

The Week in Washington

A RESUME OF GOVERNMENTAL HAPPENINGS IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Washington, May 30.—Two recent events have pretty nearly blown the dome off the capitol, figuratively speaking. They are the disclosure by President Roosevelt that he personally sanctioned the purchase of Argentine canned corned beef for the navy, and the reports which have leaked out of the secret sessions of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

If impassioned oratory could bring down the roofs of the senate and house, which are none too secure architecturally, they would have collapsed when senators and representatives began to voice their indignation over the corned-beef affair.

Not only from the cattle-raising states but from many other sections the members blew off steam in defense of the American steer and in protest against the implied slur on the quality of American beef. For the President had said publicly that canned corned beef from the Argentine was not only cheaper than American beef, but of superior quality.

The total amount involved in the proposed navy purchase of corned beef is only $45,000, and from the point of view of the administration that is a low price to pay for "appeasement" of Argentina.

Along among the South American republics, Argentina cherishes a deep-seated hostility to the United States, arising from the embargo against the importation to this country of fresh or frozen beef from the pampas of that great cattle-raising nation. The reason for that is that a large part of the Argentine range is infected with foot-and-mouth disease.

That has not prevented other nations from buying Argentine frozen beef, which constitutes the country's largest industry, but the regulations of the United States department of agriculture keep it out of this country. So the Argentines are sore at Uncle Sam, and it looked like good diplomacy to buy some of their canned corned beef, packed under the watchful eyes of U. S. inspectors.

Pleased Argentina
The President's announcement pleased Argentina but it started a rumpus in congress. The senate naval appropriations committee voted to insert in the new naval supply bill a proviso that none of the money should be spent to buy foreign food for the bluejackets.

One senator made the startling discovery that in the senate and house restaurants members were being fed with imported, corned-beef, packed in Brazil by a branch of an American packing house concern.

The navy authorities who compared American corned-beef with that of Argentina say that the latter is better because in this country only the poorer cuts of beef are corned, while the Argentines pickle the quality

The excitement over the corned-beef episode was still at its height when the news came out from behind the closed doors of the Dies investigating committee that witnesses had been telling of an organized national anti-Jewish movement, in which the name of a high army officer figured prominently. Major General Van Vorn Moseley, retired, was reported to be one of the leaders in the campaign to stir up anti-Jewish sentiment.

A waiter in a New York club was reported to have made notes of many conversations overheard among the members, bearing on the anti-Jewish plot. Letters from General Moseley and from others of prominence in business and political circles were also read to the committee behind the closed doors of what was supposed to be the secretest secret session ever held in Washington.

Hold High Offices
In view of the considerable number of Jews holding high public office in Washington, Justice Frankfurter in the supreme court, Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury, Jerome Frank, newly elected head of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and a very long list of administrative officials and bureau chiefs, including Jesse Straus of the U. S. housing administration, and several members of the "inside" group which is supposed to have access to the Presidential ear, the partial disclosures of a wide-spread campaign to discredit the Jewish people has caused very much more of a stir in official circles than anything the Dies committee has turned up.

At both ends of Pennsylvania avenue there seems to be more concern over the 1940 presidential election than over matters closer at hand still awaiting solution. Among an influential group of officeholders a "draft Roosevelt for a third term" movement is under way.

Dewey Still Leads
On the Republican, presidential side, the feeling now is that while District Attorney Dewey of New York, still leads in public favor, some of the Dewey sentiment may have been stimulated by new deal influences, who figure that he would be easier to defeat than an older man with more administrative experience.

Republican leaders are turning their eyes again toward Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan. The return of Harry Hopkins, secretary of commerce, to his desk after a long illness, was signaled by the resignation of General Robert E. Wood, Chicago business man who has been serving as business counselor to the department, and of Richard C. Patterson, assistant secretary of the department. These resignations have revived talk of an effort to "build up" Secretary Hopkins to presidential size, and the gossip is that Messrs. Wood and Patterson quit their jobs because they did not want to take part in that program.

BAPTISTS UPHOLD THE SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE

Chicago, May 26.—Baptist leaders representing nearly 10,000,000 persons today projected a program for 1940 to maintain separation of church and state and preserve individual freedom.

Presidents of 18 Baptist conventions gathered together for the first time in the history of the church to frame "a pronouncement upon religious liberty."

The theory that the church is separate from the state, the pronouncement said, is championed by all Baptists.

"No issue in modern life is more urgent or more complicated than the religion of organized religion to organized society," it continued, "the sudden rise of the European dictators to power has changed fundamentally the organic law of the governments through which they exercise sovereignty."

"As a result, the institutions of religion are either suppressed or made subservient to the ambitious national programs of these new totalitarian states."

The conferees agreed that the trend of government "even in democratic countries, lies in the direction of greater centralization," and that the "coercion of religious bodies" through special taxes, the use of tax-raised funds for sectarian schools and other means tends to unite the church and state.

PRAYERS ARE SAID FOR MEN LOST ON SQUALUS

Portsmouth, N. H., May 28.—Prayers for the 26 men lost in the tragic dive of the new $4,000,000 submarine Squalus today while the navy worked with all possible speed to raise the sunken submarine.

Churchgoers in this navy yard city were reminded of the disaster of last Tuesday when they were asked to join in prayers for the lost shipmates of 33 officers and men who were rescued by an escape bell.

One minister paid tribute to the crew and said those who met death "served their country just as the men who have died previously on the battlefield. They will enable us to have an adequate defense and to prepare their country to resist aggression."

Meanwhile the navy disclosed efforts to solve the mystery of the fatal dive already were under way.

HERE'S A TIP!
No Gas
No Electricity
and it costs you half as much for HOT WATER

Here is the answer to your hot water problem. Whether you live in the city or the country, you can now enjoy automatic service—with all of the hot water you want for half as much as the average cost of manufactured gas. The chart at the right tells the story. For the purpose of fair comparison, electricity is estimated at 3c per KWH; bottled gas at $2.75 per 1000 cubic feet, manufactured gas at $1.25 per 1000 cubic feet and fuel oil as used in the Duo-Therm at 8c per gallon. Get set for spring and summer now—install a Duo-Therm heater and forget your hot water problem once and for all. The Duo-Therm line includes models for every domestic requirement—all listed as standard by the Underwriters' Laboratories.
