Something to Think About
By F. A. WALKER

DISCONTENT
THERE are those who are continually complaining about some mysterious power which is holding them back. They begin to grumble at the breakfast table and keep airing their discontent until night when their mood changes and they don their best clothes and hurry away for their customary frolic.

These are the individuals who pile upon the backs of humanity its heaviest burdens of unhappiness. They are always out of step, lagging behind, contentions, gruff-voiced and ill-humored.

They would like to sit in the high places, give orders, read the law of deportment to subordinates, but they lack the spirit to make themselves capable, so they keep scuffling along their gloomy way and acquiring beastly dispositions.

It involves too much work, too many deprivations of things which they consider essential to their body-comfort, so they loiter along through the best years of their life, envious, unruly and wretched.

When the awakening comes, as it eventually does, they find themselves so enslaved to pernicious habits that they are powerless to break away. Their customary diversions have lost their lure. Old associates with whom they idled their precious years have disappeared. There is nothing ahead but blackness and emptiness.

Study and books are a bore. Anything that calls for thought or fixed attention of the mind cannot be endured. They never meditate, never reach out for the great, glorious ideals which have been hovering around them all their life, heaping recognition and success.

It's A Fair Exchange

Armed with this, he pays All bills by check, transacts business on paper, and thus firmly establishes his financial standing. Backed by the bank's great probity, he takes a short road to success.

"Strong and Well"

I WISH you could know how much I am improved since taking the Cardui," writes Mrs. Nannie Brown, of Blawie, Ark. "You wouldn't know me for the same weak invalid I was before I took it. At my... I had to keep off my feet or I would fall. I couldn't do my household work, and just got where I'd most as lief be dead as living. Some one told me of Cardui. He got it for me and I took three bottles before I stopped—then off and on for the last three years just as a tonic. I saw a decided improvement after my first bottle. I used the three, and was able to do my work with ease, and now I sew for my family and for others. I am feeling fine, and strong and well."

Take Cardui! It may be just the medicine you need.

UNCLE WALT MASON

I have very little worry, for I'm not a trouble found, as around the burg I busy, harmless tones I ex-pound, and I talk about the weather and the price of hay and leather, and I keep my lips together when the scandal goes round. Oh, the weather is a topic that is seldom sprung in vain and when I am feeding some with a theme is safe and sane, no one's heart is being wounded by the sentiments I've rounded off, when by my friends surrounded, I discuss last evening's ram. I take up last winter's blizzard when I want a thing to coast snow it up from A to Izzard knock it where it hurts the most, or I continue the thunder that aroused the farmer's wonder when it split a tree asunder—such discussion is my boast. Once I talked about my neighbors with a sort of righteous ire, I belittled all their labors gossiping like a house afire; idle stores I was spreading while upon my errands treading, and my life was leaping sledding than a water could desire. For the gossip is detested as a serpent in the grass; people wish he were arrested every time they see him pass; so I talk about the weather and the "hoose among the heather," and the cow that breaks her tether, and the growing garden saes.
