

Iowa Farm Women Take To the Fields of Harvest

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Iowa farm women have taken to the fields to help their husbands through the harvest jam—just as their great grandmothers did in the pioneer days.

Wearing their menfolk's overalls, many sturdy farmers' wives and daughters have discarded their pots and pans for the tractors and binders when farm hands could not be hired.

One Des Moines farmer said he knew of a woman who has been working in the fields all season.

A farmer's daughter near White Oak has been operating a binder while her father shocked grain.

Women at Clarion have been running binders and shocking oats. One woman was injured when she was caught in a binder. Reports from Clarion said some women prefer the outdoor work to the heat of their kitchens.

The labor shortage is still acute, but the small grain harvest is being completed in most counties. Farmers complain that relief workers refuse to accept temporary harvest jobs at wages from $1 to $3 a day.

Relief officials in more than twenty counties have cut off relief from able-bodied men in order to make harvest jobs more attractive.

EVANGELIST SERVICE TO BEGIN AT HENSON'S CHAPEL

Rev. W. C. Dutton, pastor-evangelist of the Monroe Circuit of Methodist churches, will assist the pastor and congregation of Henson's Chapel Church of the Watauga Circuit in evangelistic services beginning Sunday evening, August 4th, at 8 o'clock. The services will continue twice daily until August 14th.

Rev. Mr. Dutton is one of the younger pastors in the Western N. C. Conference, but he has established an unusual record in evangelistic work. His successes in revival work have been due to spiritual fervor and great earnestness rather than to any novel psychological methods.

The public is most cordially invited to attend these services.

M. S. Cox of Beaufort County will caponize 175 young cockerels this season as a demonstration in this phase of poultry production.

BERRY DIES IN CAPITAL

John D. Berry, well known in fraternal and lay religious circles all over the State, died suddenly at his home here last Thursday. Fellows, and was active in other fraternal orders. He was also a State official of the Baraca Philanthropic organization and had recently attended the national convention with the N. C. delegation. He had been engaged in the life insurance business recently.

POULTRY QUESTION

When should pullets be moved from the range shelter to the laying house?

Answer: Pullets should never be moved until the majority are ready to come into production. Even then, if layers are still in the house, the pullets should not be moved until the house has been thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. The shelters can be moved from range to range and the pullets should be kept on these ranges as long as possible especially if the pasture about the laying house is poor.
