SIFTINGS FROM

House were pretty well cleared over the week end; that is, both bouses were well up and had few measure requiring their attention. Of course they are constantly reaching the calendar from committees bills introduced during the session reached about 1150 last week, above 325 in the Senate and nearly 825 in the House. Introduction slowed down a bit, to about 120 last week, 80-odd in the House and 40 in the Senate.

All measures ratified through last week, including a few that had pass ed and were ready to be ratified, numberd 274. The week's ratifica tions, including a few ready, numbered 24 public bills and resolutions and 39 local bills. Three were reso lutions: approving the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago; commending Congressman E. W. Pou for a speech in Congress and designating the week of March 6-11 as National Business Women's Week.

Important among the passed was the provision for a commissioner of parole, taking the place of the former Executive Counsel, abolished. The new law provides for a commissioner and four inspectors to work in the field with paroled men, providing for completion of sentences outside prison walls and under supervision. Another abolished the State Tax Commission, Another limits highway work for two years to maintenance, construction being only from federal funds and one or two minor projects.

Several laws finally passed dea with legal matters. One amends the law as to payment to clerks of court of sums of money not exceeding $300 due and owing to persons intestate; another allows clerks to demand proper reports of commissiners they appoint; one prevents clerks of court from loaning trust funds; one relates jurors; another to advertising judicial foreclosure sales; another relieves sheriffs and tax collectors, allowing them to continue collecting taxes due and for which they have settled; two amend methods of sevice of process under two actions regulating appeals from general county to superior courts; relating to probating wills; relating to issuance and filing of pleadings in claims and delivery actions: payment of burial expenses from assets derived from wrongiui acie,

New laws of a general nature are provide for return of escapees from penal and correctional institutions; an amendment as to license fees and taxes on commercial fishing; prevent deception in storing, selling or offer ing for sale liquid fuel, lubricants etc., and prohibit sale of any such from containers improperly marked; authorizing the Secretary of State to sell the three volumes of Consolidat ed Statutes at $5 a set; providing for repairing and ditching the State canal in Hyde County.

New measures introduced last week include five resolutions, three to Congress, one asking that R. F. D. routes be put on a competitive basis and two asking for legislation to prevent foreclosures on real estate; one asks for a short hour day and short day week in industry; another asks the Commissioner of Banks to supply a list of attorneys, their duties and fees paid them in 1931-33.

Tax measures include two for property revaluation, by horizontal cuts if county commissioners so decide, to save costs; another would relieve homes of the blind from taxation; another would impose a tax on electric current; tax on non-resi-
