PERSONAL RECOLECTIONS OF LIFE IN IDAHO IN PIONEER DAYS

(By L. N. Perkins) After the season opened for chooting prairie chickens, I had enjoyed the sport very much, but I was anxious for September to come when it would be lawful to hunt deer, for I had never had an opportunity to develop my powers as a Timrof. The family with whom I lived cared nothing for deer hunting, they did not own a gun except a small shot gun used for killing birds, but there was a man by the name of Jim Allen who lived within a half mile of the house I had bought, and would be my nearest neighbor when I moved home; who was a noted hunter, he was a native of Arkansas, but had lived some years in Colorado and had considerable experience in benging hig game, he owned a 40-90 Ballard rafte and had promised to take me on a hunting trip as soon as the senson opened. It was several miles from Soldier to the range that the deer inhabited, the deer especially loved the footbills, and near the mountains so on the last day of August Mr Allen and I started for a day's hunt in the foothills. We took two saddles in a wagon and drove a distance o fabout 12 miles to a cabin that belonged to some friend of his who operated a water nower saw mill during the spring months when the water was flush, where we were to spend the night and bust the most day, on our way that evening a shirt distance a fine dos quietly granter on a hill was so tone out Mr. After decelor, risk a short at her box Afr. so we stop, of the waston and I had a horse while he got eat to waste the and firest, but he had the hit the ground into-edinter over the deer's back, so the loped of the rich hill and no harm done. It was about night when we reached the caba where we were to camp so we holy bled out our norses, and turned in for so we made our selves quite at home The next morning to our great discomforture it was raining a cool disagreeable drizzling rain, which dampened our ardor some for hunting, as the undergrowth was thick in many places we would have to go to find deer, but we decided to take a chance any way so we saddled our horses and rode about three miles to the foot bills where we tied our horses and took to the woods, the hills were heavily timbered with fir trees. As was the custom in hunting we mapped out the route each one was to take and separated, with the understanding that we take a short tried and return to the place we had tied our horses, it was not long after we separated till I heard a shot from Mr. Ailen's rifle which gave to see or hear anything that looked like a deer, when I returned to our meeting place I found. Mr. Allen there and be had a sice fire of dry fir wood, and he so utold me he had succeeded in killing a fine two point buck, which was good news for I was feeling a little blue, wer and cold and had not seen anything to shoot at. After warming availe we took one horse and went after the buck he had killed, we took our guns along but failed to see any more deer. So we field the deer on the horse and went back to our cabin, wer, fired and hunghy, but we had plenty of dry wood and a good stop and it was not long before we were
