A. S. T. C. FOOTBALL TEAM FACES HARD GAMES THIS FALL

Mountaineers Will Open Season Against State College at Raleigh. Schedule Includes Traditional Grid Battle With Catawba, Many Veterans Will Come Back. Prospects Bright for Fast Squad.

A pre-season view of football pros-pects for the Mountaineers of Appalachian State College indicates another winning combinations, considering the veteran material as a basis for prognostication. A number of good men were lost by graduation, states Coach Johnny Johnston, but a great number of second-string material will be available for first-line duty, which had a great amount of hock training in last season's difficult schedule.

The line will return intact from end to end, stocked with such veter-ans as Red Smith and Mahoney at the tackle posts; McKinney and Wort-man at the guard jobs; Goins and and Kannamacker at the ends and Johnson,, Westenberg and Loy at the pivot position. All these men are veterans of two and three years experience on Mountaineers teams. well seasoned in difficult games. The backfield numbers such men as Trip-lett, Walker, Fitzgerald, Weaver, Sullivan, O'Neil and Lewis, All of the latter are veterans with fine football

Ten-Game Schedule A ten-game schedule faces the Mountaineers and all of these games are of major calibre, with representative teams from North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

The games with Gleaville and Con-cord of West Virginia are annual fea-tures of the Mountaineers' schedule

State. The nucleus of that team will be back to carry on the tradition of victory, which has perched on the staff of the college since the incep tion of football at the local college. · Football has proved very popular in this section and has been the means of giving the boys in the moun ain areas a chance to express their , ve of play and natural ability in one of the most difficult of sports.

MUSIC CAMP ENDS FIRST SEASON AT BANNER ELK SAT.

New Cultural and Recreational Project Successful. Columbia, S. C., Artists Featured in Closing Con-Camp Will Be Enlarged for Next Season. Increased Enrollment Anticipated.

The Southern Appalachian Music Camp, which was established this summer for the purpose of providing musically talented high school boys and girls with an opportunity to car-ty on intensive music study while en-joying plenty of wholesome recrea-tion in the invigorating atmosphere of the Blue Ridge Mountains, closed its 1932 session Saturday. This new camp is organized and conducted on a plan similar to that of the National Music Camp in Michigan, and aims to serve the Southern States in same manner as the Eastern Music Camp serves the New England States, the Pacific Band and Orchestra Camp Pacific Band and Orchestra Camp West, and the National Music JURY CLAIMS GO; Camp the country at large. The sucmet in its initial season despite the economic distress of the past year, promises well for the camp to become the mecca for high school mu-sicians in Dixie during the hot summer months in future years. While the average cities were sweltering in emperatures hovering around the 100 mark the campers enjoyed an average temperature of 71.5 degrees.

The camp offered, in addition to the cusotmary recreational facilities, advanced training in orchestra, band,
