JESUS AND SINCERITY OF SPEECH

International Sunday School Lesson for September 8, 1946
Golden Text: "Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbor"—Ephesians 4:25.
Lesson Text: Exodus 20:16; Proverbs 26:23-28; Matthew 26:69-75

While the Ninth Commandment, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbors," refers primarily to the giving of false evidence in court, it naturally follows that it forbids the giving of false testimony against anyone at any time. This would forbid the practice of gossiping, slandering, of adding extra facts to a story to make it more interesting, and, in fact, all forms of untruths.

It is evident that the practice of lying originates in a heart that is unclean. This Jesus recognized and, for this reason, strongly condemned the hypocrisy of the religious leaders of his day, who strictly adhered to all external rituals, such as the washing of the hands before eating, but who were not so careful that their hearts and lives were correspondingly clean. They were examples of "living lies" because their outward appearances testified to one thing, while their hearts were not in harmony with "Men are responsible for their volitions, and, as sin is not the direct offspring of their own wills, but the offspring of the surrender of their own wills to this mysterious will behind them, their deliverance from his personal influence is possible and is the result of Christ's salvation"—(Geo. Reith).

Lying, hypocrisy, untruthfulness, dishonesty and the like are just as prevalent today as they were in the time of Moses or of Jesus Christ. In private life and in public life, there are glaring examples of all forms of false witnessing.

Very often we read of witnesses in court being prosecuted for perjury, for giving testimony that is later proved to have been untrue. In international affairs, we also have instances where nations sign treaties, apparently with no intention of abiding by the provisions contained in them. Thus, we have witnessed the breakdown in private, local, state, national and international affairs involving confidence in one another.

When confidence is destroyed, we have undermined the very base of civilization for, whether we realize it or not, our everyday business transactions depend upon our faith in the trustworthiness and honesty of those with whom we deal.

We trust the merchant from whom we buy an article to sell us worthy merchandise at a fair price. We mail a letter to a loved one in a distant city, confident that it will be delivered because we believe in the honesty of the postal employees. We follow our doctor's orders because we have faith in his integrity and confidence in his ability. What a terrible thing it would be if we could trust no one!

Therefore, we should do all in our power to guard ourselves against the formation of the habit of deceitfulness. An easy habit to acquire, it is an unusually difficult one to break. Once one's reputation for truthfulness is destroyed, it is practically impossible for it to be rebuilt.

Let's be honest in our dealings with those in our home, in our business and social life, in the making of promises, and in the varied and sundry contracts of our lives: Let us so live each day that the telling of a lie, either to our fellow men or to God, will be unnecessary.

BLACK MARKET
 The resources of the Office of Price Administration, augmented by aid from the Department of Justice, Treasury, and Agriculture, will be used to block any revival of a meat black market when price ceilings are again restored, according to Paul A. Porter, head of the OPA.

FOOD RISES
 Mid-July food prices in seventeen cities throughout the country were 80 per cent higher than in August, 1939, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Memphis, Tenn. led with a 94.6 per cent rise, while Houston, Texas, with a 64 per cent rise, was the lowest.

SOME EARNINGS
 Salt Lake City.—In about a minute's time at the recent Days of '47 Rodeo, Cowboy Buck Sorrels earned $1,456 as prize money for roping three calves and bulldogging one steer. He averaged about 15 seconds for each time out.

THEATERS

Telling a gripping story of the days when the Oklahoma Panhandle was a true No-man's Land and a haven for most of the West's outlaws, RKO Radio's big adventure romance, "Badman's Territory," stars Randolph Scott, Ann Richards and George "Gabby" Hayes at the head of a distinguished cast.

Scott, as a Texas sheriff, lays aside his badge to go into the region in search of his reckless younger brother, Miss Richards is cast as an impetuous newspaper woman striving to persuade the inhabitants to join with the rest of Oklahoma in petitioning Congress for full territorial status, and eventual Statehood.

Not only do the outlaws and their hangers-on prefer to keep the area free from Federal supervision, but the prosperous cattlemen also enjoy their freedom from regulation and taxes. This brings about a dramatic conflict between the opposing forces against which is painted the vivid activities of the James Boys, the Daltons and other famous bandits of the era, and the stormy love affair between the sheriff and the heroine.

An exciting horse-race, a train robbery and the thrill-laden creation of the Dalton's memorable Coffeyville raid also lend color and authenticity to the unusual film, which will be showing at the Appalachian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, September 2 and 3rd.
