospects of soon moving into their new quarters. They say they are furnished with plenty of good food, that Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the keeper and his wife, show them every kindness. The rooms are dark and forbidding, but everything looks reasonably clean and comfortable. In the home are two rather striking personages, Mr. James Andrews, who has been there for a quarter of a century, and the little blind woman, Miss Mary Hartley, who has spent the past fifteen years there and at the State institution for the blind at Raleigh. Mr. Andrews is a man of intelligence and has been a great reader, but recently his eyes have failed to such an extent that he confines his reading almost entirely to the Bible. He has been prone upon his back for many years, but he bears it uncomplainingly. Miss Hartley, the blind woman, entertained us with Bible readings which were well rendered, the perforated characters being traced by the fore finger on her right hand. A wonderful procedure.

Mr. Tufts preached a short but very timely sermon to the unfortunates, which was much enjoyed by all of them, they being very solicitous that he come again, which he promised to do on the third afternoon in next month.
