U. N. Starts Drafting World Bill Of Rights

New York, April 30—The United Nations began today the long task of framing a world bill of rights designated to meet the needs of every nation and every individual.

The initial step was taken by the commission on human rights which unanimously adopted a resolution asking Secretary-General Trygve Lie to compile all available material bearing on the proposed draft of an international declaration of human rights.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the commission, specifically asked that the material include a resolution offered by Philippine Delegate Pedro Lopez calling for an international press conference.

The material will also include declarations on freedom of the press by Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press; Hugh Ballie, president of the United Press; and Wilbur Forrest, chairman of the standing committee on world freedom of information of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

These statements are included in the commission's provisional agenda circulated today.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chief of the United States delegation, submitted the declarations to the secretary-general at the London meetings in mid-February and asked that the human rights commission draft a resolution on "the problem of freedom of information" for the U. N. economic and social council. He said this should be "one of the first tasks" to be undertaken by the human rights commission.

The general assembly last Feb. 7, recommended that the question of an international press conference be put on the agenda of the New York meeting of the assembly beginning next Sept. 3.

It takes a lot of thought and downright determination to be agreeable.

Neurosis

By Dr. J. B. Warren

When individuals have symptoms which they think are caused by a disease of various organs—heart, stomach, gall bladder and others—yet there is no real organic trouble present, they are said to have neurosis.

In neurosis the nervous system is upset but there is no change in its structure or in the structure of the organs affected. It may follow shock, illness, injury, overwork. The patient feels that he needs "attention," and should be excused from effort.
